ABOUT THE OTTERS

Now, now," sald Mother Otter, "we must all Lay attention." "Mother means," said one of the little Otters, "that we children must pay attention to her. She doesn't mean that she must pay attention to what we say."

"That is what mothers always mean, I think," said another wise little Otter.

But they could not talk any more now. ,Lessons had begun.

First of all there was the lesson of diving without splashing.

"Of course," said Mother Otter, when it is playtime you may dive "Eat the Eels From the Tail," Mother Otter Said.

and splash all you like. But you must also know how to dive without splashing so you can fool your enemy.'

So Mother Otter taught her children the diving-without-splashing lesson, which is as important a lesson in Otter school as spelling is in regular schools.

After they knew their lesson pretty well for the day Mother Otter taught them how to catch frogs and how to get off the frogs' skins after they were caught,

In Otter school that was as important as it is for people to learn how to use a fork and how bad it is to eat with a knife!

The next lesson was in eel eating. That was just as important a lesson in Otter school as reading or arith metic is in regular schools. "Children, Otter children," Mother Otter, "do this right. Eat the eels from the tail just as the trout must always be eaten from the head."

At first they found it as hard to do as you might find it to get an arithmetic sum right. But the lesson had to be learned.

Mother Otter was a strict teacher. She didn't allow any fooling.

Then they had a lesson in how to wander far from home and come back another way so as to deceive their enemies who might be trying to trace them home the way they had gone out.

They had a busy time with lessons, and then they took trips and learned to explore, to find out where the best rivers and banks were to be found, and how they could travel and what they could eat along the way.

They learned not to be too fussy about their food. "If you only ent a few things," said Mother Otter, "and those few things give out you will have trouble. So learn to eat many kinds of food and you will live long and get strength," They learned all their lessons well these smart young Otters, but every evening when lesson time was overfor Mother Otter was quite strong for night school-they played.

Such a-scrambling and a-tumbling and a-playing and a-scampering and a-frolic as there was, and Mother Otter loined in their play, too.

She didn't sit off and read and knit and say:

"Children, don't make such a noise. You tire my poor head."

No, she was just as fond of playing with them as she was of teaching them. And before they went to sleep Mother Otter sang them the Otters Bedtime Story-Song which goes like this to the accompaniment of a splashing sound:

Go to sleep, little Otters, my dears, Drive away all your fears, fears, fears. If you learn the Otters' wise ways, You'll live for days and days, And nights and nights and nights, So drive away your frights.

Go to sleep, little Otters, my dears, Play when you can, play drives away tears; And piaying makes you cheery, Keeps you from being weary, And when all is said and done, There's nothing just like fun! Go to sleep, little Otters, my dears, Go to sleep, little Otters, my dears. (Copyright.)

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS By H. IRVING KING

HORSE CHESTNUTS

WHEN you carry a horse chestnut in your pocket to cure or ward off rheumatism, it only shows that you have not quite outgrown the treeworship of your ancestors. That trees were the abode of supernatural beings, if not gods themselves, was a belief common to all our European progenitors and the lingering remnants of it are frequently found in modern superstitions. It existed in such strength even down to classical days that ancient Jupiter of the Roman capitol was nothing more nor less than an oak tree.

In those old days certain trees were supposed to exert a beneficent influence upon certain diseases. Thus the ash as a tree-god cured hernia and its leaves were a specific against the bite of serpents. In some parts of England today there is a custom of passing a child afflicted with congential hernia through the growing ash in expectation of a cure; and, there is a New England superstition that a snake will not crawl under an ash tree.

The chustnut tree god apparently specialized in rheumatism, for it was the true chestnut that was originally carried as a rheumatic antidote, and according to the American Folk-lore society, that custom is still "somewhat general in the United States." But in New England and the Middle West the horse chestnut is the thing: probably because it is called a chestnut, looks like a chestnut-especially like the chestnut of southern Europeand being larger than the true chestnut (Castanea) ought to be a more

"POET LAUREATE"

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

FROM our school days most of us have sensed romance in the title of "Poet Laurente," which is conferred upon only one poet in England to be held by him until his death, when the next Poet Laureate is chosen.

The term "Laureate" comes from "laurel" and the reference is to the old custom at the English universities of presenting those receiving degrees in poetry and rhetoric with a wreath of laurel. This was originally an ancient custom, the Greeks being known to have so crowned their popular

The title was first conferred in 1670. The early Poet Laureate was an officer in the greatly beloved king's household, whose business it was to compose an ode for the king's birthday and other important occasions. The modern title however is purely hon-

THE GRAF ZEPPELIN

THE successful flight of the Graf Zeppelin from the Statue of Liberty to Friedrichshafen, to Tokyo, to Los Angeles and back to New York records a new departure in air craft. It is too early to inquire about practical results from experiments of this nature. Suffice that such accomplishments are possible. The knowledge essential to driving the hugh ship is all the more wonderful when we consider that air craft is a comparatively new venture. The globe circling tour undoubtedly ranks first among scientific achievements of our age.

He possessed that, but of equal importance was his spirit of heroism which made him willing to risk even life itself in his efforts to realize a burning purpose. The successful flight of the Graf Zeppelln in her round the world cruise was due in no small part to that noble quality; the willingness to play a rendezvous with death in the effort to realize an ideal. Lack of safety was for many years the chief hindrance to the development of air craft. Commander Eckener has demonstrated that hazards due to storms and air currents can be overcome. The only impediment which at present needs to be overcome is the very high expense of flying. The average plane costs about seven thousand dollars. Before one can operate a plane he must become a licensed pilot. This requires a course of instruction continuing uninterrupted for about eight months, at the conclusion of which a license is granted which costs from four to five thousand dollars. When the cost of flying is reduced so that a man of moderate means can own a plane, it will become more popular and more extensively used for both business and pleasure. As the automobile succeeded the borse and wages, so airplanes are destined

Union City, N. J .- Mr. and Mrs. Emil Ihle of this city have been sentenced to terms in the penitentiary on charges of cruelty to children on orders of Angelo Stanton, acting chief of police. #### GIVE PLENTY OF ROOSTING PLACE

Pullets Need Room and Fresh Air to Develop Properly.

Give the pullets plenty of roosting space and encourage them to roost early, says L. M. Hurd of the New York State College of Agriculture. Roosting helps to prevent crowding and allows the individual chicken more freedom of action and better air. Uncrowded pullets make better growth.

Clean and disinfect the houses and supply them frequently with fresh litter. Shavings, oat straw, or sand make the best covering for the floor during the summer. When more than one house is in use take care that too many pullets do not form the habit of roosting in one building. The buildings should be at least 100 feet apart to help keep the birds evenly distributed. It is not advisable to try to house more than 125 growing pullets in one colony house.

