This structure is built on the granite foundation of a Federal rowblock unit, the Ceres Street facade having been completely rebuilt in recent years. This facade has two large arcuated bays and one small one in the center, the large left bay serving the Oar House Restaurant, the others the Ceres Street Bakery. The building rises only to the sidewalk level on Market Street, where the granite foundation of the upper stories may be seen. The building is listed as "contributory" because it retains the base, plan dimensions and material of the original row unit so that a unit could be rebuilt here.
