FACTS and FICTION BEING A Little Bit About Anything

"Read not to Contradict and Confute, nor to find Talk and Discourse, but to Weigh and Consider."—Francis Bacon.

Jimmie Walker has been re-elected Mayor of New York, and Virginia is safely back in the Democrat ranks. Now, we can settle down to our regular routine.

"American thinking is feminine, inculcated by women teachers," says a professor of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. This is the same Professor or who last spring advised young men to be "snobs". Well, professor Rogers has to say something and we can at least give him credit for saying something occasionally that gets him in print.

The question of taxation has all ways been an interesting one, and will doubtless hold the center of the stage in the minds of the people for some time to come.

The advance made by taxes in the past thirty-five years would alarm us, if we did not take time to realize that our capacity to earn had also increased.

In 1890 the cost of government, per million dollars of wealth was, Federal $291; State $77.00, and local $478.00. In 1926: 35 Years later - it had advanced to $3936 for the Federal government, $1546 for State and $6141 for local. We have a total of $855 in 1890, against $11623 in 1926, or an increase in our taxation burden, if taxes are burdens, of more than thirteen times.

More than $3,000,000,000 in Competitive Agricultural products are coming into the United States each year, according to official figures given out by the U S Department of Agriculture.

Two billion dollars worth of products, much of which could be raised by the American farmers are imported from other countries each year.

Six hundred thousand fans paid an admission price ranging well above a dollar to see a dozen football games on Saturday, November 16th. The Notre Dame Southern California game at Chicago led the list with 123000 paid admissions, the greatest number ever to see a grid game. Our own Tennessee-Vanderbilt contest at Knoxville broke all records in Tennessee with an attendance of 25,000.

The State of Mississippi, in 1857 fined gin owners $200 for dumping cotton seed in waterways and also imposed fines for permitting them to accumulate near towns.

The American farmer today will get approximately $200,000,000 for the seed from his cotton crop. They are worth $35 to $40 per ton, as against $4 per ton in 1880.

More than 150 commodities, such as roofing, explosives, cosmetics, phonograph records and other needful articles are now produced from cotton.

If the monstorian man which has been constructed and is now on exhibit at the field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, looked anything like his picture, these inhabitants of Southern Europe some 50 000 years ago would have made good wrestlers.

Memphis Park Commission Gives Shrubby to School

With the assistance of Mr W M Landers, county agent of Shelby County, Collierville School is able to carry out a plan of campus improvement that is going to mean much to the appearance of the school grounds.

Mr Landers secured from the city of Memphis more than 300 shrubs for use on the school grounds. He also supervised the planting of the shrubbery.

The faculty and student body appreciate very much the gift of the shrubbery by the Memphis Park Commission and the help Mr Landers has given.

Mr. N. T. Cooper

Mr N T Cooper, aged 79, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs D T Taylor at Eads, Tenn., Sunday night. Mr Cooper was well known in this County, having moved to Eads from Illinois, over 50 years ago. He is survived by nine children and a number of grandchildren. Funeral services were held in the home Monday afternoon, conducted by Rev L Z Hurley, pastor of the Methodist Church. Interment was made in the Eads cemetery.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

One feature of the very interesting Endeavor program Sunday night was a number of essays on the subjects "My Ideal Young Man" and "My Ideal Young Woman". Ladies truly came first for the judges selected one on the subject "My ideal young woman" as the best. Miss Mary Frances Leake had a well prepared program on the subject "What should young people expect of each other?" The topic poster and parts in blue and white, emblematic of truth and purity. These are two virtues we should expect of each other.

Next Sundays topic is "Thanks giving through Thanksgiving". Arnold Houston is leader. Come and help us have a good crowd for we are sure of a good program.

Rev. Russell Given Memphis Appointment

At the Memphis Conference of the Methodist Church which convened at Jackson last week, Rev. B J Russell was sent to the Galway Memorial Church, Memphis, and Rev D W Hood of Clinton, Ky., was sent to Collierville for the next Conference year.

Rev Russell has filled the pulpit during the past year, doing his work in a most sincere and fervent manner, ever keenly alert to the needs of his members and the people of the entire community. Mrs Russell and the daughters have made many friends and their kindly and efficient work will be greatly missed in the activities of the church. Collierville truly regrets losing this good family, and extends to them every sincere wish for success and happiness in their new field.

