

Key West, Fla.,
May 30, 1912.

Dear Rosa,

"It's awful! awful!" We anchored off this hole of desolation this morning; and we have passed the forenoon in panting and sweating. It is one of those still, hot days, when the air quivers with the ascending heat and the smoke from the funnels goes straight up. Under the burning, on the quarter-deck, you can feel the radiation through the railing. I am sitting under a big electric fan, -which, however, seems to do no more than stir up the heated air. How long we shall have to hang round this hole no one knows.

habitually stationed at the navy yard, Washington, D.C., will its capacity.

The Secretary of the Navy objects to the passage of H.R. 22851, "for the relief of John Newton," formerly a first lieutenant, U.S.M.C., dismissed by G.C.M. order dated Dec. 28, 1908. "The commandant of the Marine Corps, to whom the bill in question was referred for comment and recommendation, reports, under date of April 12, 1912, as follows: "The records of this office show that Lieutenant Newton was guilty of falsehood while on duty in Panama, and that for this offense his court-martial was recommended. His youth and inexperience were taken into consideration by the then Secretary of the Navy and he escaped with a reprimand. On Nov. 14, 1908, while serving at Norfolk, Lieutenant Newton was guilty of gross misconduct; drank in a public hotel with enlisted men and two or more lewd women; went to the first sergeant in command of a little guard at the naval hospital and borrowed from the sergeant over $30, this being spent in carousal; he then took an automobile, left it outside of the navy yard gate, and walked over to the officer of the day's office, where some $1,200 of the men's money was deposited, of which Lieutenant Newton had control and for which he was responsible. Lieutenant Newton took the $1,200 and went on with his debauch with the three enlisted men.
He was tried for embezzlement, scandalous conduct tending to the destruction of good morals, and conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline, and was sentenced to dismissal from the Service, which sentence was approved by the President on Dec. 28, 1908. In addition to the above, Lieutenant Newton was also several times reported for carelessness in the matter of financial obligations. After a careful consideration of the foregoing, the undersigned believes that the reinstatement of Mr. Newton would be decidedly detrimental to the best interests of the Service, because of the fact that while serving as a commissioned officer in the Marine Corps Lieutenant Newton demonstrated his uselessness and undesirability as such."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—The gunboat Wheeling arrived in Guantanamo, Cuba, today. This advice was flashed to the navy department by wireless, setting at rest the fears for the little vessel's safety. It was rumored to have met with an accident at sea.

The commander of the vessel was surprised when told on arrival of the anxiety occasioned by the report. No accident marred the voyage to West Indian waters, and all aboard the vessel are well.

"THE LITTLE GIRL AT HOME."

I have courted damsels Spanish,
Dutch, Norwegian, Irish, Danish,
I have faced in warmer climates
All the wiles of eye and fan;
I have seen the dainty Geisha
Do her stunts in distant Asia,
And the girl with jeweled anklets
Twirl in dusky Hindoostan;
I have flirted with Castilian,
German, Greek and dark Brazilian,
I have played the game of Cupid
Clear from Simla up to Nome—
But, for witcheries seductive, Cooing, fetching, deft, instructive—
There is nothing in the picture
With the little girl at home.

PORTSMOUTH GIVES A PERFORMANCE FOR NAVY RELIEF SOCIETY.

A very successful amateur performance of the four-act comedy, "For One Night Only," was given at the Ordnance building in the Portsmouth, N.H., Navy Yard on the evening of Feb. 25. The cast was made up of ladies from the yard and from Portsmouth and officers of the station. To Surg. B. F. Jenness, U.S.N., who took the initiative in getting up the performance, is due much of the success of the evening, as well as the credit for having added a most agreeable and acceptable variation to the monotone of life at the Portsmouth yard.

The comedy deals with the tribulations of Prof. Martin Goldwhinney, a respected citizen of a small town, who, in the absence of his wife (who abhors the theater) and his daughter, allows himself to be persuaded to consent to the production in the local theater of a Roman tragedy written by him while a student; the author of his undoing is Spartan Spotts, theatrical manager and leading heavy man. The following was the cast:

Prof. Martin Goldwhinney, who permits the product of his youthful brain to be put on the stage, Dr. B. F. Jenness, U.S.N.; Dr. Leopold Newman, his son-in-law, a faithful and reliable husband, whose wife insists that he must have a fearful past, Lieut. J. C. Fegan, U.S.M.C.; Mr. Charles Harkins, an excellent but most bromidic gentleman, who insists on renewing a chance acquaintance with the Professor, Dr. F. M. Bogan, U.S.N.; Jack Harkins, his son, who has gone on the stage, after a blighted romance, in Spartan Spotts's company, Naval Constr. R. W. Ryden; Spartan Spurgius Spotts, theatrical manager, leading heavy, etc., who wheedles the Professor into putting on the play, Lieut. Comdr. R. K. Crank, U.S.N.; Mrs. Goldwhinney, the Professor's wife, who adorns the stage, Mrs. F. M. Bogan; Mrs. Newman, her daughter, who compels her husband to have a devilish past, Miss Dorothy Foster; Paula, another daughter, who falls in love with Jack, Mrs. R. W. Ryden; Rosa, the Goldwhinney's maid servant, Miss Marion Hackett.

Judging from the frequent applause and laughter the audience thoroughly enjoyed the performance. The cast was uniformly good. The opinion was expressed by a number of those who saw the play that it was the best amateur theatricals they had ever seen.

The Portsmouth Chronicle says: "It was a brilliant society event, attended by a great many from this city and by the officers and ladies of the fort. The comedy was well staged and remarkably well presented, all of the cast doing nobly in the parts assigned them and their effort met with hearty applause from the large audience. An orchestra from the U.S.S. Washington played for the comedy."

"FOR ONE NIGHT ONLY."

Presented at the Navy Yard
Saturday Evening.

The musicals were revived at the navy
 after a lapse of several years, on Saturday night the officers dined there and several women associated with naval society, presented a four act comedy, "For One Night Only." The presentation was for the benefit of the Naval Relief society, and attracted about 200 of the naval and their following.
 Dr. B. F. Jenness acted the character of Prof. Martin Goldwhinney, the author of the story that is to be produced upon the professional stage.
 Lieut. Joseph C. Fegan was Dr. Leonard Newman, the professor's son-in-law. Dr. F. M. Bogan was Charles Harkins, a man of conniving traits, and Mrs. Bogan was the professor's wife. Naval Constructor R. W. Ruy-ten was an actor, the son of Harkins, and Lieut. Commander R. K. Crank was a typical thespian. Miss Dorothy Foster of this city portrayed the character of Mrs. Newman; Mrs. Ruy-ten was her daughter, and Miss Marion Chalkett was a maid servant.

The scenes presented were the processors study and the theatre at which the work was produced. Music was furnished by an orchestra from the Crisler Washington.

PERFORMANCE FOR NAVY RELIEF SOCIETY.

Following extract is from the Portsmouth Daily of February 27, 1911:

Navy Relief Society—Society Amateur Theatre—Navy Yard a Brilliant Success.—One of the most brilliant amateur theatricals given in this city in a long time was at the navy yard on Saturday evening, when the pleasing four-act comedy, "Night Only," was presented for the benefit of the Navy Relief Society.

Presented by the officers of the yard, assisted by a great many from this city and by the ladies, and it was a brilliant society event, and ladies of the fort.

The comedy was well staged and remarkably well acted, all of the cast doing nobly in the parts assigned them, and their effort met with hearty applause from the large audience.

The orchestra from the U. S. S. Washington played the comedy.

Dorothy Foster and Miss Marion Hackett, of the navy, took parts, the former in the part of Mrs. B. F. Jenness, U. S. Navy, and it was to his credit that much of the success of the performance was due to the attendance from the city was not as large as might have been expected, and those who were present with the opinion that all amateur performances are necessarily unentertaining were agreeably surprised and many so expressed themselves. Nearly a hundred dollars was netted for the Navy Relief Society, besides, a little diversion and amusement, have been sadly lacking at this station, was a. It is hoped that this will not be the last of entertainments. This yard has been for long "dead-and-buried" list, and any effort to bring it from its winter sleep should be encouraged. It offers nothing in the way of diversion, so other, and the yard must provide its own program was as follows:

OBITUARY.