Provide good ventilation on hot nights. In addition to the regular ventilators take out the glass sash in the front of the house. To prevent possible infestation from red mites paint the perches and side walls close by with carbolineum, or spray the colony houses several times during the sum mer with a mixture of equal parts of crude carbolic acld and kerosene.

When there are many hatches and several weeks difference in their ages, provide each batch with a separate range, or place the houses farther apart than for groups of the same age. Otherwise older pullets will annoy the young and prevent normal growth.

Fireless Cooker Good Idea for Egg Layers

Hens need warm water. It's cheaper for you to warm it on the fire than to make the hen warm it with ex pensive feed.

You can save lots of trouble by insulating the water pail. You can make a sort of fireless cooker by placing the drinking vessel in a box large enough to stuff two or three inches of straw, excelsior, or torn newspapers, packed tightly below and all around the vessel.

Keep the material dry by covering it with tin, fitted closely under the top rim of the pail, and sloped slightly to the outside of the box so the spill water will run off.

The water keeps warm several hours.

Pure-breds usually lay eggs that are more uniform in size, shape and color, and are more productive than mixed flocks. Hens should stand a lot of dry still cold, but not drafts. There should on discovery. Keep house dry, warm and well ventilated. The first rule in feeding the poultry flock in the winter is to be sure to feed plenty. Hens cannot lay in cold weather unless they have enough feed to keep them fat and thus have a surplus for making eggs. Squash and pumpkin make a good succulent feed for poultry, helping to keep the bowels in good condition. Increase the size of your poultry house to keep pace with the size of your flock. Poultry is not city bred

"If he doesn't want to tell us his name, and if he is going to make such a fuss about it," said Bright Eyes, "I don't care to know it."

"I'm just as good as any squirrel, and I don't like to see such silly pride and such crossness and such superior manners for no reason at all."

Bright Eyes began to run across a branch and Chippy Chappy followed, though he looked back at the third squirrel to see what he was going to "Come back, friends," called the third squirrel, "I won't act so proudly any more.

"But you know I come from the city. I'm not a country squirrel." "Now, squirrel," said Bright Eyes, severely, "I do not wish to hear any of this silly talk.

"You are no better than we are because you have come from the city. "I suppose you think because you lived in one of those parks that you are better than we are who have the great woods for our homes. "Well, you are not better. It doesn't make a scrap of difference where a creature is born or where a creature has been living. "Everything depends on the creature himself."

During this long lecture Chippy Chappy was looking at Bright Eyes with amazement and wonder. Bright Eyes was so brave and daring.

"Why," continued Bright Eyes, "If you were so proud about being in the city did you come to the country? You wanted to come to the beautiful country and the lovely scenery and you know you did.

So don't try to put on airs. You can't do that with us, young squirrel." "I was very foolish," the squirrel said, "and I do wish you'd forgive me. "I will tell you my name. It is

"I'll tell you the truth. I put on airs because I really, deep down, was a little bit shy."

Squirrel.

And off they all scampered, playing tag, having jumping matches, having the best time in the world!

Ensembles Liked for Autumn Wear

Silhouette With Lengthened Skirt, Higher Waistline; Furs Prominent.

When Jean Patou returned to Paris from a visit to this country several years ago, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, he proclaimed the ensemble as the ideal costume and the preference of Amer ican women, and this season's models are presenting in complete form the latest points in style. There is a new silhouette, with the lengthened skirts. higher waistline, in gowns; conts of various lengths, capes and the renais sance of old-style furs, lavishly used There are new and intriguing details of collar-the monk's cowl reversed and the deep-pointed gilet-also wide picturesque cuffs, all in new fabrics of exceptional beauty and a large array of colors. This up-to-the-minute ensemble includes all the accessorieshat, blouse, finings, gloves, footwear, even jewelry, in a picture of the chic outfit for all occasions.

A sports suit is worn in the morning. This is made of wool or silk. materials that are shown in a great variety of weave, light or heavy. The all-inclusive tweeds are in greatest demand, forming the basis of many different styles of the suit, tailored and semi-tailored, and introducing fashion possibilities in combination with other materials. The tendency the thinner. for fall, the lighter weight woolens. the crepes and the dull-finish silks in which some of the best known de signers are making ensembles for town and country. Among the novelties of this type is benulama, a rich fabric with deep pile and silky luster. It is sometimes printed in tweed patterns of quiet tones in the weight and quality of heavy crepe, ideal for autumn gowns in ensemble.

Heavier Woolens Are Used.

In suit ensembles for general wear the heavier woolens, the tweeds, the coverts and kashas in the different weaves from Rodier and from our do mestic mills are used combined some times with wool goods of another sort. In a model of American design coat and skirt are made of brown and beige tweed mixture, the blouse of finely woven beige wool fersey, which is used also to line the cont. A dis tinct novelty from a French house is shown in one of the reversible wool ens which are in favor this season The bodice and box-plaited skirt which are joined with stitching, are made of gray and black mixture and the seven eighths coat of plain gray cloth is lined with the mixed mate-

Some of the latest styles are shown In the details of this ensemble, the cont sleeves that flare to a sharp point below the elbow and narrow at the wrist are fastened with a large button of black caracul, and a band of the fur is sewed across the outer edge of the cloth and folded toward the front to form the collar. The blouse is finished at the neck with a stitched band and a unique how of black cire ribbon and white mousse line, and a narrow belt of black lac quered leather is worn at the normal waistline. Pockets, which are so much in demand in suits of the sports type, are concealed in the model under the top of two wide box plaits

Some of the new ensembles made of mixtures and plain colors and others of plain materials of two weaves and colors are original and entertaining. One rather outre model ts built on long, straight, mannish lines with the new scheme of wearing a belt tight about the waist and over the lacket. The material is turf tweed in a black and white mixture. The skirt is cut unusually long, with fullness to the knees, where it is joined in deep points to a flounce of un pressed plaits. The blouse of white wool jersey is finished at the neck with a plaited gilet of jersey, and the collarless jersey fits tightly over the hips and slants away sharply from the front on the lines of a man's cutaway coat.

An English Interpretation of this type of ensemble is a facket suit of navy blue wool jersey dotted with red, white and brown yarn. The skirt is laid in plaits that are stitched balf way to the hem, where they flare in bias form, and a short coat of plain blue cloth is lined with the Jersey A tuck-in blouse of white jersey has a tailored tie of blue and a blue belt stitched with white.

Black for Daytime Dress.