Major John A. Kirby

Another one of the fast-thinking ranks of Confederate Veterans answered the final roll call when Major John A. Kirby, the last survivor but one of the celebrated Shelby Greys, one of the first units to answer the call of Confederacy, died at his home in Germantown, Tuesday afternoon. He was in his 88th year and had been quite active until three or four years ago when he began to become feeble. He was a native of Virginia but came to Memphis in 1860, and was mustered into service in Germantown, May 15th 1861. For many years he has lived at the old family home at Germantown. He is survived by two children, J B Kirby and Mrs Walter D May. Funeral services, conducted by Rev J P Horton, pastor of Collierville and Germantown Baptist churches, were held Wednesday afternoon at the funeral home of Spencer-Sturla. Interment was made at Elmwood.

Making a Power Driven Farm

We heard much of the "horseless carriage" and now we hear of the "horseless farm". J W Skinner of Forest Hill, is making his large farm a "Power Driven Farm" having purchased a Farmall Tractor this week of Hinton & Hutton, local Farmall dealers. Mr Skinner had a tractor and with the new Farmall he will be able to do all his farm work by power. The general adaptability of the Farmall makes it an all purpose tractor as it furnishes power for all farm uses. Farm breaking, discing, and cultivating to sawing wood, baling hay, hauling, doing road work and furnishing power for all belt driven machinery the Farmall is fast taking the place of farm horses. Mr Skinner says "power when it is needed and plenty of it means much to the farmer and the low operating expenses of the tractor proves their worth on a farm". Much interest is being shown in the Farmall and several demonstrations are being made this week.

School Observes Week of Campus Beautification

Following out a plan of activity arranged at the opening of school the student body of Collierville School is observing the week of November 18 to 22 as campus improvement week.

Mr W M Landers, Shelby County Farm Agent, visited the school Tuesday, and assisted Mr Robertson and the Ag boys in laying off the grounds preparatory to setting the shrubbery.

Wednesday morning a number of picks and shovels were brought and throughout the day various classes sent the boys out to dig holes for the plants. Another group of boys were busily engaged in hauling rich dirt and manure. Mr J F Dudgeon furnished a wagon and team, and Hinton & Hutton furnished the barnyard manure.

On Thursday Mr Landers came back to supervise the setting of the shrubs and plants which he had secured from the Memphis Park Commission. More than 300 plants were furnished with no charges whatever. A number of trees were set out by the classes. The work will be continued by cultivating the shrubs set out, and by grading and sodding some broken places on the school yard. The P T A plans to take up the work and do considerable other improvement on the school grounds.

Harvest Jubilee

Everything is ready for the big harvest jubilee to be given at the Geo R James school tonight. There will be many entertaining features including the basketball game between the Fats and the Leans. Lots of fun and plenty to eat at Geo R James tonight.

Will Print Herald Next Wednesday

The Herald force will observe Thanksgiving Day next Thursday and next week's paper will go to press Wednesday noon. We will appreciate our correspondents and friends getting their copy to the office the earliest possible, in order that we have next Thursday for a holiday.

A Tire Service That Protects Your Tires

Mr Frank E Moore, representing the Seiberling Tires was here this week in the interest of the New Seiberling Protected Tires, handled here by the Collierville Service Station. Mr Moore is well pleased with the results obtained by the local dealer and says that he finds conditions very good throughout our territory. The Seiberling tire is well known and the New Protected Service is making many friends among the car owners.

J E Stamps, manager of the Collierville Service Station is alive to the possibilities of this Service and will gladly explain the advantages of buying a tire that carries a Protection Guarantee. A series of ads will run in the Herald telling the Story of the New Seiberling tires.

Has New Truck

The Collierville Cash Feed Store added another new truck to their delivery service the past week. It is a two ton truck, very attractively painted with a closed body, enabling them to deliver feed in all kinds of weather.

"Ohio School of Air" Brings World to Little Red School House

By JAMES M. CHALFANT

THIRTY years ago B. H. Darrow, then attending a little red schoolhouse in Champlain county, Ohio—actually a little red schoolhouse—began his first official connection with school administration. His position then, at the age of ten, was rather humble. During the fall and winter months he built the fire, being required on especially cold days to be at the schoolhouse at seven o'clock in the morning in order to have the place warm by the time the other youngsters arrived. As compensation for caring for the fire he received five cents a day. For sweeping out the room (when the roads were muddy it was usually necessary to use first the hoe, then the broom, and then the mop) he received another nickel daily. With these hard-earned nickels young Darrow made the first payment on a Webster's unabridged dictionary, he recalls.

