FACTS and FICTION BEING A Little Bit About Anything

"Read not to Contradict and Confute, nor to find Talk and Discourse, but to Weigh and Consider."—Francis Bacon.

As this column appears we will have just past the 1929th anniversary of the birth of Jesus. We will have eaten our Christmas dinner, received and given our gifts, and many of us, no doubt, gave but little thought to spirit that makes Christmas.

The day is past, and another year is out before us. Before we get busy with this new year let's read again:

And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid on a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them; Fear not, for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord.—Luke 11. 7-11.

At the Hermitage Hotel in Nashville, a few nights ago, a banquet was given to Tennessee's eight master farmers of 1929. These men with their wives have been selected by the University of Tennessee and The Progressive Farmer as the outstanding farmers of Tennessee. They were judged by:

(1) the operation and organization of their farms; (2) their business methods and ability; (3) the appearance and upkeep of their farms and homes; (4) their home life; (5) their citizenship.

The day is passed when "the book farmer" is the laughing stock of the community. It is generally conceded by all intelligent people that farming is a scientific business, and such Master Farmers as these at the Hermitage banquet are living examples of what careful methods will accomplish on the farm. Mr and Mrs H P Tiggrett of Dyer County and Mr and Mrs P G Browns of Obion were West Tennessee Representatives.

Now that Commander Byrd has made his successful flight over the South Pole, what are we going to do about it?

The average temperature at "Little America", his main supply base, was 44 degrees below zero during September. This is 800 miles from the pole. If Commander Byrd were to discover gold, oil, coal or any other valuable substance down there, it could stay so far as most of us are concerned.

It is said that a man from North Dakota with the Byrd expedition discovered for the first time that his home was in a tropical country.

"The younger generations are taking too much license" some one complains. We wonder if he means dog, ear, or marriage license.

There is one good thing about New Years Resolutions, and that is the supply is unlimited.

Christian Endeavor Sponsors Christmas Tree

The Christmas tree Tuesday night sponsored by the Endeavor Society was enjoyed by everyone present. The tree and program were under the leadership of a committee composed of Mary Frances Leake, Elizabeth Thomas, Oneida Leake, and Bessie Crawford.

Several Christmas songs were sung by the C E Choir. Mildred Hart gave the scripture Luke 2: 7-20 by memory, a very impressive part of the program. One song was sung by the Sunday Endeavor, and recitations were given by Mildred Hart and Dorris Kirk. The old favorite Christmas Song, "Low in a Manger" was sung by La Force Leake and Dorris Kirk.

The presents were distributed by the Endeavor girls assisted by some of the small boys. This proved to be the most interesting part to the children. The Christian Endeavors were glad to help make Christmas merry for the children.

The Christian Endeavor is planning a joint meeting with the Germantown Endeavor Society Sunday Dec. 29, at 7 P M. We will be glad to have all our friends go and enjoy this meeting with us. Both societies will take part on the program. Our Endeavor will meet at the regular time 6:00 P M and go from the church to Germantown.

Young People's Federation

Monday night, Dec 30th, is our next Federation meeting. Notice the change from Saturday to Monday night. The meeting will be at Collierville Christian church. We are anxious to have an extra good crowd and every young people's society represented as we will have our annual election. We are very anxious to have all the young people's societies join our Federation. We always have good programs so you will enjoy our meetings. Everyone is invited to come and help the Federation elect their new officers.

Christian Church

On account of the bad weather the regular preaching service was postponed until next Sunday Dec. 29, it being the 5th Sunday. We will have services at the regular hours Sunday morning but on account of the joint C.E. meeting at Germantown, there will be no night service at the Collierville Christian Church.

F A Coyle, Pastor

SOCIETY

Misses Sara Kerr and Dorothy Hinton were the charming young hostesses on Tuesday afternoon at a rook party in special compliment to their house guests, Misses Ruth Meacham and Martha Sinclair.

Beautiful decorations in keeping with the Christmas season were used throughout the room thrown open to the guests. On each of the three tables was a bonbon basket holding delicious Christmas candies. Lovely refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to the following guests, Misses Maud and Melba Cartwright, Cecelia Morris, Janie and Elizabeth Carrington, Dorris Kirk, Lila Sigrest, Eleanor Fleming and the honorees.