April 9

Mrs. Edith Bradford Lomax.

A great shock passed over select circles when on Monday afternoon the intelligence flashed over the pages from New Orleans of the death of Mrs. Edith de Bellerive (Bradford) Lomax, wife of Captain Francis H. Lomax, U. S. army.

Mrs. Lomax had just become a widow when the summons came and the bereavement because of its suddenness and the attendant circumstances is most distressing. Her death took place at Jefferson barracks.

Mrs. Lomax was thirty-three years of age, a daughter of Mrs. Caroline B. and the late Captain Robert F. Bradford, U. S. N., of Court street, and besides her mother she is survived by four sisters and two brothers, Miss Pauline of this city, Mrs. Jansen, wife of Thomas Jansen of Brookline, Mrs. Treadwell, wife of Major Thomas C. Treadwell, U. S. M. C., temporarily stationed at Norfolk, Mrs. Richardson, wife of Surgeon Royal R. Richardson, U. S. N., lately attached to the naval hospital at the navy yard, and Robert and Baur Bradford.

The marriage of Miss Edith de Bellerive Bradford and Captain Francis H. Lomax took place in this city on October 9, 1907, and was a notable event, drawing together a large number of prominent army and navy officials and society guests. She was while a resident of Portsmouth a member of the Country club, a fine golf and tennis player, an expert swimmer, and full of the ruggedness of youth.

Mrs. Lomax was a devoted wife, daughter, sister and friend, and her sad and sudden departure is lamented by a wide circle.

N., will take place at Holy Trinity Memorial chapel, Philadelphia Tuesday evening, April 18. A large reception will follow the ceremony at the home of Captain and Mrs. Edwards, 2305 De Lancey Place. Miss Bianca Cogswell of this city will be one of the bridesmaids.

The resignation of First Lieutenant William L. Burchfield, U. S. N., has been accepted, to take effect on April 1. "for the good of the service." Lieutenant Burchfield was tried at Washington some time ago on charges growing out of alleged non-payment of debts. The record and finding of the court have been awaiting the consideration of the reviewing authority for a long time.

The wedding of Midshipman Philip F. Hambsch, U. S. N., who was well known in this city while attached to the New Hampshire, and Miss Helen A. Feldmeier of Ann Arbor, will occur tomorrow.

INVITES THEATRE PARTY TO WEDDING

Ensign Edward H. Loftin Exchanges Nuptial Vows with Miss Hazel Wilcox.

Guests of Ensign Edward Hill Loftin at a theatre party last night were treated to a genuine surprise at 10 o'clock, when their host invited them to be present at his marriage to Miss Hazel E. Wilcox, who was one of the party.

He explained that a quiet wedding was scheduled to take place in 15 minutes. The invitation was accepted, and the party was driven in an automobile to the Marlboro street home of the Rev. Elwood Worcester of Emmanuel Church, who was found waiting to perform the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Brownlee of 38 St. Botolph street were the attendants.

A jolly supper party followed at the Touraine, where Ensign and Mrs. Loftin will remain the rest of the week.

For the past three years the bride has been studying the violin at the New England Conservatory of Music. Her parents live in Albion, N. Y.

The groom is attached to the United States gunboat Marietta, which is at the Portsmouth Navy Yard for repairs. He is a native of Arkansas and his home is in Pensacola, Fla.

On Saturday, April 29, at high noon at the Unitarian church, occurs the wedding of Miss Constance Heffenger, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Heffenger, of Austin street, to Mr. J. Winslow Pierce, only son of Mrs. and the late Mr. William Augustus Pierce of Court street.

Mrs. Thomas W. Luce.

Mrs. Luce, wife of Thomas W. Luce of Court street died very suddenly Sunday afternoon at the Maine General hospital of embolism, following a slight operation on Wednesday last.

The sad news was received here on Sunday afternoon in a telephone message to her husband who was at at his home on Court street and it came like a bolt out of the clear sky, for he had received word during the day that she was feeling finely and making a rapid recovery. He was nearly prostrated by the news and he left soon after for Portland, going to Dover by automobile and catching the train there.

Mrs. Luce went to Portland the middle of the week and had a minor operation performed at the Maine General Hospital and it was declared a success and she was rapidly gaining her strength when without any warning she became unconscious and died shortly after. The attending surgeon pronounced it embolism or a clot on the brain.

Mrs. Luce was a native of Portland and a daughter of ex-Mayor and Mrs. Adam P. Leighton, and she was in every way a superior woman. In her native city she was prominent in society and very active with her mother in charitable work. Soon after her marriage she moved to this city, they having settled for a time in Rochester, coming here from that city. Here she was an active member of the Congregational church and interested in other good work, and was a director of the Girl's club. She was a devoted wife and mother for she leaves two charming little girls, Isadore and Emily.

WENDELL LEAD

WELL KNOWN SUMMER RESIDENT OF THIS CITY DIES FROM PNEUMONIA

Mr. Wendell, the actor who was to have made his Metropolitan debut as a star at the Astor Theatre Friday night, died early Saturday morning at his home in East Thirty-fifth street, New York, of pneumonia.

Mr. Wendell was first seized with a attack of the grip last Tuesday at Trenton, N. J., where a preliminary performance of his new play, "What the Doctor Ordered" was given. He went through his performance, however, but as the night wore on he grew worse, so that both performances for Wednesday were called off. He was taken to New York, where it was found pneumonia had developed, and for the last two days his condition had been most alarming.

Mr. Wendell was forty-six years of age and was born in New York. His father was Jacob Wendell, a commission merchant of New York, who died eleven of twelve years ago. He was a native of this city. His mother was a Miss Barrett of Boston. He was educated at Harvard and was graduated in the class of '91, and while at college he was interested in the work of the Hasly Pudding Club, often playing in its productions. He married Miss Marion Fendall of this city, who survives with two sons and two daughters. He had long had a taste for the stage and appeared in all of the leading amateur theatrical entertainments in New York, and has also been seen in this city, but it only was two years ago that he decided to adopt it as his profession, and he first became known to the theatre-going public through his connection with the New Theatre Company; and for the two years that that organization occupied the stage of the New Theatre in New York he frequently appeared in its plays.

CHURCH

WEDDING

PIERCE---HEFFENGER

NUPTIALS AT

NOON TODAY

MARRIAGE UNITES TWO OF PORT-MOUTH'S MOST PROMINENT FAMILIES

CEREMONY PERFORMED BY REV. AL-FRED GOODING---RECEPTION FOL-LOWED AT HOME OF BRIDE'S PARENTS ON AUSTIN STREET

"A contract of eternal bond of love, Confirmed by mutual joinder of your hands,

Strengthened by interchangement of your rings."

The Unitarian church, stately and majestic as the faith it expounds, has contained many brilliant assemblages to witness plightings, but as an idyl of elegance and lavishness, in celebration of one of the most notable wedding events that has occurred therein for years the Heffenger-Peirce nuptials at high noon today bears the palm. The prominence of the principals made this the long anticipated event, and the surroundings were in entire harmony with the positions of those concerned.

The contracting parties were Miss Constance Heffenger, the attractive daughter of Dr. Arthur C. Heffenger, U. S. N., retired and Asst. A. Surg. of Marine Hospital Service, and of Mrs. (Pickering) Heffenger, of Austin street, the groom being Joshua Winslow Peirce, the only son of Mrs.
Susan and the late Col. William Augustus Peirce, of Court street.

For many days the social circles of this and other cities had been in the qui vive, and considering that hundreds of invitations were sent out for the church ceremonies it can readily be understood that the links of relationship and of friendship as of real interest were as tenderly united as this May day was given to fairest skies. But an extremely few regrets were received out of this great host of invites, hence the handsome church was filled with a notable company, its component parts embracing about every prominent profession while society circles held an equally commanding place.