Today, after a varied experience including teaching in the country schools, the centralized school, and the high school, Darrow, known to thousands of school children in more than a score of states as "Uncle Ben, the Radio Schoolmaster," heads the most interesting and most successful effort in education by radio, the "Ohio School of the Air," a division of the state department of education of Ohio at Columbus.

His official title now is director of educational broadcasting, state of Ohio. Two years ago he was just a free-lance "visionary," a man with a big idea: that the radio might be enlisted to vitalize public school education. There were still in the United States well over 150,000 of those isolated little one-room schools such as he had attended in his youth.

So long as that was the case, he felt, the slogan "Equality of Opportunity in Education" must remain rather empty and meaningless. Surely there must be some way to tap the great streams of knowledge, of culture, of current events, and carry new life and vigor to the country schoolhouse as well as to the city school system. The radio might well lift the little red schoolhouse out of its long isolation and place it on a par with the million-dollar city school, for a part of the school days, at least. Master teachers, through the magic of radio, could become visiting teachers and expert assistants for the teachers in charge of those 150,000 one-room schools still in operation.

"Well, the story of the origin of the Ohio School of the Air is a bit complicated," Darrow said when the question was put to him. "And my connection with it, I suppose, the result of my interests over a good many years.

"In the first place, I've been something of a pioneer right along, always preferring the uncertain with great possibilities to the rather tame certainty. With the exception of my high school teaching, since I left college I have filled no other man's shoes—I've always made a job for myself and then filled it.

"After varied and interesting experiences in country life institute work, and with the agricultural extension of Maryland State college, I found myself in 1924 in charge of children's programs at station WLS, Chicago. I became intensely interested in educational broadcasting then, but left WLS to promote a patent that I thought was going to prove profitable. It did, fairly so, but not for me! After a year or two, I abandoned my manufacturing project. The first thing I thought of then was to get back into the field of radio education.

"More and more there grew upon me the idea of a National School of the Air. I was convinced that the radio might become a tremendous agency for public school education. The idea presupposed three big "ifs." If educators could be induced officially to sponsor the project, if a radio station might be persuaded to broadcast educational programs free of charge, and if financial support could be secured to pay the cost of administration, a school of the air could be established.

"From one end of the country to the other I set out to enlist the aid of organiza-

- 2.—Class listening in on the "Smile Lady's" broadcast of story plays and rhythmic in a Cincinnati school.
- 3.—Gov. Myers Y. Cooper of Ohio (right) and John L. Clifton, director of education, listening to the "Ohio School of the Air."
- 4.—A school principal listening in on the "School of the Air" program.
- 5.—Edwin Markham, distinguished poet and author of the famous "The Man With the Hoe," who is a member of the committee on poetry of the "Ohio School of the Air."

tions and individuals to help me put my idea across. Finally, late in 1927, the Payne Study and Experiment Fund of New York became sufficiently interested to put me on its staff to investigate and develop the possibilities of broadcasting for schools on a national scale, under the guidance of organized educational authorities.

"The results of that preliminary survey were laid before the National Educational association in Boston, February, 1928. They were greatly interested, but beyond the passing of a strong resolution suggesting a committee to look into the matter, did nothing. Then I interested the leaders of the Roosevelt Memorial association—James R. Garfield, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Clifford Pinchot, Arthur W. Page, and others. It looked as though the association were going to sponsor the project, but it was discovered that some technicality as to the terms of gift made that utterly impossible.

"In June, 1928, I thought I had the Radio Manufacturers' association in convention in Chicago ready to put the idea across. But once more red tape 'gummed the works.' In July I came to Columbus and broached my plan to Dr. J. L. Clifton, state director of education. He was interested, but frankly dubious of his department's ability to undertake the work.