Baptist Christmas Program And Christmas Tree

On Monday night the Baptist Church observed the regular Christmas program in connection with the Christmas trees. The program under the direction of Miss Katherine Burchett, consisted of songs and readings by the little folks and a pageant by the older ones. The program was well rendered and showed much talent on the part of the performers. At the close of the program, gifts from the tree were distributed.

Appreciates Christmas Edition

Below is given a letter from our good friend, Hon. Hubert F. Fisher, who is always a booster for Collierville:

Washington

23 December 1929

Mr Walter H. Harris, Editor
The Collierville Herald,
Collierville, Tennessee.

My dear Mr Harris;

I have just received the Christmas edition of your paper and permit me to congratulate you on this occasion. It is full of local news through the county and shows a very progressive spirit on your part.

With best wishes for the Holidays, I am,

Very sincerely yours,
Hubert F. Fisher.

To Our Readers

It is generally the custom not to print a paper Christmas week but we decided to print one anyway and found on account of our large edition last week, using extra paper and materials we were unable to secure enough to get out the regular edition this week, hence only four pages—the Herald forces enjoyed the two day Holiday anyway.

LOCALS & PERSONALS

Mr and Mrs Jackson and son, Cavitt, of Artesia, New Mexico, and Mr and Mrs Meacham and daughter Ruth of Meridian, Miss., are guests of Mr and Mrs Sam Hinton Jr. Miss Jackson and Meacham are sisters of Mrs Hinton.

South Wide B Y P U Conference In Memphis, Dec. 31-Jan. 2

On the morning of Dec. 31 the young people and B Y P U experts from all over the South will meet in Memphis at the Auditorium for a three days conference known as the first South wide B Y P U Conference. A magnificent program will be presented. The keynote will be "No Other Name". The program is erected around this keynote. The conference is promoted by the Baptist Sunday School Board. Speakers from all over the South will appear on the program among them being Dr John L Hill, Dr Austin Crouch, Mr George Baird, Miss Winnie Richett, Dr Leavell, Dr Van Ness, Dr George W Truett, and many other outstanding Baptists and B Y P U Leaders. On the night of the 31st beginning about nine o'clock the Shelby County Association B Y P U with Mr George A Baird as President will entertain the visitors with a watch party lasting until twelve o'clock. On this program there will be a Pageant, "The Ninety and Nine" given by the Senior B Y P U Dept of Shelby County. The Intermediates of Shelby County will play in a Kitchen Orchestra, consisting of about one hundred pieces. There will be six from the Collierville Church who will play in the Orchestra, namely, Misses Gertha Hale, Lordeanya and Sadie McCandless, Laura Elizabeth Hill, Lorraine Burchett, and Mary Fleming. If you want to enjoy a thing and laugh to your hearts content just be there on the night of the 31st and hear this Orchestra. All kinds of kitchen utensils will be played on. This Orchestra is sponsored by Miss Edna Earle Rosenheim of Memphis, Intermediate Leader of Shelby County and directed by Mr George A Baird. On the afternoon of the 2nd there will be a Bible Drill or Sword Drill, a representative from each state taking part. Charles Jones of Forest Hill represents Tennessee. We are counting on Charles winning and we are backing him up. Quite a number from Collierville expect to attend this conference.

Miss Martha Sinclair of Artesia New Mexico is the guest of Miss Dorothy Hinton.

Miss Ruth Rush is spending the holidays at her home in Philadelphia, Miss.

Walter Lawhe and wife of Walter Valley, spent the Holidays with their mother, Mrs W E Crum.

STORY FROM THE START

In the usually quiet home of Rev. Mr. Tolliver of Red Thrush, Iowa, his motherless daughters, Helen, Miriam and Ellen—"Ginger Ella"—are busy "grooming" their sister Marjory for participation in the "beauty pageant" that evening. With Eddy Jackson, prosperous young farmer, her escort, Marjory leaves for the anticipated triumph. Overwork has seriously affected Mr. Tolliver's eyes. Marjory wins the beauty prize, $50.00. She gives the money to her father to consult Chicago specialists. Ginger meets Alexander Murdock, Mr. Tolliver returns, the doctors giving him little hope. Ginger gets an idea for a "Parsonage Home for the Blind" and solicits funds. She gets results at once. Helen is married and leaves the parsonage. Mr. Tolliver goes to Eddy Jackson's farm for a rest. Hiram Buckworth is engaged as substitute pastor.