Into the hands of the Hannaford conservatories was given the decorations of the edifice, and hot house palms and flowers were in display.
Any attempt to describe in detail would scarce do justice to the scene at the church, so finely arranged for decorations, and on this occasion having a veritable beauty crowning.
Included was the banking of the platform with palms, lilies and hydrange and at the head of each aisle were arches of hemlock dotted with clusters of marguerites. The chandeliers were decorated with the same. At the family pews were bows of white satin ribbon.

From the very edge of the sidewalk to the vestibule of the church a canvas covered pavilion had been erected, the sheeted top and sides being adorned and a fine carpet placed for the flooring. Through this the bridal party and guests passed into and out of the church unobserved by the outsiders who had congregated in crowds.

Over an hour before the time set for the ceremony every coach in the city, together with private traps and other conveyances were taking the invited to the church for whom it was exclusively reserved. A knot of white ribbon upon the whip indicacated the service for which the carriage was employed.

The following were the ushers:
Mr. Stephen Decatur, Jr., of Kittery Point, Mr. Frederick Gooding, son of Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Gooding, of this city, a student at Harvard col-

CHURCH WEDDING

Mr. Ralph May of this city, three Dartmouth classmates, Mr. S. Proctor, a business consultant of the groom and Mr. Thomas Streeter, each of Boston, and Michael H. Batchelder of Keene, had a boutonniere of rose buds. During the incoming of the guests while awaiting the arrival of the chief actors in this high and solemn function the organist, Mr. Fred Gatecomb, rendered this recital: National March in G flat E. B. Smith
Melody Dr. Chas. Vincent in G Ford producing the hymn "The Voice of the Silent" Jensen
Song Tschackowsky
Cantabile in B flat
The entire into the church of the most bridal party was signalled by joyous strains of the ever beloved march from Lohengrin by Wagner, and as the procession slowed its way up the broad and central aisle toward the altar the music was one of inspiration. It was rendered as follows:

The bridesmaids entered the church from the robing rooms and proceeded down the broad aisle and the bridal party at the main entrance in pairs.

The bridesmaids by couples. The maid of honor. The bride escorted by her father. At the altar awaiting was the groom, attended by his best man, George N. Proctor, Jr., a business associate of the former. The groom's boutonniere was lilies of the valley, and that of his companion a rose bud.

The bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Richter, Miss Marion Hackett, Miss Bianca Cogswell, Miss Dorothy Foster, Portsmouth; Miss Mary Lowell, Boston; Miss Hilda Valentine, Grafton, Mass.

The maid of honor was Miss Priscilla Heffenger, sister.

The bride wore a white and gold wedding dress, and in the train were these and the bridesmaids.

The bridesmaids wore white satin with rose marquise, and the bride was distinguished by a white veil. She carried a shower bouquet of daisies and ferns. She wore a cap of silver cloth.

The bride, handsome and with a good figure, wore a chef d'oeuvre of the Boston modiste, a gown of heavy white satin trimmed with Duchesse lace, a train of cloth of silver and with a veil of delicate tulle caught with a pearl ornament. Her bouquet was in showers of orchids, lilies of the valley and adiantum.

The ceremony was touchingly pronounced by Rev. Alfred Gooding the pastor of the church and where the bride has been an attendant some time. In its impressive detail the ring was used. The organ recessional was "Midsummer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn.

The nuptials concluding, a reception followed at the home of the parents of the bride on Austin street. This was strictly confined to the nearest young friends of the wedded pair and to them invitations were sent forth, sufficient indeed to well fill the spacious mansion, for acceptances were the rule rather than the exception.

While elaborate details in decorations were not attempted at the mansion yet the floral and verdure adornings were handsome because not over profuse, and their fragrance seemed to bear aloft the intuition prayers of the guests present.

The reception was a brilliant function and encompassed by the most soulful of wishes for the bride and her bridegroom. An orchestra added charms to the occasion.

Cook of Boston catered the reception, and the bride and groom left their establishment.

Relationship and friendship were profuse, and the bride and groom embraced what Shelley so aptly said was "heart content."

Mr. and Mrs. Peirce at last quietly slipped away, and prepared for their extended journey as they left the residence to be absent for several weeks in enjoyment of the same.

Their points of destination we are not at liberty to divulge, but suffice, that on their return they will take the train for Kittery Point.

The Time makes no effort to give a list of the guests present at the wedding and the reception following; sufficient to the number was large and representative.

On Thursday evening the bride and groom gave a dinner to the young ladies of the church and the young men of the church.

The bride and groom gave a stag party to the young men of the church, and the bride and groom gave a stag party to the young men of the church.

ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

A very prominent wedding in Portsmouth, N.H., May 6, 1911, in the Unitarian Church, was that of Miss Constance Heffenger, daughter of P.A. Surg. Arthur C. Heffenger, U.S.N., retired, to Mr. Joshua Winslow Peirce. The church was most elaborately decorated, hothouse flowers and palms being among them. Incident to the ceremony a fine musical program was rendered, including the march from "Lohengrin." The bride was escorted by her father, and at the altar awaiting was the groom, attended by his best man, George N. Proctor, Jr., a business associate of the former. The groom's boutonniere was lilies of the valley, and that of his companion a rosebud. The bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Richter, Miss Marion Hackett, Miss Bianca Cogswell, Miss Dorothy Foster, Portsmouth; Miss Mary Lowell, Boston; Miss Hilda Valentine, Grafton, Mass. The maid of honor was Miss Priscilla Heffenger, sister. The bride wore a chef d'oeuvre of the Boston modiste, a gown of heavy white satin trimmed with duchesse lace, a train of cloth of silver and with a veil of delicate tulle caught with a pearl ornament. Her bouquet was in showers of orchids, lilies of the valley and adiantum. The ceremony was pronounced by Rev. Alfred Gooding, the pastor of the church, and the bride has been an attendant for some time. In its impressive detail the ring ceremony was used. The organ recessional was "Midsummer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn. The nuptials concluded, a reception followed at the spacious home of the parents of the bride on Austin street, confined to the nearest young friends of the wedded pair. While elaborate details in decorations were not attempted at the mansion, yet the floral and verdure adornings were handsome. The reception was encompassed by the most soulful of wishes for the bride and her bridegroom. An orchestra added charms to the occasion. After the honeymoon the bride and groom will take the leased Preston cottage for a point of view summer.

Following the Peirce-Heffenger wedding on May 6, a dance was given in the ordnance building at the Portsmouth Navy Yard by Lieut. Comdr. R. K. Crank, commanding the U.S.S. Wisconsin. It was pronounced to be the most successful and enjoyable dance of the season. Practically all of the wedding party and many of the officers of the navy yard and of the ships there and their ladies attended. After the dance the entire company dined at the Wisconsin for supper.

As Yvonne innocently describes to Edward the dancing lesson which she saw Lulu giving to Leonard, Edward for the first time realizes that Lulu and Leonard have been using their cloak to cover their lovemaking. Every detail that she innocently pictures to Edward arouses his jealous ire. He determines to renounce Lulu. Yvonne's dancing first attracts, then fascinates him.

Yvonne's love for Edward has been but the delight of a child with a new plaything. It is not until she has seen Edward kiss Lulu that the woman in her awakens. Now, for the first time she feels the pangs of jealousy. Yvonne's heart runs the gamut of suspicion, accusation, hate, despair. Finally the notes of the dance that first called forth her love cause her to relent and forgive. For a moment the coquetry of the girl asserts itself again in her chase after a butterfly. It is only pretense, for in her heart she feels the glowing of a new love. It hears the call of her mate and responds in Yvonne's first kiss.

NOON WEDDING

QUET CEREMONY AT CATHOLIC CHURCH RECTORY

Mr. Harrington is Assistant Naval Constructor Now on Duty at this Yard

At high noon today at the rectory of the Church of the Immaculate Conception occurred the wedding of Miss Blanca Cogswell of Livermore street, only daughter of Mrs. and the late Rear Admiral James K. Cogswell, USN, retired, and Assistant Naval Constructor Charles Anthony Harrington, USN, stationed at the Portsmouth navy yard.

