

FRENCH PIANIST HERE FEBRUARY 6

W A C C To Go On Air

The "Hilltop Station," W. A. C. C., which has temporarily been off the air, is now ready to resume operations. Scheduled broadcasting was to have started sooner, however the disruption of the remodeling program, and troubles with a broken - down transmitter caused a delay. Fred Rosenstreter of this station and Ralph Rickett, an A. C. Senior, have now completed the rebuilding of the transmitter so as to make broadcasts possible.

A staff of thirty students will be doing the broadcasting and technical work each day. W. A. C. C. will go on the air at 4:00 and sign off at 6:00. The schedule will be composed of world-wide news; local and campus news; popular, classical and sacred music; and variety and religious programs.

Permission has also been granted for the construction of a channel to the chapel so that any special programs can be broadcast from there.

These broadcasting programs are arranged under the guidance of Professor Miley, who is head of the speech department.

Social Committee Plan Festivities

Say—have you heard the good news? Another one of Social Chairman Vivian Campbell's famous all-school parties is brewing. Sounds like fun, don't you think? Here are some hot tips on the plans:

Affair—An all-school skate
Place—Mansfield Coliseum
Date—Thursday, March 2
Admission—Free to Ashland College students
55 cents for outsiders
Transportation—bus furnished—free!

There'll be fun for all . . . and it's all for fun! Whether you're an amateur, or a professional, come and join the crowd. Beautiful Hammond organ music will put that special rhythm in your bones as you glide around the rink. Incidentally, there is an outer rink for the less-experienced, and an inner circle for the professionals, so come one, come all; stand or fall, there's a swell time for everyone.

Here are a few comments on the annual all-school skates:

Lois Coleman—We have loads of fun, and there's always a good crowd. I think it's one of the best parties of the year.

Lewis Smith—No falls, no fun! Everyone enjoys this party. And a tip to the girls—don't grab for the posts for support, just grab for the nearest fella.

Lyle Lichtenberger—I don't have any trouble at skating parties. I never fall—I can't even get up!

So you see, gang, it'll be loads fun for everyone. Plan now to attend. As a last reminder, Vivian Campbell says, "If you hate to have a good time—stay home!"

Snow Invades College Town

Since time immemorial the weather has been man's favorite topic of discussion. Therefore it's quite natural that the people of A. C. seem quite concerned over the conditions in Ashland. At least Ohio is beginning to look a little more seasonal rather than the early imitation of spring encountered last week.

However, in the Dakotas they go in for winter in a big way. The army has released equipment to help with "Operation Snowbound." The job of OS is to relieve distress in many of the western snow-locked areas. Parts of the Dakotas are buried under a 34 inches now blanket with drifts up to 10 feet high. Some rural families have been isolated since mid-December.

The Red Cross has named a group of four S. Dakota counties as a disaster area. A headquarters is being set up to direct the work of rushing aid to isolated families.

Travel to Europe

Nora Sungy

Can you imagine yourself sailing over the ocean, dining at a smart sidewalk cafe, seeing sights such as the Eiffel Tower, the Arc of Triumph, the Riveria, a gondola slowly drifting in the moonlight over a shining Italian river? Wonderful to dream, isn't it? But if you really want to go to Europe this summer there is a way! Recently the editor of the Collegian received a letter from Dr. Edourd Bourbousson, associate professor of modern languages at Oregon State College. In this letter Dr. Bourbousson made the request that we publish a program of the trip which he has organized for the months of July and August 1950 in our school paper.

The trip has been planned for those who are desirous of obtaining an intimate knowledge of French life and civilization not only through the customs of the sidewalk cafes but through the culture of her museums, chateaux and uni-

Concert-Lecture Series To Feature Nicole Henriot at McDowell Auditorium

When the faculty and students of Ashland College and the music lovers of Ashland gather in McDowell auditorium on the evening of February 6, 1950, they will be there to witness a remarkable performance by the young French pianist, Nicole Henriot.

The "frail thunderer," as she was named by Time Magazine, is still in her early twenties, but already has appeared with thirty-eight orchestras on three continents. Mlle. Henriot began her study of the piano at seven, later entering the Paris Conservatoire. At fifteen she made her debut with the Pasdeloup Orchestra. This success subsequently brought appearances with other orchestras of her native city; the Colonne, the Lamoureux, and the Conservatoire. Later she appeared with the Brussels Philharmonic and at Liege and Anvers.

After the fall of France, her career became a front for work in the underground. She bears scars from abuse received when the Gestapo raided her home the morning after D-Day to gain possession of papers hidden by her brother, an active member of the Resistance. She was decorated with the Badge of the Commandos d'Afrique, which was only given to some three dozen civilians.

Mlle. Henriot was the first French pianist heard in England after the war. Her post-war career has taken her to England, Holland, Belgium, Portugal, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Austria, Luxembourg, Switzerland, Scandinavia, Egypt, Israel, Turkey, and the United States.

Since her brilliant American debut in 1948, Nicole has played with major orchestras in this country, Canada and Cuba. Everywhere this charming girl has been hailed as a great pianist.

When she made her first appearances with the Boston Symphony in February, 1949, playing the Liszt E-flat Concerto, conservative Boston critics were bowled over and went wild in their praise of her talent and ability.

Mlle. Henriot returned in January for her third North American tour. She will play with the Boston Symphony in its home city and at Carnegie Hall, with the Houston and Montreal Orchestras, and will tour as far as Texas for recitals.

Believes H-B No Secret

On Tuesday of this week Harold C. Urey, atomic scientist revealed his conviction that Russia has the secret of the hydrogen bomb.

Urey is quoted as follows, "Any thought that Russian scientists have failed to develop the secret of the hydrogen bomb is utterly beyond my comprehension.

"To any atomic scientist, the formula for producing the atom bomb is certain to suggest the making of a hydrogen bomb many times more destructive than the A-weapon.

"Although American scientists are forbidden to discuss the theory of hydrogen bomb production, I strongly doubt that the secret has remained in the U. S."

Urey implied that if America is to remain foremost in the armament race, early production of the H-bomb is essential.