CHAPTER V—Continued

"Yes, such a nice man. That's your bathroom—you needn't be afraid to use it. It goes with this room. We have another one at the back. Marjory empties the closet for you, and the bureau drawers are empty. We have supper at six o'clock, and—Oh, I forgot to introduce the girls. But they didn't come down, did they?"

Beneath the bed, Marjory writhed in helpless fury at the poor woman's fluttering anxiety. But she went out at last, and closed the door behind her. Marjory lay rigid beneath the bed, hating the young preacher, hating Miss Jenkins, despising herself for her childish curiosity. Her only hope was that quick-witted Ginger, missing her, would guess her predicament, and devise a scheme to get the new boarder out of the room for a while. Unfortunately, Ginger was in a predicament of her own.

But Hiram Buckworth knew nothing of these unpleasant complications. He put his bag on a chair, and opened it, leisurely. Then he went to the closet, and looked in. Crossed to the windows, and looked out. Stood before the bookshelves, examining the titles of books, now and then taking out a volume for a brief inspection.

"Oh, dear heaven," prayed Marjory, "don't let him get inspired to write a sermon."

Hiram Buckworth left the bookshelves, and had a look at the bathroom. He was whistling softly between his teeth. No hymn the tune that he whistled, something light, something catchy, with rolling cadences. Presently he broke into song, low song, barely more than a hum, in a pleasant low voice.

"Now I ask you—very confidentially—Ain't she—sweet?"

Slowly, he removed his coat, shook it out, and hung it over the back of the chair, and took off his collar and tie. From his bag, he drew out a fresh lot of ties, and selected one with nice discrimination, his eyes flashing quick comparisons in color tones from box to tie.

"Oh, I hope he isn't going to change his clothes," thought Marjory, and shut her eyes very tightly indeed.

Hiram Buckworth went to the bathroom, and turned both faucets into the tub. Marjory could hear the trickle of the water over his fingers as he tested the warmth of it.

"Very confidentially—"

Marjory, beneath the bed, was bathed in cold perspiration. He came deliberately back into the room, took shoes from the bag, removed the shoetrees noisily, shook out fresh shirts and placed them in the drawer. Finally, from the rack, he chose a thick bath towel. Marjory watching through the sheltering lace fringe saw him return to the bathroom. The door—would he close it? His hand was on the knob. Yes, he pulled it—slowly. It was ajar—a little—just a very little—

The door slammed shut.

Not one moment did Marjory Tolliver linger beneath that bed. She gathered together all her little young muscles, and with one vigorous jerk, propelled her slim body from beneath the bed in the direction of the door, the hall door. She leaped to her feet, and flashed into the hallway. Hiram Buckworth hearing the slight sound, the click of the latch, opened the bathroom door.

"Yes?" he called. "What is it?"

The door to the hall stood open. He crossed the room, and looked down the corridor. At the farther end, he saw, or thought he saw, the flying French heel of a white slipper.

"Haunted," he said to himself. "That's nice."

But when he went back into the room, he not only closed the door, carefully, but turned the key in the lock as well.

"I ask you—very confidentially—"

—he whistled softly as he turned back into the bathroom—"Ain't she—sweet?"

Miss Jenkins had gone straight from her reception of the new minister to the rescue of Ginger Ella, for she had rightly interpreted both the sudden crash and the ensuing silence as indicative of disaster in that direction. Unfortunately for that young person, the apple barrel had nails in it, nails that stuck in ward. Ginger, bleeding on both arms, bruised on both knees, and altogether furious, was further annoyed by the fact that she was pinned into the barrel by the turning nails. At every slight motion to extricate herself, there were ominous little sounds of tearing cloth spelling ruin for the summer frock. With Miss Jenkins' help, however, she managed at last, slowly, not without pain, to get herself out of the barrel with only a few minor rents and stains of blood upon the precious garment.