The ceremony was impressively pronounced by Rev. Edward J. Walsh, P. R.

The bride was attended by Miss Dorothy Foster of this city as maid of honor. Her dress was a blue tailor-made suit. Her bouquet was Madam Chatney roses and adiantum tied with pink ribbon.

The best man was Mr. Francis Croston also of Portsmouth.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother and at which were present only young friends of the contracting couple. Whitman's orchestra furnished the music.

The residence was artistically decorated with daybreak asters, white Killarney roses, salvia, Bonfire and greenery from the Hannaford conservatory.

The catering was by Cook of Boston. The bride's cake, a rich compounding of her friend, Miss Helen I. Tilton, the artist, contained the conventional ring, thimble and sixpence. The wedding cake was distributed in boxes.

The bridal tributes were many and rich and in happiest attestation and dedication to one of Portsmouth's fairest daughters.

At the conclusion of the trip Assistant Naval Constructor and Mrs. Harrington will take residence at No. 32 Livermore street.

On Friday last the officers of the USS Montana gave the couple a complimentary dinner and at which there were sixteen plates.

WEDDING

THIS NOON AT ST. JOHNS

Venerable St. John's church was at high noon today the scene of a quiet but most impressive marriage in society circles and witnessed by only the immediate families.

The contracting parties were Miss Anna March Shackford, daughter of the late Captain William G. Shackford and Mrs. Josephine (March) Shackford, the latter a native of Portsmouth, to Mr. Edward Fleetford Sise of Montreal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Sise of the Canadian metropolis, his father being also a native of this city.

The wedding party came in to the rich strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohrengrin, rendered on the organ by Mrs. G. M. Hill, the organist.

The bride, who wore her traveling dress of blue cloth trimmed with black braid, a black velvet hat with white plumes, and carrying a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids, entered the church on the arm of her oldest brother, William Moore Shackford of Highwood, N. J. They met the groom and his best man, Mr. John Watson of Montreal, at the altar.

Rev. Harold M. Folsom, the rector, pronounced the ceremony.

Following the service ceremonies were taken for the Rockingham hotel where a wedding breakfast was served in the magnificent bridal suite at half after twelve o'clock.

Among those present were Lieutenant Commander Chauncey Shackford, U. S. N., attached to the U. S. S. South Carolina, who was naval aide at the White House during President Roosevelt's administration; and Mr. William M. Shackford and wife, brothers of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Sise, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Sise, Jr., of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Nash of Quebec, Col. and Mrs. William H. Kell, Washington, D. C.

The couple will after an extended wedding tour take residence in Mon-

Ensign Charles E. Hovey, U. S. Ensign Hovey entered the Naval Academy from New Hampshire in May, 1903, and graduated well up in his class in 1907, being promoted to ensign two years later. He was first assigned to duty on the battleship Ohio, with which he made the world cruise of the battleship fleet. After the return of the fleet and his having reached his ensign's grade he was transferred to the battleship Idaho, where he remained until his transfer to the Pampanga in the Philippines about a year later. A mother living in Portsmouth and four sisters survive him. The sisters are Miss Sallie Hovey, Mrs. William M. Seabury, of New York; Mrs. Kautz, wife of Lieutenant Commander A. Kautz, U. S. ANDOVER'S 1911 TEAM LIVES UP TO TRADITION

Repeats Successes of Former Elevens By Defeating Exeter 23 to 5 in Annual Game—Mahan is the Star.

By JOHN J. HALLAHAN.
EXETER, Nov. 11.—It is the same old story. Andover's football warriors, who for half a dozen years have swept aside Exeter's forces on the gridiron like so much paper, repeated their successes this afternoon by defeating an eleven that Exeter's student body and followers believed was sure to stem the tide of defeats. A crowd of 8000 persons gathered on Plimpton field to see the contest. The score was 23 to 5. It was a victory of an aggregation of clever players, among whom was one star of wonderful ability. It was a win of a team which came up to the objective in top form, something which could not be said of the Exonians, who, driven to desperation, tried every means within their power to stave off defeat. They were not there, is the simplest way of expressing their showing, while the wearers of the blue handled themselves in the same high class fashion as their predecessors of former years. Andover's total of points represents four touchdowns, one of which was made in the second period, one in the third and two in the fourth quarters, from which three goals were kicked, while Exeter's lone touchdown came as a result of a blocked kick in the last minute of play.

It was said before the clash that Andover was a one-man team. While this in a measure was borne out, there were several stars on the blue team, although, as a year ago, "Ned" Mahan, the pride of Natick, was the most sensational. No player who has sported the colors of the famous Massachusetts institution ever gave as fine an exhibition of running back-kicks as did Mahan. His dashes were many and he ran around the Exeter ends as if they were posts, a dash of 85 yards for the first score coming late in the second quarter and at a time when Exeter's enthusiasts felt that the first half would end with no score. This dazzling piece of work, aided by some wonderful interference by Capt. Van Brocklin and Brann, was made only after Mahan had, on several trials, run back punts for distances of 15 to 40 yards. Again in the third period Mahan tucked the ball away under his arm on receiving a punt on Andover's 50-yard line, dashed through and around the Exeter players, and, after using the straight arm to perfection, got clear, only to be brought down by Batten, the Exeter full-back, on Exeter's 5-yard line. Two plays were tried with Gault and Neilson carrying the ball, but it remained for Mahan to carry the ball over.

The third touchdown was made possible when Bob Jones broke through on Savage, who on a fake kick attempted to skirt Andover's right wing. Jones tackled him so hard that he fumbled the ball. Roberts, Andover's other tackle, being on the alert, scampered after the ball, and, picking it up on Exeter's 30-yard line, raced over for the third score. Bob Jones was the player who made the last touchdown possible. He grabbed a fumbled ball on his own 25-yard line, and in his lumbering gait raced 30 yards to Exeter's five-yard line, where he was brought down from behind. Two plays brought the ball nearer the goal, after which Quarter-back Thompson squeezed his way through the middle of the distance necessary for a touchdown.

Exeter's touchdown came in the last few minutes of play. Mahan went back to kick. He was slow in getting himself in readiness, and like a catapult Gilman, who had relieved Neal at left guard, broke through and blocked the ball. The leather rolled toward the Andover goal, and in the race which followed between Mahan and Gilman the latter managed to fall on it under the cross-bar, saving Exeter from greater humiliation.

Retired Lieutenant of U.S. Navy Married to Miss Winifred Knowlton

Miss Winifred Knowlton, daughter of Mrs. Henry Todd Knowlton, and Lieut. Robert Wilsie Spofford, U. S. N., retired, were married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Heavenly Rest. The Rev. Herbert Shipman, rector of the church, performed the ceremony.

The bride walked down the aisle with her brother, Randolph Knowlton. Her mother gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of white satin, trimmed with lace, and a point lace veil, and carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Her sister, Miss Edith Knowlton, was maid of honor, and wore white chiffon over gold-colored satin. The bridesmaids were the Misses Julie Smith, Mildred Boody, Helen Kelley, and Emeline Dwyer. They wore gowns of pale yellow chiffon over pink satin. They, as well as the maid of honor, carried pink chrysanthemums. The ushers were Donald Stewart, Lieut. Arthur L. Bristol, Jr., De Ver C. Warren, and Lieut. John H. Wilcox.

A small reception was held afterwards in the apartments of the bride's mother at the Hotel Schuyler. Van Baar's orchestra played.

MILITARY FUNERAL FOR ENSIGN HOVEY U. S. N.

Mortuary rites for Ensign Charles Emerson Hovey, U. S. N., son of Louise Folsom Hovey and the late Rev. Henry Emerson Hovey, and who was killed by a band of outlaw Moros on Sept. 24 at Basilan Island, in the Philippines, took place at 11 o'clock this forenoon at St. John's church of which his father was rector for over a quarter of a century.