Black is the sensation of the hour in daytime dress, and marks the contrast between the sports suit and a more formal tailored costume. An en semble which is considered the very epitome of style is made of black broadcloth and trimmed with Persian lamb. The models vary but the lacket suit consisting of skirt, coat and over blouse or tuck in shirt and the one piece dress with a coat of the same cloth are equally modish. Worth makes a three-piece of black broad cloth, the skirt with inverted box plaits, the coat, short and heavily trimmed with Persian tamb which forms the collar, cuffs, and a wide band down each side of the front and around the bottom, shaped to curve upward in front. The bodice of this suit is of black marquisette beautiful ly embroidered in black floss and sil ver thread is worn over this skirt

Next to all'black are some ensem bles in black and white, and black with color, Phillips et Gaston who have ever been creators of costumes in dramatic contrasts of black and white, have brought out a stunning ensemble in black broadcloth. The skirt is box-plaited, the plaits attached to a flat hip yoke being inverted and stitched almost to the knees, where they are released to ripple several inches below. The jacket, bolero in shape and loose fitting, is heavily em broidered all in black, and just crosses the waistline that is swathed with a girdle of black satin. The blouse bodice of white chiffon is elaborated with black, white and metal embroid ery and the coat is a straight, three quarter model with straight sleeves wide at the hand and a high collar and band cuffs of black fox.

In a few distinguished models a scarf of the material is arranged to semble from Suzanne Taibot, who hand, nurkes a gown of pastel blue crepe marocain having the blouse gathered around the neck and on the skirt A deep apron of velvet is at the front and at the back two flounces in deep er shades, the lower flounce dropping several inches below the hem of the full gathered skirt, loose sleeves and a searf that is wound around the throat and tied loosely in a bow Charming Blouses for Autumn

Blonses were never more lovely nor more chic and dainty than they are in the autumn collections. Both the overblouse, which belongs with the skirt that is fitted over the hips, and the tuck-in shirt wern with tallored suits are in fashion, and there are many new models of each. Crepe of different kinds is the material that is used for most of the softer over blouses in which there are new Le signs, more finished and more formal than those of last year. There are few straight-around sacque overblouses except for utility. The latest models are very long and are gathered or slightly draped around the hips in dif ferent ways that make for softness and grace in outline. The tong gilet is introduced in a charming blouse of Paquin bine creps de chine which is scalloped and bound around the edges with the crepe.

TASTY, TENDER TIMBALES

Timbales may be bot or cold. For a tuncheon dish when a hot one is needed the timbale makes a dainty serving. The foundation for the timbale in nearly all cases is a thick smooth white sauce to which may be added the particular savory or season ing desired. Small timbale cups may be found in any house furnishing shop, an inch and a half in diameter and three inches high. These small cups may serve many uses, as custard, pudding and molded salad cups.

Cheese Timbales .- I'repare a white sauce by blending three tablespoon fuls of flour with two of butter, and adding when well mixed one cupful of milk and stock or two cupfuls of stock. When the sauce is smooth and thick add half a pound of grated cheese and season to taste with salt and pepper. Now add three well beaten eggs, one-half cupful of fine bread crumbs, and a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Remove from the fire and pour into the timbale molds which have been well sprinkled inside with fine bread crumbs. Stand the forms on folded paper in a pan of hot water and bake until the centers are quite firm. Turn out and serve for tunch eon with tomato sauce. On special occasions decorate the tops with a star of pimento and serve on individual plates, on lace-paper dollies. Tonsted crackers, olives and pickles make a nice accompaniment.

Chicken Timbales .- These are the more elaborate timbales and may be prepared from lobster, tongue, ham and other delicate meats. The uncooked meat of one chicken is put through a meat chopper several times. or any other meat should be prepared in the same way. Add salt, a dash of cayenne and a pinch of mace to the chicken, then add the whites of two eggs, one at a time beaten in, then fold in one cupful of whipped cream and the mixture is ready for the molds. Butter the molds generously and decorate the bottom and sides with fancy figures cut from red and green peppers. Fill two-thirds full with the chicken mixture, and place the molds on folded paper in a pan of hot water. Bake until firm. Turn out and serve with a white sauce with mushrooms or sweetbreads

Vegetable Timbales.-A spoonful or two of asparagus and green peas, or some other vegetable left from din ner, with a little of yesterday's roast. nothing enough of itself to make a dish but combined will make a dish most appealing. Prepare as for chicken timbales.

This and That.

The kitchen being the workshop of where somebody stays a large part of the day and often well into the night, should be well lighted by windows as well as artificially. The kitchen should be compact; not so small that one has to squeeze between the ta ble, stove and sink, but roomy enough for free movement. Grouping the utensils used most often, in places near at handutensils used around the range, such as holders, sauce our and kettle covers, seasonings used in cooking meats and vegetables, if placed within reach of the band, saves countless steps and much weariness. Utensils used near the sink, such as soap dish, dish mop, dish drainer, soap shaker, bottle brushes, should be placed near it in convenient cupboards. The table should contain drawers holding the cutting knives mixing spoons and partake the place of fur as in an en ling knives, where they are close at

Near the table or shelf where the preparation of food goes on, should be grouped, naking dishes, sauce pans, bowls, egg beaters, flour bin, measuring utensils and food chopper.

Each housewife is able to work out this problem for herself if she will dress. A coat of the velvet has a take the trouble to let her "head save her neets." The slipshod, indifferent nunner in which a large majority arrange their kitchens and go through the processes of cookery is death to comfort and enjoyment.

There is no reason, if one has the opportunity when building, not to make the "heart of the house" (the kitchen) the most attractive room in it. Have the sink placed across a win dow where one may, while standing washing dishes, or preparing vegetables, look out on a beautiful garden or shrubber; it will help one to forget hard tasks.

Orange Sweet Pickle .- Peel four oranges, removing all the white membrane; cut into thick slices; steam until clear. Boll sugar vinegar and one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and cloves (both whole), for 25 minutes, using two cupfuls of sugar and one cupful of mild vinegar. Simmer the fruit in the sirup for an hour. Place in sterilized jars and seal.

The Mark of Genuine Aspirin..

BAYER ASPIRIN is like an old friend, tried and true. There can never be a satisfactory substitute for either one. Bayer Aspirin is genuine. It is the accepted antidote for pain. Its relief may always be relied on, whether used for the occasional headache, to head-off a cold, or for the more serious aches and pains from neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or other ailments. It's easy to identify Bayer Aspirin by the Bayer Cross on every tablet, by the name Bayer on the box and the word "genuine" always printed in red.

Ginger Ella Sunday School Lesson Lesson

There are two whole columns on the disarmament conference—all figures, and quotations, and simply tremendous big words," said Ginger Ella in a discouraged tone. "Oh, here's a little bit of a column about the Elks' May day fete and beauty pageant." She settled herself to read with a smug little flounce of eagerness.