Some two hours later, Hiram Buckworth, with his most ingratiating smile, stepped out onto the rambling-shaded veranda, where his eyes fell upon a pleasant picture. Miss Jenkins sat in a low rocker, carefully mending a torn new summer frock, while Ginger, in a plain flame-colored smock, sat on a stool shelling peas. And in the hammock, one slim foot crossed over the other, both white arms over her head, lay Marjory, so still and lovely that Hiram Buckworth caught his breath at sight of her.

"I beg pardon," he said pleasantly, "may I come out? I don't have to stay in my room until supper, do I?"

Marjory sat stiffly upright in the hammock. Ginger shook the dust of the garden from her hands, and set the pan of peas on the floor at her side. Miss Jenkins flushed and fluttered anxiously.

"Of course not," she stammered. "I mean, by all means. Come right over. I was going to introduce you to the girls, anyhow."

Hiram Buckworth joined the small group in the shadowy corner.

"This is Marjory, Marjory Tolliver," fluttered Miss Jenkins. "Not the oldest—Helen is the oldest, but she's married—Marjory is one of the twins. And this is Ginger Ella. Ellen, I mean. We just call her Ginger. She's the baby."

Marjory indicated the other rocker with a graceful gesture of a white hand. "Do sit down," she said.

Hiram Buckworth looked hard at Marjory.

"Twins," he said. "It doesn't seem possible."

Marjory's lovely eyes questioned him mutely.

"Does she, the other twin, look like you?"

Seam of Burning Coal Keeps Mountain Warm

A unique Australian phenomenon is the "Burning Mountain" at Wingen in northern New South Wales, which scientists say has been on fire 1,000 years.

According to a party of geologists, who have just returned from an exploration of the mountain, says an Associated Press dispatch from Sydney, there lies below the surface a burning coal seam. Long before European settlement in Australia, "Burning Mountain" was known to the aborigines, and to them it owes its name, Wingen, signifying "fire."

The geologists report that the summit presents the appearance of the debris of a vast block of buildings consumed by fire with an explosion or

"Oh, no, no indeed, not a bit," chattered Miss Jenkins. "Just the opposite, you might say. Miriam is still and dark and—"

"Miriam is very brainy," interposed Ginger quickly.

"I thought there couldn't be two," he said, in a tone of great relief. They talked together in the comradely fashion of paragon people the world over, as a family, one in spirit.

"I wish I could see your father today," he said. "I should feel more at home in his pulpit if I knew him personally. Don't you suppose we could rent a car tonight, and drive out to see him? If it is not too far?"

"Eddy Jackson would come for us," said Ginger.

"Tub Andrews would take us," suggested Marjory.

"Mr. Tolliver would be so pleased—such a nice man," said Miss Jenkins.

"Can't we just rent a car? I hate to bother your friends—and it wouldn't cost much."

"But when you take out ten dollars for board," said Ginger warningly.

"Or perhaps Miss Jenkins here forgot to tell you about it," Marjory added.

"I don't recall that she mentioned it," he said pleasantly. "It seems very reasonable indeed."

"But when you consider that you only get fifteen—" Ginger's voice trailed off to a significant silence.

"But we decided that if you objected, we would keep you for eight," encouraged Marjory.

"I shouldn't think of objecting," he said. "Quite the contrary. I am sure putting up with me is worth even more."

"And I will do your laundry with the girls," added Miss Jenkins. "And there really isn't much to spend money for in Red Thrush."

They told him of their father, of his patience, his faith, his sense of humor. They told him of Joplin Westbury, and the new church. They told him of Eddy Jackson, at Pay Dirt.

"And whose boy-friend is Eddy Jackson?" he asked, reflective eyes on Marjory, sitting stiffly erect in the hammock.

"Nobody's. Eddy Jackson isn't that kind," said Ginger indignantly.

"I may as well explain Ginger. I mean Ellen, right at the start," said Marjory, laughing. "She is against boy-friends. She thinks they are simply disgusting. And she thinks the rest of us—even Miss Jenkins—are simply man-mad. Ginger thinks a man who 'paws' should be shot at sunrise, if not sooner."

