

Front Campus

One of the big social events of the past week was the party given by the Dorm. girls to all the dormitory students.

The party was held on the front campus and about 75 students joined in the fun. After a number of interesting games on the campus the festivities were continued in the reception rooms of the girl's dormitory. The feed of waldorf salad and tea, and more games closed the program for the evening.

Thanks to the railroad situation books have not as yet interfered with the social activities to any great extent. Students have been following the Epicurean philosophy of "eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow the text books may arrive."

Every man can make his lot in life either a prison or a palace.

Thud!

Phyllis: "I told dad that Robert was the mark of all my affection."

Clarice: "And what did dad do then?"

Phyllis: "He toed the mark."

can to the Argentine appears because there we face the wreck of a country which might have been just as magnificent as the United States... It is there that sanitary conditions are in a terrible state." Also he said, "There are cities of five thousand people which do not have a Christian church within their borders... The first contingent of American soldiers who went to Europe had for their watchword 'Carry on,' Let us also remember that the grandest thing in all the world is building souls for eternity. Are we willing to carry on?"

It was in the dining room of one of the smaller steamers that travel between Chicago and Duluth. The few passengers who had the courage to descend from the cheerful deck to the stuffy little dining saloon where a table d'hote meal was being served were hurrying to get through, eager to be out in the open air again.

Suddenly the rattling of dishes in the galley ceased. The chef appeared, clad in a none-too-immaculate apron.

"Keep yer knives, everybody," he bel- lowed warningly, "we're gonna have pie fer dessert."

Money is that which enables us to ex- change hard labor and honest sweat for the griddle cakes and gasoline. It has a strange habit of appearing on Saturday and disappearing on Monday or Tuesday at the latest. The Chinese have the right idea—they put holes in it so that they can tie it down.

There are many kinds of money in ex- istence. In fact, the first specie was an apple, when the devil bought Adam's downfall, and a quart of apple-jack will still have the same effect. Manhattan Is- land was purchased for a keg of whis- key, but the days of real bargains have passed. It would take more than one is- land now. The word "Manhattan" in the Indian tongue is said to mean, "The place where we got drunk and lost every- thing we had."

In sections of Assyria a wife can be bought for eight spear heads, but the pur- chaser usually keeps one or two pieces of his money for any emergency that might arise after the marriage. A live elephant will purchase three wives in the Soudan and a dead whale will buy four wives among the Eskimos.

A man without a couple of hundred thousand berries salted away has no more business with a wife and limousine than a stuck pig has with a Ph. D. from the Uni- versity of Edinburgh.

Money is the most powerful thing in the world, and with it one can buy anything from the floating vote to respectability, and it will give him an "open sesame" into high society or jail, depending on whether or not the police caught him mak- ing it.

Money is said to be the root of all evil, but we rarely ever hear any objections raised when a ten-spot is thrown into the collection plate.