"I kept hammering away at Clifton for some time. In October the Payne fund came to my rescue, with an offer to pay my salary for the rest of the year and loan me to Ohio. And then station WLW of Cincinnati came through with an offer of free broadcasting. I went back to Clifton and told him the situation. 'Pull up your chair,' he said, 'You are Ohio's first director of educational broadcasting.' It's too long a story to tell how a program was evolved—how educators were awakened to the great possibilities of educational broadcasting, how great teachers and other national figures were secured to donate their time and services to the School of the Air. From thirty to sixty people each week were co-operating with the school without compensation. The 'Ohio School of the Air' was established in January, 1929. In April, 1929, the state legislature appropriated funds to carry it on for two years."

The "Ohio School of the Air" has attracted so much favorable interest on the part of educators generally that it is to be, during the fall months of the present year, the subject of a special investigation by a federal commission. This commission, composed of prominent educators, was appointed by Secretary of Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, with instructions to report to him not later than January 1, 1930, on the feasibility of educational broadcasting on a national scale.

The Ohio project is not the first, but it is the pioneer in the field of constant, regular public school radio education. And Darrow is the first director of educational broadcasting ever appointed by a state. The Ohio effort differs from a number of earlier experiments by being more varied, and in having legislative support.

Each school day over WLW and WEAO from two to three o'clock the "School of the Air" brings to thousands of schoolrooms and thousands of homes a carefully correlated and graded course of instruction for all twelve grades of public school. Current events, story games and rhythmic, health talks, history dramatizations, nature study, appreciation of art, geographical world tours, French lessons, chemistry and physics lectures, music lessons, drama—these suggest the breadth of the curriculum.

Small wonder that schools are hastening to equip to receive broadcasts. In some cities, notably Cincinnati, school boards require that all new school buildings shall be completely wired for radio.

"The 'School of the Air,' as the state department of education very emphatically says is in no way intended to supplant classroom teaching. It is meant to augment and supplement the face-to-face teaching of the classroom teacher. Its programs are carefully planned with the close co-operation of school people all over the state. It attempts to do only those things which may be done better by radio than by any other instrumentality. For example, the school children may read of some great current event such as the inauguration of a president or the ratifying of a peace pact, or the teacher may tell them about it. How much more compelling, vivid, memorable, it is, however, for them to hear history in the making via the loudspeaker. They may feel the pulse of the nation—the vital, throbbing present and so get a new conception of the stuff that history is made of.

The attitude of the Ohio department of education toward the "School of the Air" experiment is clearly reflected in a recent communication from J. L. Clifton, director, to co-operating teachers:

"It may be said that at no time has the world of science been so able and willing to serve education as at the present. The radio, having passed through a joyous, carefree childhood, and the storm and stress of the adolescent period, is now approaching mature, creative manhood. As it comes knocking at the schoolroom door, it says, 'Can you, will you use me? Great broadcasting stations are at our service. A wealth of talent is available, but unless there is close co-operation between the radio teacher and the classroom teacher, the pupils will profit but little.

"One marvels at the tremendous possibilities of the radio. But in the classroom use of the radio many problems remain to be solved. Extensive experimentation in the psychology of hearing should be made. New principles of teaching must be evolved. New methods must be developed, for educational broadcasting is still in the experimental stage. But a big idea is on foot, and we teachers, as a body who have always performed our duty towards public education, must co-operate in order that the radio may be made to work constantly new ways.

"Even in an age of marvels, there is something awe-inspiring about the radio. Through the radio the throbbing present may be brought home to us and the dead past made to live again. Certainly not the least of the splendid achievements in radio has been the development of radio education—the enriching and vitalizing of classroom instruction.

"Very gratifying results have already been noted. However, with the conception that this newest aid to education seeks to complement but not to substitute for the living presence of the classroom teacher, who shall set the bounds to what we may confidently expect to accomplish in advancing the ends and aims of true education in the days which lie immediately before us?"

BEAR DEVOURS CHILD SEIZED IN FARMHOUSE

First Time on Record Animal Attacks and Eats Human Being.

Winnipeg, Man.—Police have just verified the story of the first cinnamon brown bear known to have attacked a human being without provocation, which seized and devoured seven-year-old Olga Gregoricuk of Lowlands, Man., recently as she played alone with her two small brothers in the family cottage on a lonely farm.

Equipped with machine guns and special rifles, police from Winnipeg traveled 90 miles over rough roads to shoot the man-eating beast if he existed. They found the bear licking the bones of the child. He was so weak from starvation that the first shot downed him. His carcass was nine feet long and weighed only 150 pounds instead of 900 pounds, the normal weight for his size.