The attendance was quite large. Full military honors were given and a company of sailors led by the naval band escorted the funeral cortege from the residence to the church. Sailors conveyed the body into the church.

Bishop Niles conducted the services which were of a most impressive character.

The choir of the church was assisted by the Unitarian quartet. The following selections were rendered: "Rise, Crown With Light," "The Saints of God, Their Conflicts Passed," and "O Paradise."

The sealed casket was enclosed in a cedar box and this was covered with the American flag and buried with him in St. John's churchyard by the side of his devoted father. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Eight sailors carried the body from the church to its last resting place.

On the casket was a large cross of white roses which reached its entire length, while the cap and sword of the young hero rested on that emblem.

Lieut. Harry G. Bartlett, U. S. M. C. was in charge of the funeral line and the following officers acted as pall bearers:

- Surgeon Charles G. Smith, U. S. N.
- Assistant Paymaster Manning H. Philbrick, U. S. N.
- Second Lieutenant Randolph C. Zane, U. S. M. C.
- Ensign Boyce K. Muir, U. S. N.
- Ensign Rufus King, U. S. N.
- Ensign Richard B. Coffman, U. S. N.

The pall bearers and all officers wore the mourning badge on the left arm and on the sword hilt.

Ensign Hovey was an only son and born in Portsmouth, January 10 1885. He was educated in the public schools here and in Holderness school at Plymouth, N. H., and later attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1902. He entered the Naval Academy in 1903 and graduated "with credit." He was president of the Academy Young Men's Christian Association.

Ensign Hovey was on the U. S. S. Ohio in the famous "World Cruise." In April, 1910, he sailed on the U. S. S. New York for the Asiatic station, cruising around China and Japan, during which time he climbed Fujiyama. He was transferred to the U. S. S. Mindoro in October, 1910, and to the U. S. S. Pampanga in April, 1911.

Ensign Hovey was a member of the Delta Psi Fraternity, the New York Yacht club and the Lambs' club of New York and the Racquet club of Philadelphia. He had been proposed as a member of the Royal Geographical Society, London. He was the author of "Watch Officer's Manual, United States Navy."

He is survived by his mother and four sisters, Miss Sallie Hovey, Mrs. Seabury, wife of William M. Seabury of New York; Mrs. Kautz, wife of Lieutenant Commander Austin Kautz, U. S. N., and Mrs. Klyce, wife of Lieutenant Scudder Klyce, U. S. N., now in Europe with her invalid husband who is on six months leave of absence.

O. W. Ham was funeral director.

TELLS HOW ENSIGN HOVEY WAS SLAIN IN PHILIPPINES

Acting Yeoman of the Gunboat Pampanga Sends a Vivid Account of Clash with Malayan Natives in Which Eight Men Killed

Details of the killing of Ensign Charles E. Hovey, USN, in the Philippine Islands, September 24, have been received from James T. Mason, acting yeoman on the gunboat Pampanga, to which Ensign Hovey was attached. In a cable despatch at the time of his death the Times printed the fact that Ensign Hovey had been killed by Yacans, of a Malayan tribe, while on an exploring expedition, but Mr. Mason gives this vivid account:—

Camp Tablas, Island of Basilan, P. I., Sept. 25.—Ensign Hovey left his camp at about half past three a. m., yesterday to act in conjunction with Lieutenant A. Cody in the capture of the outlaw Mundang. He had with him a Yacan guide; Nisperas, a private of the Thirty-fourth Company Philippine Scouts, as interpreter, and these men of his own detachment;—J. Voltz, carpenter's mate, third class; F. H. McGuire, hospital apprentice; B. R. Harrison, seaman; J. H. Catherwood, ordinary seaman, and Hennechen, private.

At about six o'clock a. m., the guide discovered several shacks, or nepi houses, ahead and near the trail. This was the rancheria of Lapurap. Ensign Hovey went forward with the guide and the scout soldier to reconnoitre, leaving Voltz, Harrison, Catherwood and McGuire on the trail about three hundred yards to the rear.

Ensign Hovey then sent the guard back and ordered McGuire, Hennechen and Catherwood to take station within one hundred yards of the houses and to allow no one to get past them. Ensign Hovey then went up to the houses, accompanied by the guide, the scout soldier and Catherwood.

Before they reached the houses this party went off the trail, as if in search of something. They then retraced their steps and halted in front of the houses. Ensign Hovey had men. There were no weapons among the attacking Moros, all being dead.

A guard was placed of Ensign Hovey and the men were carried to the shore.

The loss on our side was Ensign C. E. Hovey, terribly cut up.

J. H. Catherwood, times with bolo and spear. F. H. McGuire, spear arm.

G. F. Hennechen, right hand and left arm.

The Scout soldier shot off above the elbow.

The Moro guide, Maisin, killed.

The enemy lost six wounded, the later of which were killed.

Friendly Moros put back in a box.

Dear PATRIOT:—

Desiring a further discussion of woman suffrage before coming to a final decision upon the subject, I have been disappointed by the position taken in last night's letter to the PATRIOT that "it seems rather too bad that at this late date—there should arise any among us who are willing to take the responsibility of raising a hand to stay the progress that the suffrage workers of the state have made. This pathetic wail against the expression of the views of the opposition is a somewhat novel situation in politics. Under the masculine regime it has generally been customary to try to answer opponent's argument rather than to muzzle their mouths. Is the cause so sacred that it is lese majeste to oppose it or is it so weak that the raising of a hand will stay it?"

The hand which has been raised is apparently that of a minister of the gospel. The situation reminds us of Moses and the Amalekites. "And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand that Israel prevailed; and when he let down his hand Amalek prevailed." Exodus chap. 17, verse 11. More profane but somewhat similar is the idea suggested by Casey at the bat with slight variations to apply to the opposition to woman suffrage. 'Tis likely they'd have killed it, had not Leavitt raised his hand.

Nor does the doctrine that since woman suffrage is bound ultimately to come, no one ought to oppose it, seem especially impressive. Predestination is a doctrine of the Mohammedans—a class of people who give women very few rights. We are also bound ultimately to die. Should we therefore all commit suicide forthwith, thereby reversing New Hampshire's splendid record for 1910 during which we had a lower percentage of suicides than any other state except Maine? It might be better to try to preserve our health as long as possible. Physical like political suicide may be a trifle premature.

In view of the approaching Constitutional Convention, the arguments against as well as in favor of woman suffrage ought to be given equal publicity, so that the voters can have ample opportunity to hear both sides of the question before coming to a final decision. Whatever the Constitutional convention may do it probably will not recommend any restriction of the liberty of the press or freedom of speech. I therefore venture to hope that Mr. Leavitt will continue to "take the responsibility of raising a hand." If the cause of the suffragists is righteous his unrighteous attack is not likely to harm it, and his hands will probably become heavy long before the going down of the sun. When the anti-suffragists have established their right to freedom of speech, it would be interesting to hear them discuss some of the arguments in last night's letter—particularly now far the extension of suffrage and the qualifications therefor should be based upon a policy of advertising the state or of inducing an influx of feminine immigrants from the surplus female population of Massachusetts.

Yours for freedom of discussion,
An Unenlightened Voter.

ARE THEY MISTAKEN?

EDITOR PATRIOT:

It seems rather too bad that at this late date when New Hampshire ought to do her women the great honor of granting them equal suffrage rights, when New Hampshire could easily lead the other Eastern states in great reform that even its bitterest opponents agree is bound to come there should arise any among us who are willing to take the responsibility of raising a hand to stay the progress that the suffrage workers of the state have made. The State Grange has already endorsed our resolution, the Central Labor Union are sending its delegates instructed to vote for our amendment great concessions have been received from some of the largest corporations in the state to hold meetings for their employees and fully instruct them in this matter. It might be well to state here that some of the most highly respected, conservative women in the city and state are joining our associations. One of the most prominent business men in the state has said that the time is not only ripe to grant equal suffrage rights but if it is done it will do more to advertise New Hampshire all over the United States than any other one thing that has been done or could be done by the Old Granite state.