"You may skip that," said ber father, "We know all about the beauty pageant."

His daughter sighed resignedly. " suppose you want Lloyd George and the Communists, although it does not look very churchy to me."

She read patiently, in a low clear voice, paragraph after paragraph, sitting on the couch beside the reading little, eager and slim-with eyes that just would wander, despite her best and most daughterly intentions, from the stupid newsprint to the simply fascinating goings-on in the opposite corner of the wide room, where Marjory, the pretty twin, love-Her than any picture, stood on a low atool, like a goddess lifted up, with her bevy of worshipers at her feet, while down on their knees before her. were Mirlam, the brainy twin, and Helen, who was quite old and engaged to be married, and Miss Jenkinsclipping stray threads here and there. tucking, patting and pulling, in a vain endeavor to add greater charm to her girlish beauty.

But although Ginger's eyes would wander, the memory of her father, sitting still and limp, so patient, in the blg chair at her side, his kind, eyes closely handaged, quickly brought her own straying orbs back to the onerous news. By rights, it was Mirlam's job to read the papers to her father. But Miriam, being a twin to Marjory, would naturally wish to assist in preparing her to win the Elks' club beauty prize.

"'And this in spite of the frank warning of President Coolidge that the United States will regard any such move with extreme disfavor," finished Ginger, with a flourish. "Here's a paragraph on Mussolini and God. In my opinion it would took a lot smarter if you took that lace off the shoulders entirely. Oh, excuse me, father, I'm so sorry. Here's a paragraph on Mellon cutting the tax melon-three bundred billions, no milflons-Well, it doesn't interest as either way. Oh, bere's a lovely writeup of the buffet supper that is to be served at the Elks' club fete at ten o'clock-poullon, chicken sandwiches. tomato aspic-"

Reverend Mr. Tolliver smiled indulgently. He might not see, but what father but could feel the wandering eyes and the truant thoughts of a sixteen-year-old daughter on the eve of a beauty pageant.

"Put the paper up now, Ellen. I'm full of news. Suppose you play little bright-eyes for me, instead, and tell me what is going on over there, with all that snipping of selssors, and ohing and ah-ing."

"Oh, father!" Ginger doubled herself up rapturously, enfolding both her slim knees in her arms. "Oh, father, it is glorious! Marjory-honestly, father, Marjory is so pretty it doesn't seem possible. Miss Jenkins is down on the floor with five pins in her mouth, and her dress pulled up. over her knees to keep from soiling

Miss Jenkins, with guilty haste, covered the offending members.

"They weren't her best ones-they had liste tops. But I saw a silk ruffle, just the same. You're really missquite a lot. you know," continued iger wickedly. "You'd better take we five pins out of your mouth, enky dear, if you're going to gasp like that."

Only Ellen dared to call the sedate spinster "Jenky." and even she did it only in her more trrepressible moments, when she was most thoroughly a Ginger Ella. It was sixteen years go, at the birth of this same Ellen. hat Miss Jenkins and firs; come into intimate contact with the pursonage household, then in another pastorate. And upon their later transference to other charges, she had arranged her small matters and followed after them living her own life, keeping her own small home, teaching in the primary schools for a livelihood, but keeping in close and helpful touch with the Tolliver family, to which, in its en tirety, she had given all the stored-up love of her lonely heart. With Helen and with the twins, she remained to the end firm and unyielding. But she was from the beginning surpris ingly pliable in the hands of the wheedlesome Ellen

"Well," Ginger went on, "she is wearing Helen's engagement ring, and Miss Jenkins' old gold chain. Eddy's mother gave her a perfectly spiffy lace handkerchief, and she has on my slik-to-the-top stockings that Mrs Morris gave me."

For five days, the modest Tolliver household had simply fermented with excitement over the Elks May day fete and beauty pageant. The lotlivers, without exception, knew that Marjory was absolutely the prettlest thing in the Middle West, Many other residents of ited Thrush, lows, realized it also. But just prettiness was not enough to win this beauty prize. One required an admission ticket. The Elks' club was staging the event for the benefit of its various charities, and the admission was two dollars and a half-including favors for the ladies, an elaborate buffet supper at ten o'clock, and participation in the beauty pageant. In spite of their confidence in Marjory's outstanding beauty, two dollars and a half for admission to a May day fere did not fall within the scope of a parsonage

But the good fairy who watches over youthful beauty did not fail them.

On the twenty-fifth day of April, Eddy Jackson walked up the narrow flagstone path to the parsonage. Marjory was lying in the hammock, fast asleep, her magazine fallen to the floor at her side. Eddy Jackson, coming thus upon beauty unaware, was stricken momentarily dumb in its presence, and stared at her in such rapt awe that Marjory awakened in some confusion.

"Gee, Margie, but you're easy to look at," he said admiringly. "Why don't you go after the Elks' prize? It's fifty dollars in gold. And there's not a girl in lown can walk in the same block with you. Why, it I was a judge, I wouldn't let anybody else enter the same contest with you. Go on, try it, bet you a dollar on it, and you can pay me out of the beauty prize."

"Heavens, Eddy, what would the members say if father sailed down to the Elks' club to enter his daughter in the beauty pageant?"

Eddy squared his shoulders. "All right. I'll do it myself. You and I'll go. I'll get the tickets right now." And he turned himself about and marched straight down the flagstone path, entirely forgetting that he had come with a message from his mother.

In a household whose financial limits were as circumscribed as those of the parsonage, the Elks' club beauty pageant was an event of no mean import. The prize itself was tifty dollars in gold, and there were additional trophles.

Even Mr. Tolliver, despite his seeming indifference, warmed slightly to the charm of fifty dollars in gold Marjory slowly revolved for final approval.

"There-It is perfect-unother touch would be too much.

Reverend Mr. Tolliver stood up, and put out his hand. "Come here, Mar gie. Let me see it my pretty twin is as pretty as I think.

She crossed to him quickly, a little pain rising in the white throat with the thought of his helplessness, quick mist clouding the tovely eyes. His hand gently followed the gold tace at her shoulder, fondled the soft curve of her hair, tingered the slender chain "It is not just prettiness, my child." he said affectionately. "You are frag rant, and wholesome, and sweet. That is your beauty. You don't need arti ficial adorning. Your leveliness is like a flower's-unaffected, unas sumed, fust born there."

Marjory, freed from his hand, moved preening herself pleasantly to their flattering reflections, and to the more flattering eyes of her sisters.

Ginger giggled. "Father, you ought to see her. Really you ought. She is so unaffected right now-just like a flower turning to the sun."