He smiled understandingly. "And who, then, is Eddy Jackson?"

"Eddy Jackson," exclaimed Ginger, with one of her broad sweeping gestures, "is father's best and dearest and most intimate friend, a genuine character, and no base pretender."

In the early evening, answering their meek request over the telephone, Eddy Jackson, busy with his experiments, sent one of the college students in his car for them and they drove out to the farm. Eddy was still busy in the laboratory, but Mr. Tolliver waited on the porch for them, with Miriam, and—this to Ginger's speechless fury—Alexander Murdock.

Without a word to any of them, she marched into the laboratory, completely spoiling a delicate experiment.

"Eddy Jackson, you double-crossed me."

"I did not," he denied, quickly following her line of thought. "I didn't invite him. He came out by himself this afternoon, and he looked at Miriam, and stayed. I don't think he'll ever go home again. And besides, you didn't tell me to keep him away from anybody but Marjory."

This Ginger could not deny, so, with her usual sang froid, she dismissed the entire subject, and led Eddy out to meet the new minister.

Hiram Buckworth shook hands with him cordially. "I am glad to meet you," he said, "and I am looking forward most keenly to knowing your father. I have heard nothing but the recital of his rare virtues since I reached Red Thrush."

"My father?" Eddy was non-plused. "You must be mistaken. I have no father, my father is dead—"

"Oh, I beg pardon. I see I am mistaken. I inferred that it was your father—they merely spoke of him as Eddy Jackson, Mr. Tolliver's particular friend and crony."

Eddy looked unutterable things. "Oh you mean me. I am Eddy Jackson. The only one."

"You? But, gracious, they said—Well, I understand—My mistake, I see, excuse me."

"I know," Eddy Jackson laughed. "You mean Ginger Ella. Sure. She puts me, and her father, and Moses in the same class. We're all arch-angels together."

FELLOWSHIP THROUGH WORSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Neh. 8:1-12; Micah 4:1, 2; Ps. 122:1-9; Heb. 10:23-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—As his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Worshiping God Together.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Worshiping God Together.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Taking a Real Part in Worship.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Common Worship and the Community Spirit.

I. The Place of the Bible in Worship (Neh. 8:1-12).

1. The reading of God's word (vv. 1-3).

(1) The eager assembly (v. 1). The people gathered themselves together and requested Ezra to bring the book of the law. God had touched their hearts, creating within them a yearning for His Word.

(2) It was a representative assembly (v. 2). It was made up of men, women and children. God's Word should be taught to all classes, men, women and children.

(3) An appreciative assembly (v. 3). So eager were they to know God's Word that they did not get tired, although the lesson lasted five or six hours. Their ears were attentive from morning until midday.

2. The attitude of the people toward God's Word (vv. 4-6).

(1) They revered it (vv. 4, 5). When Ezra opened the law all the people stood up out of respect for God's Word.

(2) They joined heartily in the prayer (v. 6). As Ezra led them in prayer, they united in saying, "Amen, Amen, bowing their faces to the ground."

3. God's Word being interpreted (vv. 7, 8).

(1) Ezra stood up where the people could see him (v. 5).

(2) He read distinctly (v. 8). The manner in which many read the Scriptures greatly discredits them.

(3) He caused the people to understand the reading (v. 8). The supreme business of the minister is to make the Word of God plain to all, old and young.

4. Effect of the application of God's Word upon the life of the people (vv. 9-12).

(1) Conviction of sin (v. 9).

The divine method of convicting men of sin is the application of God's Word in the energy of the Holy Ghost.

(2) Weeping turned into joy (vv. 10-12). Forgiveness follows the recognition and confession of sin.

(3) Their blessings were shared with others (vv. 10-12).

II. Jerusalem the World's Central Place of Worship (Micah. 4:1, 2).

1. Its place of supremacy (v. 1).

In the last days, Messiah's kingdom, with Jerusalem as its capital, shall prevail over all kingdoms.

2. The peoples, Jews, shall flow unto it (v. 1). It will be a beautiful sight to see the Jews who have been scattered all over the world come to Jerusalem as a mighty flowing stream.