In repeating this to a Massachusetts woman who pays something like two thousand dollars a year in taxes she replied, "I believe if it were done many Massachusetts families who have long believed in suffrage for women would move over into New Hampshire and pay their taxes there. For one I think I should do it."

We hope that those good women and men who are willing to take so grave a responsibility as to try to stop this forward, democratic movement will realize that they are putting themselves in line and on record with all the anti-social forces most certainly with the vicious interests who have always been opposed to equal suffrage and who have spent thousands of dollars to back up their opposition.

I write this that everyone may know fully with what people, and what interests they are, we hope, unconsciously working.

Her veil of Brussels lace was fastened with a sprig of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Carlotta Wales was her only attendant. Ensign Franklin P. GOV. ROBERT P. BASS

WELCOME TO THE GOVERNOR'S BRIDE

Brilliant Reception Was Held in Concord

MORE THAN 600 PRESENT

Mrs. Bass Was the Cynosure of All Eyes Last Night.

The Reception.

It was nearly 9 o'clock before a sufficient number of guests had arrived to start the general reception. At 8:45, Governor and Mrs. Bass received the members of the personal staff and their ladies, and fifteen minutes afterwards the ushers and their ladies were received by the chief executive and Mrs. Bass. Following this, the 600 or more guests marched through the canopied arch which connected the Auditorium with the armory and were there received by the ushers and introduced to the receiving party.

As the throng of men and beautifully-gowned women stood conversing on the floor and in the balconies of the Auditorium, previous to the reception, it was then that the full significance of the brilliancy of the party dawned upon one. There led from the floor of the Auditorium, which was undecorated except for a row of evergreen trees in front of and along the sides of the hall, a wide flight of stairs ascending to the stage. The platform was hidden from view by great red velvet curtains, which were drawn apart at 9 o'clock, disclosing a wide and brightly lighted hallway which led to the armory, where the reception was held.

Along this hallway, as noted above, passed the many guests and all were seemingly impressed by the beauty of the armory decorations. The color scheme was green and pink. The trussed roof of the building was entirely hidden by bowers of hanging southern smilax, through which peeped lighted electric roses of pink. Nearly 200 of these electric lamps were used, making a mellow light which added to the charm of the scene. The walls were covered with pink hangings and festooned with evergreen, scattered through which were the pink rose lights.

A large evergreen arch, electrically lighted, was the central decoration of the extreme west wall. On either side were built two smaller arches. In front of the large green arch, on an elegant tapestry carpet, stood the receiving party made up of the following: His Excellency Robert P. Bass and Mrs. Bass; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bird, East Walpole, Mass.; Brig. Gen. Herbert E. Tuthery, the adjutant general, chief of staff, Claremont; Maj. Chauncey B. Hoyt, Coast artillery corps, aide-de-camp, Portsmouth; Maj. E. Bertram Pike, aide-de-camp, and Mrs. Pike; Maj. Harold H. Blake, aide-de-camp, and Mrs. Blake, Concord; Maj. Robert P. Johnston, aide-de-camp, and Mrs. Johnston, Manchester; Maj. Ralph G. Carpenter, aide-de-camp, and Mrs. Carpenter, Wolfeboro; Capt. Orville E. Cain, Company H, First infantry, aide-de-camp, and Mrs. Cain, Keene; Capt. Charles W. Jellison, Troop A, cavalry, aide-de-camp, and Mrs. Jellison, Peterborough; First Lieut. Henry A. Worthen, Battery A, Field artillery, aide-de-camp, and Mrs. Worthen, Manchester.

Mrs. Bass, who is a beautiful type of brunette, was radiant in a Parisian model from Worth's of white Limerick lace over pale yellow satin. The skirt, which was cut en train and was enlivened here and there by elegant ornaments of silver with a bodice of silver tissue. Her jewel was a pearl necklace.

During the reception Nevers's Second Regiment orchestra rendered selections in the orchestra gallery at the east of the hall, while a section of the orchestra played in the pit of the auditorium.

The following gentlemen acted as ushers: Allen Hollis, Concord, head usher; James R. Erwin, Concord; B. H. Hinman, Berlin; Robert E. Faulkner, Keene; Col. Winston Churchill, Cornish; Dr. Wm. M. Staples, Franklin; Col. William R. Rotch, Milford; Willis McDuffee, Manchester; Sydney H. Stevens, Somersworth; William E. Caldwell, Peterborough; John B. Jameson, Antrim; Col. W. R. Brown, Berlin; Hovey E. Slayton, Manchester; Arthur E. Dole, William D. Chandler, William W. Thayer, Col. Harley B. Roby, Robert W. Jackson, Joseph F. Walker, Benjamin W. Coulton, Thomas H. Wollahan, Edward N. Pearson, Maj. Arthur H. Chase, Maj. Eugene W. Leach, Concord; Sherman E. Burroughs, William Savacool, L. E. Wyman, Leonard G. Smith, Robert L. Manning, H. Ellis Straw, Harry G. Clough, Manchester; George A. Burge, Gen. Jason E. Tolles, Nashua; J. Duncan Upham, Frank H. Foster, Claremont; Dwight Hall, Dover; Lyford A. Merrow, Ossipee; Clarence E. Clough, Lebanon.

The Dancing Begins.

At the conclusion of the reception and at the pleasure of the governor the party began to dance and as is customary at a reception there were no cards.

Soon after the dancing had been inaugurated it was announced that lunch was served in the Auditorium and from that time until 1 o'clock the party was divided between the armory and the Auditorium.

The buffet lunch was served in the Auditorium by a well-known Boston caterer in charge of Oliver E. Pelren of the Eagle hotel of this city. The buffet was located in the center of the hall and was elaborately decorated, the center piece being a beautiful cake of huge proportions, ornamented with the initials of the bride and groom. All of the cakes and ices were also marked with the "B. B." monogram.

Arthur Dole was in charge of receiving guests at the hall while Adjutant General Tuthery and Secretary of State Pearson were in general charge of the entertaining, dancing and supper. The affair was brought to a close at 1 o'clock at which time the special train left the city for Manchester.

Special to The Union.

CONCORD, Feb. 19.—The most brilliant New Hampshire social gathering of the year was the reception given this evening in the armory by Governor and Mrs. Robert P. Bass. Private in nature, the event was held in order that an opportunity might be afforded Mrs. Bass to meet the representative people of the state, and the large attendance of the evening showed conclusively that New Hampshire was most eager to welcome the beautiful young wife of the state's chief executive.

Three buildings were used for the function, city hall, which contained the dressing and retiring rooms for both ladies and gentlemen; the Auditorium, used as a gathering hall previous to the reception, and as a banquet hall at the close of the dancing, and the armory, used for the reception and dancing.

The guests began to gather shortly after 8 o'clock, and from that time until 9 a string of carriages left their occupants at the canopied front door of city hall. The ushers and their ladies used the mayor's suite as a dressing room; the gentlemen's dressing room was the large committee room at the right of the main stairway, and the aide-mantele chamber was used as a general dressing room for the ladies. The governor, accompanied by Mrs. Bass, and the members of his personal staff with their wives, arrived at the armory shortly after 8 o'clock, and the officers' room was placed at the party's disposal as a retiring room.

MEETING IN OPPOSITION TO WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Enthusiastic Meeting at the Rockingham Hotel--Mrs. Barrett Wendell Presided.

There was a large and enthusiastic gathering at the Hotel Rockingham on Wednesday afternoon, to hear addresses opposed to the further extension of Suffrage to Women, and as a result of the meeting a society will be formed patterned after the Massachusetts Association Opposed to the Further Extension of Suffrage of Women. It will be known as the New Hampshire Association and a large membership is assured.