The low siren of a motor sounded outside. A flash of light leaped to Marjory's eyes, a quick flush to her

"It's Eddy," she whispered. "Sit down everybody, and look natural. Don't stand about-gaping-"

Sulting action to her words, Mar-Jory dropped gracefully into a chair and toyed with the golden chain with an air of utmost indifference. The others, quickly, with more or less of grace, draped themselves about the room. Ginger turning her back to them all and to the door, burying herself in the details of the buffet supper.

"You see, father," she hissed scornfully. "You see? The whole family is man-mad, simply man-mad. Except you and me. Disgusting, that's what it is, simply disgusting. Natural as a flower-humph! You don't see the flowers flying off their stalks a boy-friend bumble when bee breezes in."

"'Lo everybody," called Eddy's pleasant voice from the plazza. "Door's open-I'm coming in. Oh, good evening. Mr. folliver, how are you? Good evening, Miss Jenkins. Gee. Marge, I pity the Judges. I only hone they live to deliver the prize." "Why Eddy how nice you took," said Helen warmly "Yes, thanks, I suppose I do. The white carnation was nother's idea, and feel just like a banker. She says it is not often a mere hay rube farmer has a chance to step out with a Blue Ribbon, so she dolled me up., Hello. Ginger."

Ginger had not so much as lifted her eyes from the paper.

"Oh, hello, Eddy," she said coldly. But this coldness on her part was merely assumed of principle, to show her disgust for the man-madness with which her sisters were afflicted. In her heart, she was fond of Eddy Jack-

"Oh, you're all right, are you? That's a relief. I thought you'd been suddenly struck deaf, dumb and-er uh-" He floundered awkwardly away from the tender subject of blindness. "It must be time to start," sald Helen, her eyes on the clock. She had told Professor Langley not to come until eight-thirty-a late hour for callers in Red Thrush, but she was determined to do her sisterly duty to Marjory before abandoning herself to personal pleasure. "Yes, I think it is," agreed Eddy.

'It seems they check the beauties at the door, at eight, I think. I should have brought a truck to carry home the prizes, but-" "Oh, nonsense," taughed Marjory.

world, against all those lovely girls. and all those lovely gowns-" "Huh," sniffed Ginger scornfully.

You know I haven't a chance in the under her breath "You'd never think we'd spent that fifty dollars-in our minds-five days ago"

The girls followed them to the door as they went out, smiling admiration at Marjory-admiration, encourage ment and hope.

"Shall I bring you a sandwich in my pocket, Ginger? Or would you rather have an asple?" Eddy called te her Ginger ignored him.

The three girls stood together in the doorway until, with a last farewell of the siren, the car disappeared down the quiet shady street "A nier boy," said Helen quietly,

But with a full view of the living law (v. 27) room before her, her quietness van ished "This place is a sight," she said briskly. "Ginger get the broom, and dust up that rug Mirlam, put away the thread and things"

"But what difference—this time of night-" protested Ginger

"Horney will be here in ten minutes. Now straighten up for me, won't you, white I run up and straighten my self?"

"Most disgusting thing I ever saw Man-mad. Simply man mad. The whole gang of them. She uoesn't care if you sit in a dusty chair, fu ther-she doesn't care if Miss Jenkins has to look at a messy table and un untidy rug - she doesn't care if Miclain and I have to associate with her when her nose is shiny, but a man, LOh, no"

Name "Peony" Traced to Legend of Mythology

In the days of the Greek gods and goddesses, the peony first came to the world's attention Leto, Apollo's moth er, was the one to introduce it. Apol to was known as the god of healing and his son, Aesculapius, was the god of medicine.

It seems that a pupil of Aesculapius named l'aeon was the physician of the gods, and to him Leto first gave the plant which he employed to cure Pluto of a wound received at the hands of Hercules during the Trojan

The fact that his pupit could surpass him in effecting such a cure made Aesculapius angry, with the result be attempted to kill Paeon, but Pluto, in-debted to Paeon for his own life, rescued the physician of Mount Olympus from deat) by changing him into the plant that had saved his life. Until this day that plant bears Paeon's name and is known to us as the peony.

The history of the peoply in China and Japan is of a sentimental nature Fittingly enough, the words "Sho Yo," menning "Most Beautiful," were ap plied to the herbaceous peony, while the tree peony held sway as the "King of Flowers."-Kansas City Star.

THE CHRISTIAN'S VIEW OF REC-REATION

LESSON TEXT-Jer. 31:12, 13, Zech. 8:15, Mark 2:18-28, Mark 6:30-32, John

GOLDEN TEXT-1 am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly. PRIMARY TOPIC—The Right Way to Play.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC-Recreation in Community Life.

In the last lesson we saw that work was God's primal law for man In work there is a certain breaking down of cells which needs constant repair; therefore, in order that work may continue there must be recreation. Recreation means re-creation. Failure to discern this truth has made of recreation dissipation, in this light let us view the salient points in the scripture selected.

I. The Coming Golden Age (Jer. 3:12, 13).

Though Jeremiah was the weeping prophet, and presented dark pictures of Israel's condition, God gave him a view of Israel's golden age. He made known how that through the mighty hand of God the chosen nation should be delivered from bondage and brought into their own land where peace, prosperity and gladness should prevail. The source of all real recreation is right relationship with God. God is the source of all joy. Nothing so powerfully affects the physical organism in its renewal as joy in God. In this coming age the streets of the city will be safe for old people and children (Zech. 8:4, 5). 11. The Christian's Relation to Fasting (Mark 2:18-23). I. A question asked v. 18). The very joyfulness of the disciples of Christ in contrast with the disciples of John and the l'harisees, moved an inquiry as to the reason. The law of Moses only required fasting on the Day of Atonement. John the Baptist was in prison, therefore it is clear as to why his disciples were fasting. 2. Christ's answer (vv. 19, 20). He declared that the children of the bride chamber could not fast as long as they had the bridegroom with them. The Joy of present companlonship with Christ prevented their fasting. This shows that Christ is the real source of joy. He recognized that when the bridegroom was absent, there was occasion for fasting. Christ is now away, therefore fasting is permissible. In times of great need the early church fast ed. Before sending out the first mis sionaries they fasted and prayed (Acts 13:1, 2). More fasting and less feasting would be helpful today in disciples were charged with lawlessness because they plucked ears of corn as they walked through the fields on the Sabbath day. In Christ's defense against this charge, He

1. Cites a precedent (v. 26). It was the case of David, their great king, who in time of need ate the shewbread which was only lawful for the priests. The principle set forth is that the higher law of human need warranted David In doing this which was out of the regular line of duty

2. Showed the nature of the Sabbath

The Sabbath was made for man, therefore its right use is determined by what it contributes to man's good. The Sabbath should not be man's cruel master, but his helpful servant. 3. Jesus is Lord of the Subbath

(v. 28). It was He who instituted it when creation was finished; therefore He had the right to use it us it pleased

Him for man's good IV. The Need of a Vacation (Mark 6:30-32)

The tragic death of John the Bap tist had just occurred and the disciples had just returned from a strenuous missionary tour Christ, per ceiving their need, invited them to come apart with Him for rest. V. Jesus Attending a Wedding (John 2:1:11)

This is a striking sidelight on the spirit of thrist. A marriage feast was graced by tils presence. In this net He set a mark of honor upon marriage, which is the most joyous of earth's occasions. In this act man's holy Redeemer lifted the holy ordinance of marriage 'nto its dignity and beauty. In the course of the feast, when the wine was exhausted. He wrought His first miracle rather than have its festivities marred.