Bear Breaks In.
Olga and her brothers, Bill, four, and John, three, were playing school in the Gregoricuk cottage while their mother carried the midday meal to their father, who was working in the fields. The bear, crazed with hunger, lurched through the glass window of the cottage and caught hold of Olga as she and her brothers, shrieking with fear, sought refuge under the bedclothes. The bear carried the child nearly a mile before devouring her.

The First Shot Downed Him.

so that her remains were not found for several days.

Olga's brothers ran to a neighboring farmhouse with the story that their sister had been taken away by a big pig. No one took their terrible account seriously. But when their mother returned later in the day she found a bloodstained trail of bear paws which indicated beyond doubt the tragic fate which had befallen her daughter.

Even when the child's body was found, local hunters found it hard to credit the story. It had been a hunter's axiom for generations that a brown bear will never attack a human being unless he is first provoked. After the Winnipeg authorities had viewed the emaciated bear, they were forced to admit the veracity of the story.

Desperate With Hunger.
From the condition of his pelt and burned claws he appeared to have traveled many miles through forest fire areas. The berries which should have served as sustenance had been destroyed by the fires; so that he is believed to have been desperate with hunger when he attacked the child.

The half-eaten skull and a few ribs—all that were left of little Olga—were buried near the death cottage. The hunters believe that when they discovered the bear he was returning to the cottage to get an additional human meal; for he had carried back the remnants of the corpse within about 800 feet of the scene of the first tragedy.

Cow Hooks Boy in Mouth and Removes One Tonsil

Berlin, Conn.—Bernard Mazurek, four years old, of Treasure Fields, Kensington, needed his tonsils removed, but he or his parents had been putting off the dread day. Now he is rid of the bothersome tonsils, thanks to the unsolicited assistance of a cow. The boy was attempting to hook a piece of paper on the horn of a grazing cow when the animal lifted its horns and poked him in the mouth. He was taken to the office of Dr. A. J. Goodwin, where it was found that the poke had caused the removal of one tonsil and Doctor Goodwin finished the job.

Thieves Replant Spuds
Hartford, Conn.—Cautious thieves who looted Albert Uffendale's potato garden carefully replanted the stalks after they had stripped off the tubers. Uffendale did not discover the loss until he attempted to dig up his potatoes.

Arrests Own Son
Robinson, Kan.—For hunting coons out of season Phil Snooks, constable, arrested his own son, who was fined $20.

Mrs. Mildred Melville Mallison of birth-control fame ended a lecture in Kansas City with an anecdote.
"A childhood friend of mine," she said—"we'll call him George Jones—met me the other day in Cincinnati. George took me to task for my birth-control views. He wound up in a reproachful voice:
"I got 11 children, Milly."

Lunch Hour Music
Passing a London church one mid-day recently, I was tempted by the inviting shade of its porch to seek shelter from the heat of the street.
Within, my ears were greeted by a cool sound, that of a string quartette, and I discovered the players seated in the chancel of the picturesque Tudor church, discoursing that freshest of music, Haydn's. Midday concerts in city churches have grown in popularity, and now not only do they take the form of organ recitals with an occasional vocal solo, but one may chance to hear a violin or cello, a string trio or quartette, or even a gramophone recital.—London Daily Chronicle.

Why Collierville Should Observe
Thanksgiving Day
by Rev. F. A. Coyle

Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of light.—James 1:17

"Count your many blessings" is a good song and a good rule of life. Thanksgiving is a day set apart for thankfulness for temporal blessings. Why should WE be thankful?

1—For Location. In the very heart of the nation, most pleasant part of the temperate zone healthful locality, good roads just near enough to a large city.

2—For our School. Did you see our two Elizabeths smiling at you from last Sunday's paper? We are proud of that class of '29, and the records former graduates are making; proud of our teachers and our educational plant.

3—Our Citizenship. Graduates and buildings do not just happen. Schools cannot make brains; they can only develop such as are such as are sent to them. Back of all are the parents and grand-parents.

4—Our City Government. Our officials, with the cooperation of all good citizens, are giving us much to be thankful for. Our mayor shall be a living illustration of "Precious articles in small packages."

5—Our Churches. Visitors comment on our church buildings, an index to the spiritual life of the community. Somebody cares or these buildings would not have been built and maintained.