3. The Gentile nations shall go there to worship (v. 2).

4. The supreme purpose of their going will be to be taught of God, that they may walk in His ways (v. 2).

What a wonderful day when all peoples of the world shall worship together in God's holy temple!

III. The Song of the Worshipers (Ps. 122:1-9).

This psalm is one of the songs sung by the Jews as they made their pilgrimages to Jerusalem to worship at the great festivals. This song embodies the following great ideas:

1. The joy of the worshipers (vv. 1, 2).

The invitation to go up to the house of the Lord to worship stirred within them delightful emotions.

2. Love and admiration for God's house (vv. 3, 4).

We should go to the house of worship because we love the place. Like Jesus, we should regard it as our Father's house.

3. It was the seat of royalty (v. 5).

When Christ's kingdom shall be established in Jerusalem, worshipers will delight to journey there because of their love for Him.

4. Prayer for God's house; prayer for the peace of Jerusalem (vv. 6-9).

It is our duty as well as privilege to pray for Israel. God blesses those who are kindly disposed toward His chosen people (Gen. 12:1-3).

One Way to Help God

There is but one way in which man can ever help God—that is by letting God help him; and there is no way in which His name is more gloriously taken in vain than by calling the abandonment of our own work, the performance of His—Ruskin.

The Book of God and Prayer

Give the Book of God its place in prayer. Prayer is not talking to God simply; it is listening first, then speaking.—S. D. Gordon.

Vessels May Be Older Than St. Patrick's Time

An interesting archeological discovery was made by men clearing an old ditch at Mornington, county Louth, Ireland, a village at the mouth of the Boyne.

Mornington is connected by tradition with St. Patrick, who in 432, after unsuccessful efforts to effect a landing in other parts of Ireland, entered the Boyne there and ran his vessel into what was then known as the harbor at Colpa, now called Colp.

In a ditch into which within living memory the Boyne used to flow, forming a natural harbor, workmen unearthed the timbers of several oaken vessels lying at an angle to the stream and apparently of great age. The length of the vessels cannot be ascertained until after further excavations.

The fact that sandy soil will preserve oak for thousands of years opens up the possibility that the vessels may be even older than St. Patrick's time. Steps have been taken to protect them until they have been seen by an archeological expert.

Champion Egg Tester

The "egg wizard" is the name given Miss May Norton of the United Dairies, London. She can toss them about as a juggler does billiard balls, but her specialty is passing them in front of a light at the rate of 1,440 an hour. Miss Norton's official title is egg tester. It is her job to see whether an egg is new laid, fresh, or on the stale side. She does it by a present-day candle method, which consists of putting a black metal box with a hole at one end around an electric globe and letting the rays strike through the eggs when held up to the aperture. In response to a challenge by a farmer, Miss Norton once tested 360 eggs in 12 minutes. Since she started she has not had a single break.

Camera Finishes Picture

Invented by a blind man, a camera which takes pictures and makes prints at practically the same time, has appeared in London. It has two lenses, one being the ordinary camera "eye," and the other admitting only ultraviolet rays. Films and paper are inserted together, and whenever the shutter is opened a secret "gas" is released from a small cylinder to develop, fix and print the exposures. When the spool is removed the photographs are unwound at the same time.

Super Talk

Peggy Udell, the Follies girl who is going to enter a convent, criticized the movies at a night club.

"The movies," she said, "are enough to send any girl into a convent. All this super talk! Every film is a super-film nowadays. A man said to me the other night:

"I don't see any difference at all between a film and a super-film."

"The more fool you, then," said I. "At a super-film the prices are double."

Mechanical Violin

Said to play with an uncanny human touch, a mechanical violin has been invented by two engineers in France. It has a number of keys which press the strings like the left hand of a player, and a revolving bow which permits different degrees of pressure. The violin is driven by two motors. One takes the place of the player's arm and the other imparts the swift movements of the wrist.

Puzzled

Los Angeles is all hopped up over the boy who is too smart to go to school, but here is another lad who apparently is not so dull.

"You know," said his mother, "Adam and Eve were driven out of the Garden of Eden."