The meeting was called by Mrs. Barrett Wendell, wife of Prof. Barrett Wendell, who is a prominent member of the Massachusetts Association and in response to her invitation about 150 prominent women of this city, including, eight women from Exeter and several from Dover, gathered at the Hotel Rockingham in rooms five and six and heard some very able talks in opposition to Equal Suffrage. In the gathering were several men, including Mayor Badger and other prominent citizens.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Barrett Wendell and she explained the object of the meeting and the work that had been done in Massachusetts. She stated that in her opinion the work now being carried on by the women's clubs and civic associations were far more effective in bettering conditions than the granting of the ballot to women, on the ground that the ignorant vote would be strengthened for the intelligent women would after the newness wore off lose interest in the matter leaving it to the politician to take advantage of the other element.

The first speaker introduced by Mrs. Wendell was Mr. Charles Foxcroft of Cambridge, a prominent member of the Civil Service Society of that city and prominent in other municipal matters. Mr. Foxcroft delivered an interesting talk on the suffrage question and he was decidedly opposed to the extension of suffrage to women.

Miss Emily P. Bissell, a well known member of the Anti-Suffrage Society of Delaware, was the next speaker and she delivered a very interesting talk on the situation in Colorado, where the suffrage has been extended to the women, and she stated that the situation was bad. It had not been improved by the women's vote in fact conditions were worse than before.

Attorney William W. Thayer of Concord, made a very humorous address on the question and from an attorney's stand point disapproved of the claims made by the equal suffrage champions. On the ground that they were taxed without representation, he claimed that their argument also applied to children, they were in many cases property owners and did not have the ballot, nor did the unnaturalized citizen, no matter how much property he held.

Prof. Barrett Wendell of Harvard College in a scholarly manner set forth his views on the subject and he was followed by Hon. Wallace Hackett, former mayor of this city. Mr. Hackett has just returned from Colorado, the first state in the union to grant suffrage, and he told of some talks he had with prominent men of that state and their attitude in the matter. They as a rule were opposed to it and wished that it might be eliminated.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. Wendell asked that all who were in favor of forming a state league to remain and the greater number of the ladies stayed and a large number signed membership cards. Those who signed membership cards will meet at the home of Prof. Barrett Wendell at 38 Pleasant street, at eleven o'clock today when an organization will be perfected, which will be the foundation of the state association.

Miss Ena Ricks Voight was married to Lieut. Comdr. Chauncey Shackford, U.S.N., in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends at the home of her mother, Mrs. Robert Voight, in Norfolk, Va., April 27, 1912. The bride wore a Morris gown of heavy white duchesse satin, embroidered and trimmed in rare old lace. Her veil was surmounted by an orange blossom spray, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids. She was attended by her sisters, Misses Carrie and Annie Voight. The flower girls were Misses Virginia Lee and Ena Lee Parks. Miss Voight was given away by her brother, Mr. Ricks Stedman Voight, and Lieutenant Commander Shackford's best man was his brother, Mr. William M. Shackford, of New York. A brilliant reception followed. The house was profusely decorated with dogwood, lilies of the valley, bridal wreath, palms and ferns. The table was a work of art with its exquisite decorations of pale pink tulips and maidenhair forming a mound in the center, while at each end was a dainty basket with La France roses and a large hat with La France roses, all in spun candy. At one side a large torpedoboat of salmon and mayonnaise was emblematic of the Navy. A bride's cake was cut by the dainty bride, and Miss Julia Downer cut the ring. Among the guests present were Capt. and Mrs. Herman O. Stickney, Annapolis; Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Joseph Taussig, Washington; Admiral and Mrs. George Dewey, Washington; many of the officers and their families at Norfolk and several hundred civilians. Lieutenant Commander Shackford and his bride left for a Northern tour amid a shower of blessings and rice.

Dear Rosa,

CUPID CAPTURES LIEUTENANT ORDERED TO CUBA

With the Cuban war scare comes a love romance concerning Lieut. Joseph Charles Fegan, U. S. M. C., lately detached from this naval reservation. Lieutenant Fegan is now attached to the battleship Florida, which is awaiting orders to sail for the southern republic, and his fiancée, with visions of bloody conflict on the island, announces his engagement prior to their departure. Several telegrams were clicked from this city, bearing messages of congratulations to the marine officer.

Adelaide Loring Mitchell of Portland, is a descendant of a famous Massachusetts family, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Albert Mitchell of Park street, Portland. She is a graduate of Portland high school, and is now completing her education in the private school of Dr. Dudley Sargent at Cambridge, Mass. She and her sister, Mrs. James Goodwin Johnson, with whom she is domiciled at Boston, are noted for their brilliancy and beauty.

Lieutenant Fegan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Fegan of Dallas, Texas. He was stationed several months at the naval prison at the Portsmouth navy yard under Major Harry Leonard, U. S. M. C. the famous naval lawyer, who recently retired from the service to engage in the practice of law. Lieutenant Fegan is a member of Portsmouth lodge, B. P. O. E., and of the Warwick club.

The engagement was announced yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Mitchell at a tea given in honor of her sister at the Vendome in Boston. Mrs. Mitchell was assisted in her arrangements by Gertrude Lyle of Hackensack, N. J., Helen Bowker of Cambridge, Caro Coburn of Boston, Margaret Catty of Reading, Agnes O'Connor of New York, Phyllis Cunningham of Wellesley Hills, Sarah Porter of Portland, Me., and Theresa Dowd of Brookline.

Thursday, June Twentieth Ten to Six O'clock.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place Monday afternoon, June 3, 1912, at five o'clock, at the residence of the bride's mother in Olney road, Norfolk, Va., when Miss Elizabeth Virginia Scott, daughter of the late Dr. J. E. Scott and Mrs. Scott, became the bride of Ensign Freeland Allen Daubin, U.S.N. Rev. D. W. Howard, of St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal Church, performed the ceremony under an improvised altar of plants, ferns and cathedral candles. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Edgar Scott, of Washington, and was beautifully gowned in an ivory satin hand embroidered robe, her veil being caught with a coronet of orange blossoms. In her arms she carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Scott was attended by her sister, Miss Bertha Scott, who wore a frock of chiffon over yellow, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and mignonette. Ensign Cummings L. Lothrop was best man, and he and the groom wore full dress uniform. After a small reception Ensign and Mrs. Daubin left for Lake George, and will be at home after July 1 at Portsmouth, N.H. Miss Scott is one of the most popular of the younger set of Norfolk. Ensign Daubin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Daubin, of Missouri.

WHERE THE WEST BEGINS
 Out where the handclasp's a little stronger,
 Out where a smile dwells a little longer,
 That's where the West begins.
 Out where the sun is a little brighter,
 Where the snows that fall are a trifle
 whiter,
 Where the bonds of home are a wee bit
 tighter,
 That's where the West begins.
 Out where the skies are a trifle bluer,
 Out where friendship's a little truer,
 That's where the West begins.
 Out where a fresher breeze is blowing,
 Where there's laughter in every stream-let flowing,
 Where there's more of reaping and less of sowing—
 That's where the West begins.
 Out where the world is in the making,
 Where fewer hearts with despair are aching—
 That's where the West begins;
 Where there's more of singing and less of sighing,
 Where there's more of giving and less
 of buying,
 And a man makes friends without half trying—
 That's where the West begins.

SCENE FROM "THE QUAKER GIRL"

Colonial Theatre

THE most enjoyable musical play that was seen in New York last season was "The Quaker Girl" which is now playing at the Colonial Theatre. That clean, attractive and unbanal entertainment opened its second season after an all-season run in New York and a summer run in Chicago, with a cast that includes Ina Claire, Percival Knight and the other members of the original cast.

The story of "The Quaker Girl" begins in an English country village. Prudence, a Quaker belle, has so far forgotten customs and manners as to be caught drinking a glass of champagne at the wedding breakfast. She is cast off by her people, and can do nothing but accept the invitation of good-hearted Mme. Blum, a Parisian dressmaker, who takes her to work in her shop. Here, Tony Chute's flame, an actress, tries to humiliate the Quaker girl, but comes out second best in the duel of wits, though eventually the little maiden is cast down, because she is obliged to accept a prince's invitation to come to his ball. The result is that Tony is furious and runs away from her—until the last act, when, after a gorgeously effective scene of ball at the Pre Catalan, with a play of millinery and furbelows on the lawn, he discovers that Prudence had to be nice to the prince or see her friend arrested by the police. The end is obvious.