6—Our Home Paper. It is truly a "tie that binds" us gets us better acquainted, and is getting other localities acquainted with us and us with them. The Herald like the other things mentioned above, will be a greater blessing, just in proportion to the percentage of ourselves we put into it.

SHALL WE OBSERVE
THANKSGIVING DAY?

We feel that our community has much to be thankful for this year. The past year has been a good one in every way. Our people have been blessed in many ways. Crops have been good. Good health has prevailed throughout the section. We have enjoyed all these blessings and now that Thanksgiving Day, a day set apart to give thanks for all the good things we have enjoyed, will soon be here, let's plan to observe that day. Let's make it a real "Thanksgiving Day." Let everyone know in advance, and close the business houses all day that day, giving everyone an opportunity to observe this Holiday. Thanksgiving Day this year comes on Thursday, Nov. 28, and plans are being made for a Union Thanksgiving Service to be held at the Christian church that evening. Let's each of us begin right now to count up the many things we have enjoyed this past year, and get ourselves right to spend Thursday, November 28th in a real Thanksgiving manner.

Preparedness for the Blessings of Peace

At sunrise on the Eleventh of November, 1918 a little child said to her father, "Isn't the sunrise beautiful?" This strong man, with head reverently bowed, and with tears coursing down his cheeks said "yes, daughter, it is the most beautiful sunrise I have ever seen." How grateful we all were that He who holds the balance of battle in His Almighty Hand and held out the "hand that had been nailed to the Cross" and said "Peace". We felt that things would be different and wonderful and beautiful and we wonder why these eleven years have been comparatively barren of the results we expected. Strange that we can not realize that we have been frittering away the opportunities that came eleven years ago and have almost forgotten the solemn resolves to accept the Master's blessing of peace and make it a real peace by writing it in the hearts of our fellowmen after we have written it in our own. The opportunity is still ours and each day is a flaming invitation to prove the Master's blessing. Do we hesitate on account of the cost and the demands on our time and ideal? In a way we have two classes of Americans,—those who love the Flag and keep its meaning in honor and those who do not. Can we not make rich and full and sweet our birthright a American people by freeing ourselves from the practices that cheapen our Flag and by dedicating ourselves anew to the love and support of our Government and make it a Government "of the people, by the people and for the people"? Can we doubt that the Master's invitation to peace carries His guarantee that it may be accepted in His name?
R. G. Hall

No Woman Need Be A Drudge These Days

Electricity is so efficient and economical that no woman can afford to waste her time and energy in doing drudgery work in these modern days.

For a few cents an hour, Electricity will relieve her of labor in doing the washing, ironing, cleaning and cooking, leaving more time for leisure and culture.

The modern home is incomplete without adequate Electric Service.

Consult your wiring contractor when you plan to build. He will give you valuable advice.

Germantown P T A

The Germantown P T A met Nov. 14th in the school auditorium with Mrs P S McKee president presiding.

Mrs Robert Cohn had charge of the program.

Our Rhythmic Orchestra entertained us with several selections which were enjoyed immensely. Mrs J W McDonald gave us a drill in "Parliamentary Law."

We were very fortunate to have with us one of our former residents, Mrs E W Hale now of White Haven, who gave us a talk on the subject "His Part to Play."

Mrs Martha Elza Smith, Mrs Kemp Cooper, Mrs Joe Wallace and Mrs L E Dickey were appointed to make the plans for a "Radio Party" to be given in special compliment to the fathers, who are members of the Association.

Plans were made and for a "Parcel Post Party" to be given at the December meeting, for the benefit of the Association. Mrs C D Gilmer is chairman, packages will be sold and will contain articles suitable for Christmas gifts.

Miss M E Smith Home Economics teacher gave us a report of the Nutrition Class.

The children are gaining rapidly and each one striving to carry off the weekly prizes which are donated by Miss Smith.

The mothers of the Association feel very much indebted to her for her interest in the class.

The five-cent plate luncheon is a feature of the luncheon which is self-sustaining but is not operated for profit.

Germantown is the first School in Shelby County to have a Radio installed.

Lectures by the Radio House hold Institute are heard daily over the new R C A radio in the Home Economics Department, greatly benefiting the students.

The entire school enjoyed the program by Walter Damroch last week over the radio.

"STANDARD" GASOLINE

In warm weather, the difference in the quality of gasolines made by different manufacturers is less noticeable than in cold weather. Now that the days are cooler, the superior quality of Improved "Standard" Gasoline is more noticeable than ever.