"But, Mother, who was their chauffeur?" asked the lad.

Not to Stay

The Letter "E"

"Someone has decided," says the Tacoma Bulletin, "that the letter 'e' is the most unfortunate letter in the alphabet, because it is always out of cash, forever in bet, never out of danger, and in hell all the time. No little credit is due, however, in that it is never in war, and always in peace. And we are deeply indebted to this little letter, since it is the beginning of existence, the commencement of ease and the end of trouble. Without it there would be no meat, no life and no heaven. It is the center of honesty, and, although it starts off in error, it ends in making love perfect."

Evading British Law

There is only one place in which you can safely play poker in the British Isles—that is a carriage of a moving train. But you must stop playing the moment the train stops. The law against gaming was passed before the days of trains, and speaks of "gaming in a particular place," but a train in motion cannot be classed under this heading.

TENNESSEE'S CHAMPION DAIRY CATTLE JUDGES

The University of Tennessee Dairy Cattle Judging Team which won second place and highest individual honors in competition with 83 contestants from 28 states in the Inter-collegiate Dairy Cattle Judging Contest held at the National Dairy Show, St. Louis, the week of October 14.

They are left to right: Prof. C. Elmer Wylie, Coach; William E. Carpenter who was high individual of the nation in judging all breeds of dairy cattle, and H. D. Adkins, Houston County, and R. C. Spaulding, Franklin County. Members of the team are all juniors in the College of Agriculture.

Carpenter is a former 4-H Club boy of McMinn County, where he won signal honors for his excellent work as a club member and as a livestock judge at many of the large fairs in the State.

The standing of the first 20 teams out of 28 representing Agricultural Colleges of the United States and Canada, was as follows:

1. Missouri; 2. Tennessee; 3. Kansas; 4. Oklahoma; 5. Ohio; 6. Purdue; 7. Georgia; 8. Arizona; 9. Illinois; 10. Iowa; 11. Michigan; 12. Cornell; 13. Oregon; 14. Minnesota; 15. Virginia; 16. Texas; 17. Nebraska; 18. Massachusetts; 19. Ontario, Canada; 20. North Dakota.

This is the first time that a Southern College has even won such signal honors at the National Dairy Exposition and is a record that every Tennessean should be proud of, Dean C. A. Willson of the State College, states.

TIMBER HELPS FINANCE THE FARMER

Woodlands often occupy a substantial part of the farm area. This resource is interwoven with the farm business and management and provides a part of the regular farm income.

Timber is a crop. It differs from other crops only in the length of its growing period, or age at maturity for market.

To enable one to obtain security or credit, wood and timber on the farm have some definite advantages. They make certain types of land an asset instead of a liability. This is because the lands, unit for any other use, are utilized and bring in an income. Timber growing banishes waste spaces and gives better balance to the farm crops.

Timber comprises a farm crop that has steadily increased in value, while others have in some years been subject to ruinous prices. Timber and wood bid far to continue to gain in value.

The timber crop readily responds to care and improved methods of management. For example: A 100-acre tract of woodland that is to-day bringing in an income warranting a valuation of $2,000, can be doubled in value by protection from fire and better practices of cutting. This is a big consideration when it comes to paying off a long-term mortgage.

The woodland crop is the only crop on the farm that is held by the first mortgage. In other words, the first mortgage amounts to a crop mortgage when secured by timber.

Wood and timber gain in volume even though a farm may be abandoned. While other income may fall very low or cease altogether, the timber crop continues to gain. This feature is important in maintaining the value of the farm in the face of the town industries which tend to lead the farmer away from agriculture and cause him to neglect his farm business.

The timber crop furnishes winter work at a time when men and teams are not otherwise profitably employed. It thus permits a better balanced farm unit, lowering the cost of production of all the crops grown on the farm.

NO BULL IS SAFE!

No bull is safe and any effort to make a pet of the animal is a mistake livestock experts advise. They state the young bull should be firmly handled from calfhood and should be taught to recognize man as his master. He should first be halter broken and when about one year old a strong ring should be inserted in his nose. By keeping him in a well-built stall and using only strong, properly-fitted ties he can be prevented from learning his tremendous strength. All bulls more than a year old should be regarded with suspicion and taught to know their place. Sentimental regard for a bull is always misplaced.