Words and music of "Get Away, I'm a Married Man" by Clifton Crawford Words and music of "Sweethearts Again" by Augustus Barratt recognized at once as May Vokes, meanders on and more plot is unfolded. The Princess Mathilde has been exiled from Paris, and is to marry Capt. Charteris that day and a certain Tony Chute, attache to the American embassy in Paris is expected as best man. Tony is a gay young pet of the boulevards, but still heart whole and carefree. He arrives almost before Phoebe has finished her story and one recognizes with difficulty our old friend Percival Knight; for his last appearance on the Colonial stage was as the jockey "always merry and bright" in "The Arcadians" and it seems difficult to place him as the dandy immaculate from the Paris cafes, Tony Chute! Tony is with a voluble Parisian modiste, Mme. Blum, played with spirit andunction by Maisie Gay a London favorite. After depositing a ton or so of her impedimenta, he strolls about evidently in search of distraction—feminine preferred. The music suddenly takes on a demure quiet strain, and a procession of simple Quaker folk, somberly garbed in brown, file by on their way to the meeting house, where they spend most of their time—that is, all but the last Quaker lassie, who turns to look at the young Parisian. Using his most approved Paris habits, he gestures and she hesitates, and is lost—the Quaker file has gone to the meeting house and she is left alone with Tony Chute.

This procrastinating Quaker lass is Ina Claire, the latest stage beauty to appear from nowhere and claim a lion's share of the Sunday magazine sections and dramatic pages. It had been heralded in advance that she was a second Edna May, and in a sense this was true. Her beauty is of the demure type and is set off admirably by the Quaker garb, although she is just as pretty in the final act in a frock with the unmistakable Parisian stamp upon it.

THATCHER'S LIGHTS

THE view of Thatcher's Island is taken from the piazza of the Turk's Head Inn. There are three islands,—Thatcher's, Straitsmouth and Milk—near this point, which attracted the attention of the English explorer, Capt. John Smith, in 1614. To these he gave the name of "The Three Turks' Heads," commemorating the slaying of three Turks in mortal combat. It is from this historical fact that the Turk's Head Inn takes its name. Thatcher's Island became the property of the Colonial Government in 1771. During that year two light-houses were erected on it and, since that time, these two lights have sent their warning to the ocean voyagers for a period of one hundred and forty years or more, except for a short time during the Revolutionary War, when the keepers were forcibly removed. These two lights are now first class.

AND IN RETURN, THE INHABITANTS OF OLD STRAWBERRY BANK AND THEIR NEIGHBORS FROM THE SURROUNDING TOWNS TO THE NUMBER OF 20,000 GAVE HIM A ROUSING WELCOME BY CROWDING INTO EVERY STREET, CHEERING HIS EVERY MOVE AND WAVING AMERICAN FLAGS BY THE THOUSANDS. THE PRESIDENT WAS GREATLY PLEASED BY THE RECEPTION AND HE RESPONDED FREQUENTLY TO THEIR APPLAUSE BY RAISING HIS HAT AND CASTING HIS SMILE TO THE RIGHT AND LEFT.

The President's stay in this city was limited to three hours and a half and during that time he did not have a minute to himself. But he enjoyed it and so did the crowd, and he must have carried away with him a feeling in his heart that the people of Portsmouth, regardless of their political faith, loved William H. Taft, the President of the United States.

It has been many years since Portsmouth has been called upon to entertain the chief executive of the nation, but she responded willingly to the task, and did herself proud. The entire program was carried out without a hitch and no accident of any sort occurred to mar the pleasure of the day. The occasion was in the nature of a holiday for Portsmouth, and during the three hours that the President was in the city the schools were closed and all business suspended. The downtown business blocks and many private residences were covered with bunting, with a picture of the President conspicuously displayed here and there and hundreds of flags flying from the roof tops. All gave evidence of Portsmouth's welcome to the chief magistrate of the nation. It was a strenuous three hours and a half for everybody, but the big, jolly, good natured crowd was patient, and the President's smile amply repaid them for the troubles and discomforts of the day.

At the Navy Yard.

With Captain J. C. Leonard, acting commandant of the navy yard, and his staff, Lieut. Comdr. J. D. Wainwright, Captain Bartlett, Captain Haywood, Pay Inspector Arms, Lieut. Comdr. Raymond Stone, Paymaster Woods, Dr. Bogan, Naval Constructor W. P. Robert, Lieut. Bass, Lieut. Rice, Paymaster Jordon, Civil Engineer Gregory and Lieut. Townsend standing attention on the left side of the gate of the navy yard bridge and two companies of marines on the right, presenting arms, commanded by Major J. C. Thrope, U. S. M. C., President William Howard Taft, chief executive of the United States, entered the yard at exactly 10.48 a. m. While the naval band was playing the "Star Spangled Banner," Captain Leonard and his staff moved forward when His Excellency's automobile came to a stop inside of the gate, and received their Chief.

The moment he entered the salute of twenty-one guns was fired at the command of Captain Leonard.

After shaking hands with the officers, he preceded the "Pilot car" occupied by Chief Boatswain W. L. Hill, who was appointed by Captain Leonard to act as pilot to the President.

The automobile followed by the remainder of the party, also in machines, proceeded to the commandant's house, arriving at 10.52.

His Excellency stayed but long enough to partake of a light refreshment, and to pay his respects to the ladies.

Gustave Charpentier, the composer of "Louise," is not only a musician of exceptional creative powers, but he is also a philanthropist — a philanthropist in art. He believes that art belongs to the people at large, that it came from the people and must return to them. It is to live and prosper, and if the people are to develop to their fullest potentiality. He maintains that art should be as free to all as is science, and it is to accomplish this that he has striven for many years. He has chosen, as his means of accomplishing this effectual popularizing of art, the organizing of fêtes, at which some young girl is crowned Muse of the fête, she being chosen by her associates. It is this kind of fête which he introduces in the third act of "Louise." He thus outlines his plan: "What I propose is a fête of the muses, a popular fête in the true sense of the word. Wherever I have organized fêtes, at Paris or in the Provinces, I have beheld the sentiment of the crowd reveal itself as powerfully artistic and powerfully inspiring. An inspiration passes from the muse to her companions, to her family, to her friends, to the entire population of a city; a profound impression, salutary and fruitful, remains graven on their hearts. The muse is the personification of the people, the glorification of work by its own workmen in all it contains which is human, amiable, smiling, and ideal. The muse symbolizes the idea which makes it possible for the humble to feel the nobility of daily labor.

"To attain this result, perfect communion of the muse with the throng is necessary. It is needful that she should come from the ranks of the toilers, and that, her rôle terminated, she should re-enter their ranks. She must be a genuine working girl and not a figurante.

"Louise" is the life of the working folk of Paris, and particularly of the working folk and artists who live on Montmartre, that "hill whereon is found all that is best and all that is worst in Paris." Charpentier himself tells of the inspiration which led to the creation of this, his masterpiece. He says: "In 'Louise' I have translated an epoch in my own existence. I have tried to make of Louise the youth of all us poets and artists; to depict the dreams and enthusiasms of our young manhood, when we dream of conquering the immense city and the heart of the girl who lives near by, and who now and then draws her window curtain to let pass a smile. 'Louise' is the real life of the little world of the humble, of the suffering, of the hard-working, of which most people get only the casual glance of the passer-by. It is the gaze of the envious riveted on the city of joy. I love this life which surrounds me, this life of the street and of the humble. I feel it profoundly lyric. At certain moments of great emotion I behold it traversed by lightning, by a mighty current of marvelous fairy-like beauty. I have tried to transfer this emotion to my art. I have not described (as the critics pretend). I have translated it into my own language,—music."