"The lower initial boiling point" makes motors start easier--no need for much use of the choke, except on very cold mornings.

"The more uniform distillation chain" means a longer and stronger push--hence quicker pick-up, more power and speed, dependable high mileage, smoother operation with less vibration and fuel knocks.

"The lower end-point" means cleaner burning, with less carbon and less dilution of the motor oil.

Improve the performance of your motor at no additional cost. Stop at the nearest "Standard" Dealer's and have your tank filled with Improved "Standard" Gasoline.

Remember that many motors need a lighter oil for winter driving than they do for summer. Consult the "Standard" Chart of Recommendations for the correct grade of "Standard" Motor Oil for your car at this season.

The DAIRY

CONTROL GARLIC BY FALL PLOWING

Keep Plants Down by Grazing Live Stock.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. Timely plowing late each fall and again early in the spring...

Bad Practice to Leave Calf With Cow Very Long

A common practice is to leave the calf with the cow for the first three or four days. This plan allows the calf to be with the cow during the time when the udder is inflamed...

Skim Milk Calf

The skim milk calf should be allowed to eat some grain. One good mixture consists of equal parts of corn meal, wheat bran, and ground oats...

Dairy Facts

Sentimental regard for a bull is usually misplaced. Every farmer who milks ten or more cows can hardly afford to be without a silo.

Where nonlegume roughages are used in the ration, the protein is low and must be furnished in the grain ration. Experimental results show that milk and fat can be produced at a lower cost where silage is included in the winter ration.

Control of Oat Smut With Dust

Disease Will Respond in Same Manner as With Copper Carbonate.

Indications are that the smut disease of oats will also respond to dust treatments in the same manner that treatment with copper carbonate dust is now satisfactorily controlling smut in wheat.

Tennessee Says Farmers Can Go Broke Farming

The division of extension of the University of Tennessee has recently released ten points telling how farmers can go broke farming. Farmers will be interested in these points in order that they may avoid the consequences.

Fresh Air Movement of Benefit to Seed Corn

Seed corn should be kept where there is good air movement so that the products thrown off by respiration may be readily moved away from the corn, or there may be a loss of vitality.

Inspect Equipment to Order Needed Repairs

It is a good idea for farmers to look over their machinery in ample time to place orders for repairs. The farm equipment industries prepare, during the winter, for furnishing repair parts and they can serve agriculture to good advantage.

Inefficient Methods

The feeling has grown more prevalent in recent years that inefficient methods and practices in farming are as wasteful and unprofitable as undesirable live stock or crops.

Strawberry Crop Is Put in Cold Storage

Berries Are Like Fresh Ones From Field When Used.

More than 100,000 barrels of strawberries were packed by the "cold-pack" or "frozen-pack" method in 1928, according to George M. Darrow, senior pomologist of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Soil Erosion Control Is Big Farm Problem

The control of soil erosion is a major agricultural problem. Its consideration is prominent in programs of most learned societies having to do with agriculture. In Illinois alone, thousands of tons of our best soil is washed away each year to be deposited in sand bars on the Mississippi or in deltas of lower Louisiana.

Check Movement of Sand by Planting Pine Trees

Sixty years ago the father of Senator Henry W. Keyes was troubled with the blowing of sand from a certain part of his property at Haverhill, N. H., says a report to the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture.

Agricultural Notes

- Winter is the time of year when the poultry flock needs the most attention. Shavings are better than straw for litter and for nest material to prevent soiled eggs. Have you tried putting nicotine sulphate on the roosts just before nightfall to rid the poultry of lice? Pulletts must have proper body size and weight if they are to lay large eggs steadily through the winter. Poultry house floors should be higher by six or eight inches than the surroundings to insure good drainage. One of the biggest mistakes that a poultry raiser can make is to underfeed pullets during the growing season. Encourage chickens to roost while they are still young to prevent crooked breast bones and crowding and to aid ventilation. There is very little danger of hens getting too fat in the winter, and it is a certainty that they cannot lay unless they are reasonably fat. Put alfalfa or clover hay in an open wire basket where the hens can get the leaves. They are a first-class substitute for green feeds during winter.

POULTRY FACTS

HEAT AND LIGHT MEAN MORE EGGS

Maintain Feed Consumption in Sudden Cold Spells.