Watch your child and at the first sign of constipation, give him a little California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it quickly drives away those distressing allments, such as headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, billousness, feverishness, fretfulness, etc. It gives them a hearty appetite, regulates their stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. For over fifty years, leading physicians have prescribed it for half-sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Mrs, C. G. Wilcox, 38551/2 Wolff St., Denver, Colorado, says: "My son, Jackie, is a prize winner for health, now, but we had a lot of trouble with him before we found his trouble was constipation and began giving him California Fig Syrup. After a very few minutes I was convinced that he had something to say. It seems like this figuring had been going on for quite a while and the beginning of it was how he might amass great weath for himself. Now you know how long it takes him to tell any thing so I am making it short. When he leaned over and said 'Reginald, I found something', I knew the ship had made its port. He said he was no longer working for himself but for the community and his fellowmen, and that with the resources and energy of this community wisely and honestly spent we could make it a land of plenty and happiness And crowning it all with conviction that we would miss the larg er bleseing unless we commit our selves to the Master's way, exemplifying the Golden Rule. Veils and Hair Nets

HE other day, I saw a picture of mother who was snapped, if they snapped them then, in a vell and hali net of the vintage of the nineties. It made me smile to think of how the girls used to shut themselves in he hind all the mosquito netting.

Well, there was the milliner's hat parked out away up on top of the mop of hair, and the veil was necessary to hold the thing in place. The hair-net did what it could to keep the mop from unswitching.

The Fatimus of yesterday were modest looking bunch. They had little chance to flirt, for a wink would he lost behind the netting. They must have spent most of their time wondering whether the bat would stay on and the hair up.

We Flames of Youth are different in many ways. We don't use any guy ropes to keep the mass of millinery on top the stack of hair, but trim the flowing locks, and pull the hat down where it will stay

When it comes to getting away to a swift start, we of the bathing suit period of our nation's history are miles ahead of the slow movers who took an hour to dress. Then we can get there in ways unknown to the slower generation. We can duck our way through the crowd in the morn ing and make a slick getaway when nve p. m. rolls around. We are dressed for the rush and the crush

But while we are footing up the coltion of gains, we'd better look for any possible losses. We have lots of speed that the older generation knew nothing about. Yep, we're all right when it comes to speed, pep,

At the same time, I don't think that the girls of today have lost any real modesty since they laid aside the concealments which their mothers had in the form of vells

No, it's better and fairer to say that we are just as modest inwardly even if we aren't so outwardly. If womanly modesty consists in wearing corsets, veils, and such disguises, I don't care if we aren't so prim.

My only objection to the frank, sports costume of the day is that it gets the wrong kind of attention. It gets the attention of the eyes, but makes no such appeal to the heart as the costume of helplessness and concealment in vogue a generation ago.

The men will have to get used to us. Then they will see that we are playing the same woman's part in different costumes.

Red Music

THE other evening, I attended a musical at a fashionable home on lifth avenue. I might tell you something about the long-haired male musicians who trusted to their artistic appearance to pull them through, but I have better news for you. As for myself, I suffered in slience most of the time, until the refreshments were

But what struck me was not the way the Ivories were punished generally, but the way a certain girl performed. She was only nineteen but she played like sixty, and it wasn't that, either. After she had galloped ing somewhat on the kind and qualall over the keyboard and made runs up and down from treble to bass, I lty of the legume hay is good, two noticed that she was mopping up the tvories with her handkerchief. There a simple mixture, such as equal parts was blood all over the white keys.

The girl had played with such power and with such disregard for her tender fingers that they had bled all through the performance. It was no wonder that the grand plane had to give out the music which the men couldn't dig out and for which the audience applauded her to the echo.

A girl like that is bound to make an impression upon the world as well as the plano, and I am sure she'll get some sort of decoration which will look nicer than the adhesive plaster she wore after she had played the bloody sonata. She put her life into her work when she did her stuff, and the old music box had to take notice.

Most of us think that success in music, literature, or business depends upon luck, when as a matter of fact it depends upon the way we put our life and our life blood into our art or our work. Music and money are bound to come when one plays the way that girl did, for she was like a miner who dug the gold nuggets out of the earth with his fingers.

There's a lot of talk nowadnys about putting the artistic touch into your work, and I suppose it's all right, but there's nothing that can take the place of the human touch, like that of planlat and carpenter.

A lot of our work is a makeshift, a make-believe and consists in holding down a job. The ones who get there and bust into Who's Who are the guys of both sexes who are willing and able to put themselves into their tasks.

We have so many mechanical contraptions that we are losing sight of the human factor. We have player planes and steam hammers, but we can't get away from the fact that there must be a living person behind the works, It seems to me that this sort of iogic will work with the typewriter as well as the piane, with the fountain pen as well as the hammer.

DAIRYING MUST BE SPEEDED UP MORE

Scientists Facing Several Serious Economic Problems.

(By K. L. HATCH, Agricultural Extension Service, University of Wisconsin serious business, both for the producer and the manufacturer.

The dairy farmer is just awakening to the fact that he is a business man employing both capital and labor on no mean scale. Dairy manufacturers are realizing as never before, that their problem is one of producing an article that will please the trade and stimulate, through quality, its own demand. These are the big and vital problems that the dairy scientists must face—are now facing. They are economic problems and must be faced with facts not now obtainable,

Everywhere in experiment station literature do we find feed costs of milk production, but rarely do we find labor costs, or dry cow costs, or depreclated herd costs, or bull costs, or capital charges, such as interest, taxes, insurance and depreciation which I submit as the principal costs of milk production on the up-to-date dairy

On the manufacturing side we are equally weak. We continue to use small, insanitary and wholly inefficient plants. Neither have we studied the demands of the consumer who makes our market nor have we made much effort to produce what will especially appeal to his tastes.