The horns of a bull may be removed at an early age or later if desired. With the young calf the use of caustic potash before the horns have started growing is the most humane method to follow. Some stockmen prefer to delay the removal until the bull has reached maturity, when the ordeal of removal and the loss of the horns will tend to "take the conceit out of him." While the dehorned bull is still dangerous, much would be gained if all bulls were dehorned early in life.

SHORTAGE OF HORSES AND MULES SEEN

A report on the horse-breeding situation in the United States, including stallion and jack enrollment, indicates an impending shortage of good horses and mules within a few years. The price cycle of horses and mules already has turned upward. Draft horses with size and quality are in strong demand at good prices, and the demand for saddle horses is nation-wide. Desirable saddle horses and polo mounts are bringing exceptionally good prices.

The report shows that although stallions have decreased in numbers, a higher percentage of these sires are purebred than in former years. Many of them, however, will soon be too old for breeding service and will have to be replaced by younger animals. The Government specialists advise farmers to study their farm-power situation carefully and to select breeding stock of the type that will produce high-quality horses and mules, for which there should be good prices a few years hence.

LATE FALL PLOWING CHECKS GARLIC

A little garlic is all right in soup, if you like it, but the flavor in flour or milk is decidedly undesirable. Plowing late each fall and again in early spring, followed by the growing of a thoroughly cultivated row crop, is thus far the best known method of killing wild garlic on cultivated land, but this method must be followed for three years or more in order to clean up the weed, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Fairly deep plowing should be started in the fall in time to destroy young late-summer plants before they produce new bulbs. This work should be done as a rule in October or November in the South and about a month later in the North. The garlic tops must be plowed under completely or else they will keep on growing.

HOG CHOLERA LOSSES DECLINE

Hog cholera seems to be slightly less prevalent this year than last, and last year the losses from the disease were the lowest since the United States Department of Agriculture has been keeping records, Dr. U. G. Houck, associate chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry announced recently.

FARM FACTS

All bulls more than a year old should be regarded with suspicion and taught to know their place.

The demand for good horses and mules is on the rise after several years of depression.

Forest fires cost the South millions of dollars annually. Prevent them stop them!

Late fall and early spring plowing offers the most effective method of killing out wild onions.

Much of the clover failure in Tennessee is due to the sowing of seed grown outside of the State.

Chamberlin Metal Weather Strip Company

"Since 1893—The Standard"

This establishment, located at 211 Court Street in Memphis, is deserving of more than passing notice in this review of our on-ward progress as they are recognized in this section as one of the most expert weather stripping firms in the country.

The Chamberlin Metal Weather Strip Co. is one of the most reliable in its line for behind them they have a national reputation of always having done good work as well as a capital of $2,500,000 which enables them to secure the very best of materials at the most advantageous prices for the manufacture of weather strips.

During the time this firm has been in business they have executed many contracts and these stand as examples of the expert workmanship. And while only the highest class of weather stripping and allied work is executed here, the prices are most reasonable. In the various departments they have a large stock on hand at all times and in all lines feature the finest work. They feature sliding windows, corrugated sidestrips, strongest and most efficient casement windows, interlocking and channels, doors, automatic and brass thresholds, calking and Chamberlin calking compound.

They understand the kind of metal stripping and screening work that is suited to this territory and all their work conforms to plans and specifications. This company has had many contracts over this community and in the way of all kinds of buildings they have been a great aid to the advancement and modernization of the community.

In this review of the business life of this part of the community we are glad to compliment the manager, Mr J F Dellatore, and the Chamberlin Metal Weather Strip Co. upon the economic position their activities merit.

Terwilliger—No, the firemen were there. She was drowned.

Pomp and Circumstance

The panhandler approached the brisk business men.

"Sir, my wife is starving."
"Yes, yes. Mine too. Has been for six months. Hasn't lost an ounce. All nonsense, this dieting."

Not From Missouri

"There's good in everything," the bore was saying.

"Well, I don't want to be around when you are trying to find it in an ancient egg," snapped his victim, as he broke away.