Heat and light in the hen house mean more eggs when eggs are high in price. And the purpose of both heating and lighting is to keep the laying hen eating as much feed as she can be persuaded to take.

Poultry Tuberculosis Widespread in Spots

Tuberculosis in poultry flocks has been found much more prevalent than was suspected, and in many counties, especially in some of the North Central states, the disease is present to a greater or less extent in about 70 per cent of the flocks, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Number of Elemental Eggs Developed by Hen

A pullet at maturity has a certain number of elemental eggs which may be developed. Counts at the Maine experiment station show from 1,000 to 2,500. More recent investigations show even greater numbers.

Poultry Hints

- Crowding at the feed hopper stunts the growth of chicks. Lameness is one of the first symptoms of tuberculosis in poultry. Keep the nonlayers out of the flock by culling out birds with yellow beaks and shanks. If the hens are kept indoors throughout the winter, they should be given cod liver oil as a substitute for sunshine. The majority of poultry buyers are now refusing to buy any poultry that is diseased or which is not in condition to be put in fattening pens. Much of the recent experimental work shows a benefit in the health of the hens, and especially on the hatchability of the eggs, if the birds have free range all winter. Crowded houses cause many good birds to become pale faced and later join the cull class. Turkeys may die of black head at any time from three weeks old to three or more years. The only safe way is to keep young turkeys on clean ground away from chickens and old turkeys. Pulletts should be placed in the laying house when they show signs of being nearly ready to lay. The comb and wattles begin to enlarge and take on a bright red color.

The Romilly Pride

By JANE OSBORN (Copyright.)

A HIGH-POWERED but dusty automobile slowed down on the main street of the little village of Brompton. The driver called to the only citizen who happened to be in sight, Bob Thorold. "Say, young feller," called he, "what sort of a place is it out there on the turnpike? Can you get a decent meal, hey?"

"How amazingly well you are looking," Bob exclaimed. "Yes," laughed Jane. "The work seems to agree with me."

"Don't talk about such things," he burst out. "Jane, Jane if this had only come sooner. I was in love with you—I always have been, but I never dared to ask you, because I was afraid of your money and your pride. I know you are still proud."

"No, Bob, I confess the Romilly pride is slipping away. I've learned a lot in ten years, and this little business venture, which really has been absurdly profitable, has taught me that people are pretty much the same wherever you find them. No, Bob, the Romilly fortune has remained and I'm adding to it, but the old Romilly pride—"

"Then you didn't lose your money?" gasped Bob Thorold. "Why, that's the joke. People don't think I lost my money, do they? Well, that makes it all the more interesting. No, some one of the editors of the Guide Book just made a funny mistake. Probably thought our house looked like a roadside and assumed it was. So the people began to come, and they were hungry, and it was such fun feeding them and so hard to explain the mistake every time, that I just started in. I wanted to see if I had any of the Romilly bump for business. Imagine those inquisitive old Brompton natives just making it up out of whole cloth that I'd lost my money—"

"I never would have come to see you if I had not believed them," said Bob. Jane Romilly leaned forward and placed a fair, capable hand over one of Bob's. "Perhaps I could manage to lose it—"

John's Mother Praises Doctor

There isn't a mother living who won't agree that no half-sick child should be the subject for an experiment with medicines of uncertain merit. When your child is bilious, head-achy, half-sick, feverish, restless, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, you know that all times out of ten it's a sign his little stomach and bowels need purging.

HANFORD'S Balsam of Myrrh A Healing Antiseptic

Close Golf Walter Hagen told a golf story at a dinner in Hollywood. "The Scotch," he said, "take their golf very seriously. Two Scotchmen, Angus and Saunders, were playing a close round of golf one day, and at the seventeenth hole they tied, and the excitement was great.

Sunshine Made for Mines Workers in a large western mine, deprived of sunlight because they labor far below the ground, are provided with artificial sunshine.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps Her So Much

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"I was just completely run-down. I had tired, heavy, sluggish feelings and I could not eat. I was losing weight. I read so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what a good medicine it is, that I started taking it. I have taken eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and about the same in tablet form. This is one medicine a woman should have in the house all the time. I am improving every day and I sure am able to eat. I am willing to answer any letters I get asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. ELLA BURCHAM, 51 Chestnut St., N. E., Pittsburgh, Pa.