And yet every other business of national scope, be it ever so small, has done all these things, and for the most part borne its own costs. A great dairy industry with nationally endowed research laboratories should do these same things-must do them for the sake of the industry.

Potato Flavor in Cream

Not Caused by Feeding

The common assumption is that potato flavor in cream is caused by feeding the cows potatoes. This antiquated idea has been placed in the discard through experiments conducted by North Dakota Agricultural college. The trials with feeding potatoes to cows indicate that potato flavor in the créam is not caused by feeding the potatoes, but by exposing cream to air eavy with potato odor.

Potatoes were fed in varying amounts and immediately before milking time. The cream or ntilk that was stored in a cellar where the air was heavy and potato odor prevailed took on a marked potato flavor in a few hours. Once the cream acquired the potato flavor it could not be removed. No ordinary treatment, such as pasteurization, will remove potato flavor from the butterfat.

In addition to this they should have some grain, the kind and amount dependity of roughage supplied. If the qualto four pounds per head daily of of ground corn, ground oats, and ground barley, is satisfactory. If the hay is not so good add one-half part each of bran and linseed or cottonseed meal. For heifers within three months of calving the grain should be increased to from four to six pounds per head daily depending on condition.

Pasture grass-is the natural feed for the cow, and it doubtless is the best feed which the cow receives during the year, but too many dairymen expect too much of pasture grass.

Any farmer sufficiently interested in dairying to keep 10 milk cows will find a silo profitable.

Do not forget to provide salt for dry cows and helfers on pasture. There should also be a good water supply and extra feed when pasture gets short.

Grain rations adapted to pasture are relatively low in cost, because they need to carry only a small amount of protein, grass being quits high in this important nutrient,

Tendency Is to Small Ranches

Temptation Has Been to Overstock in Years of Good Prices.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) On western cattle ranges the tendency is toward operation on a smaller scale and greater distribution of land ownership, Virgil V. Parr of the United States Department of Agriculture, points out. To maintain profits, he says, the ranchman will need to Dairying is a business, a big and a pay closer attention to the details of his business, the management of his herds, and of the range he owns, controls, or shares with other ranchers. As a rule ranching now includes more farming and cropping than in the early era of the open range, Also ranch acreage is decreasing, but in the northern Great Plains area, Mr. Parr points out, many ranchmen are adding to their owned holdings by acquiring abandoned homesteads of settlers who have given up their efforts toward dry farming.

Methods of Management.

In Farmers' Bulietin 1395-F, Beef Cattle Production in the Range Area just issued in a revised edition by the United States Department of Agriculture, Mr. Parr has summarized the methods of management that have proved most profitable and satisfactory in the range area. It is intended as a guide to aid men engaging in the business and as aid to established ranchers in comparing their methods with the best practice.

"The temptation to overstock durng years of good prices," Mr. Parr warns, "is one of the most difficult things a cattleman of the western ranges has to overcome. There is a tendency among many to stock heavily during good years to recover losses sustained during bad years, and the usual result is that the gamble is carried one year too far and a repetition of loss occurs generally about the time previous losses are recovered."

Desirable Feeding. For economical feeding a good stand of forage grasses is highly desirable. Range improvement is good business, either on owned land or by co-operative agreement between cattlemen operating on the open range. "Many stockmen," says Mr. Parr, "when they consider range improvement, think first of artificial reseeding. Investigations on the typical range areas have definitely shown that natural revegetation is far more practical than attempts at artificial reseeding. The first essential is to limit the number of stock to approximately the proper carrying capacity. Secondly the range should be so grazed as to give an opportunity for a high percentage of the palatable vegetation to reach matur-

Native bulls are usually better foragers than are animals imported from eastern herds. Mr. Parr discusses the possibilities of range breeding of purebred stock for sale to ranchers who wish to improve or maintain the quality of their herds. Farmers' Bulletin 1395-F includes a fairly complete consideration of most of the important problems of the range regions. It is available for free distribution to those who apply to the United States De D. C.

Pruning Walnut Trees

When Young Best Plan Wayward offspring of the forest monarchs need'some training in their early youth if they are to grow up into trees that make good lumber. This is true of second growth walnut. The young walnut tree, uncrowded by other trees, retains its lower branches indefinitely unless it is pruned when young. And when the tree matures, these lower limbs produce large knots that extend so far into the trunk that they ruin its value for lumber. But a few minutes' time spent pruning the lower limbs makes the sapling grow more tall and stately. And when the tree matures, the effort yields big dividends in a clear log that can be cut and sold at a good

Keep plenty of good fresh water be fore the ducks at all times. Young ducklings do not need water to swim in, but they certainly need plenty of water to drink at all times.

Some soils are peculiarly adapted to alfalfa growing. Some soils must receive special preparation, such as liming, fertilizing, summer fallowing, inoculation of seed, and other artificial applications.

No grower is doing all that he can for maximum fruit setting in Delicious and Stayman unless blves of bees are present in their plantings and effec-tive pollinating varieties are mixed in the planting or are in adjacent rows. Increased Profits From Smut Control

Disease Reduces Crop Yield and Market Prices.

Thousands of farmers know that wheat smut reduces yields and some times the selling price of wheat, and have learned through their county igents how to control this disease by treating the seed before planting. The copper carbonate dusting method is now generally used for killing stinking smut in wheat because it is the simplest, cheapest, and the most effective method known.

The seed should be placed in a tight container, such as a barrel, churn, or oox, provided with a tight-fitting opening, and arranged so that it can be revolved on an axis. Two or three ounces of copper carbonate per bushel is sprinkled on the wheat and the container then revolved so that every seed gets coated. It is best to wear a mask of cloth over the mouth and nose to prevent irritation or nausea.

Stinking smut changes the grain into masses or spores called smut balls. Since the chaff is not destroyed the disease is not easily observed, except for the odor. E. A. Miller, agronomist in the Texas agricultural mechanical college extension service, warns farmers that seed from fields that were entirely free from smut last season may develop the disease next year unless the seed are treated. The reason for this lies in the fact that the smut spores are given wide distribution through threshing machines.

The copper carbonate treatment is recommended only for stinking smut of wheat and kernel smut of grain sorghums and sweet sorghums. For oat and barley smut the formaldehyde treatment should be used.

Straw Loft Gaining in Favor for Henhouses One of the interesting developments in poultry housing is the rapid progress the straw loft poultry house has made within the last year or two. A great many of the poultry specialists have approved this type of house and it is gaining in favor rapidly. Almost any shape of house can be adapted to this type, the essential thing being to have an open ceiling or mow about 61/2 to 71/2 feet above the floor and have this covered with 12 to 18 inches of clean straw. It is usual to have a tight floor above the roosts, with the straw loft above the rest of the floor.

The covering of straw lets the foul air and moisture go out slowly and escape through gratings or louvers in the ends of the attic above, while sufficient fresh air comes in through cracks and other parts of the straw loft, and thus a very satisfactory amount of ventilation is obtained and still the house kept a little warmer than the outdoor air. Users have observed that the straw loft house is warmer in winter and cooler in summer than where it is not used and those who tried it are enthusiastic.

Rabbit Is Troublesome

When Not Restrained

In regions where the common rabbit is unusually abundant garden and truck crops may suffer quite severely. Melons, beans, cabbage, and similar crops are usually more attractive to the young rabbits than grass or clover. Where it is not possible to protect the crop with a wire fence, some retief may be had by carefully utilizing bits of poisoned vegetable, apple, or small quantities of poisoned grain. On a small area, however, by watching just at dusk and shooting the young rabbits is perhaps a quicker and more satisfactory and safer method. Besides the young rabbits make very good enting. By spending a little time each evening after the day's work is over one can usually kill or drive away rabbits from the garden or from exposed truck patches.

Sour Cherry Production

Increased by Pruning More vigorous trees, resulting in more cherries, follow the proper pruning of Early Richmond, Montmorency and English Morello trees, says H. B. Tukey, horticulturist at the New York state experiment station, in commenting on a series of tests made under his direction in the Hudson river valley and confirmed by observations in all of the leading sour-cherry districts of the state.

Judicious use of nitrogenous fertilizers should accompany the pruning operations, says the specialist. He has prepared a report on his experiments, giving detailed information on the pruning and fertilizing of sour cherries. A copy of this report may be had upon application.

Storage of Potatoes Is Quite Often Overlooked

If best results are expected by storing potatoes only potatoes of good quality should be stored. Potatoes will not improve in storage but are more likely to go down in quality. Many storage troubles are the result of poor field conditions. Potatoes should be left in the field a few hours to permit them to dry. Immature potatoes will have to be handled and watched carefully.

Potatoes may be stored in open bins in a cool cellar or buried in the ground. If stored in a cellar, they should not be piled more than a foot deep. When stored in layers deeper than this or in sacks, there is more

ATTRACTIVE BATHROOM WOMAN'S PRIDE

Bathroom Fixtures Respond to Daily Care.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

An attractive bathroom is a housekeeper's pride, and the care given it is well repaid, not only from the sanitary standpoint, but because somehow its gleaming porcelain and wellshined fixtures, as well as its fresh dainty linen, reflect the standards of the home. Because it is in constant daily use by every member of the family, the bathroom and everything in it needs going over every day. The hand-basin and tub must be scoured, the toilet made scrupulously clean, nickel or other metal fixtures wiped and polished, and the floor mopped or wiped, depending on its condition and kind. The water pipes and traps should be frequently examined, too, for stoppage or leaks, either of which should receive prompt attention from competent plumber.

The regular replacement of soiled owels and wash rags with clean ones, and attention to soap dishes, shelves, and the linen and medicine closets at frequent times are also very necessary details of bathroom care.

Fine scourers may be used on all fixtures, says the bureau of home economics. For porcelain and enameled iron fixtures, kerosene and whiting are especially good; the kerosene cuts the grease and the whiting supplies the abrasion. Some of the commercial cleaning preparations used for enameled and porcelain fixtures are so gritty that they scratch the surface and thus make it harder to keep them clean. Special care should be taken to select one that will not scratch the enamel. Tubs and bowle should be scrubbed with a fine scourer or with water containing a little kerosene, rinsed with clear hot water, and wiped dry. The stains made by water containing an excess of iron may be removed from porcelain or porcelain-lined tubs and bowls with oxalic acid solution, which is a poison and must be entirely washed off. The overflow piper, should be flushed, washed with not soapsuds or soda solution and a longhandled brush, and flushed again. Then the seat, the cover, the chain, and the handle should be washed and wiped. All cloths and utensils used in cleaning the bathroom should be scalded and dried, preferably in the open air.

Tiled walls and floors are easily wiped clean with soap and warm water unless the floor is dirty enough. to need a scouring powder. It is a good plan to use two cloths, a wet and a dry one, and to clean a small area at a time, wiping it dry. The use of too much water may result. ultimately in loosening the cement in which tiles are laid. If the floor is: covered with lineoleum this treatment is preferable to mopping. The photograph, taken by the United States Department of Agriculture, shows a bathrom in a farm. home in Montgomery county, Virginia, installed after a water system had been put into the house on the advice of the extension agent. It is light, well ventilated, and quite easy to care for.

GOOD POSTURE IS TO BE ENCOURAGED

Standing Well Is Result of Habit in Household Work.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Posture is the result of habit-the unconscious reversion, by the muscles and bones, to the positions they have been allowed to take day after day, Finally they assume these positions automatically, and if they are not correct we develop bodily distortions, an unattractive appearance, and a whole series of unsatisfactory consequences. Poor posture leads to fatigue, to backache, to strain on the wrong parts of the body and often to one-sided growth or such physical imperfections as a narrow chest, round shoulders, protruding abdomen, and many others.

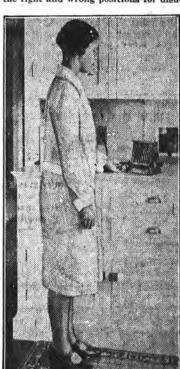

It is possible to maintain a good posture while engaged in almost any household task. The fact that all household activities must be performed repeatedly, suggests that they may be made to encourage habits of washing, mopping, handling foods in the oven, sitting to prepare vegetables, and so on. Any one interested can apply this idea to a scrutiny of her own way of working. It is sometimes possible to see oneself in a large mirror as a particular task is carried on, and to note improper positions of head, shoulders, hips, back, or feet.

KEEPING PACE WITH modern MOTORS

Every season sees new developments in motor design-striving for greater speed, power, and economy. In "Standard" Laboratories and proving grounds, lubrication and fuel engineers are constantly at work keeping "Standard" Products ahead of automotive needs.

Improved "Standard" Gasoline is the "last word" in straight motor gasoline. Try it for a week and see what an improvement it makes in the operation of your car, especially on cold days. It is the same wherever you buy it, and remember it is not a premium fuel.

"Standard" Motor Oil is the safe, efficient lubricant for the new-type motors. It is made from specially-selected crudes and is refined by processes which give it the necessary body and stamina to withstand the heat and high compression under which these motors operate.

Look for the pumps with the "Standard" Bars-and-Circle trademark. Here you are assured of quality products and courteous service.
