Local Firm To Celebrate Its Twentieth Anniversary

Celebrating their twentieth birthday, Kalsey Brothers will have a birthday party all next week, beginning tomorrow and ending the next Saturday

In January 1910, Mesers Watson and Franklin Kelsey began Kelsay Brothers Store by buying the G D Mebane stock of shoes and hosiery, located in the Webo Drug Store Building, the store being known as The Shoe Store Two years later they moved to the Dean and Mann building, and added Gants Furnishings to their line. After four years, the Firm again moved this time to the P A Jones store, adding drygoods, mil linery and ready to Wear to their increasing stock. They remained in this location six years, until Governor Horton qualified him January 1922, when they bought self as a good borrower a few the Guy Morris stock of goods daye ago when he succeeded in and the building, where for the inducing a syndicate of Tennes-| past eight years they have been see bankers to buy $29 050,000 in steadily increasing their stocks state bonds at a rate of 4 676 per Last year the builting was recent. FAMILY DOCTOR LEARNED THIS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripes; children liked its pleasant taste, All drugstores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

MARRIES IN FACE OF LIFE SENTENCE

Slayer Redresses Wrong to Former Mistress.

Buenos Aires.-Facing a life sentence for the murder and dismembering of his beautiful sweetheart, Virginia Donatelli, the young Argentine slayer, Julio Americo Bonini, has been married in jail to Maria Luisa Monea, a former object of his affection with whom he had lived up to his meeting with the Donatelli girl.

So great was the popular interest created by the finding, in the muddy backwaters of La Plata river of first, the torso, then the limbs and later and at a distant point the head of Virginia Donatelli, that a movement has gained headway with the press and the public for the restoration of the death penalty for murder which had long ago been abolished.

Young Bonini's action in embracing religion, In confessing his sins and in volunteering to marry the Monea girl not only has stemmed the tide of popular revulsion against him, but has gained for him an increasing number of friends who seek to find mitigating circumstances for his act in slaying the girl that he now avers won him away from the bride of his recent marriage.

Entire pages have been devoted by the Buenos Aires newspapers to the crime. The papers point to the irony of the Argentine marriage law which declares that "the woman has the obligation to live under the same roof with her spouse; and should she not do so, this may be demanded of her

Good Samaritan Saves Squirrel but Finds Woe

St. Louis, Mo .- As often is the case, William Hoffman's daily good deed netted him only grief.

Bill is a butcher and he was diligently wielding his cleaver when he noticed a squirrel peeking in the window of his shop. He dropped his cleaver and went in pursuit of the lit-

Over eight fences went the squirrel and over eight fences went Bill. He picked up some clods of dirt to throw at the animal and aroused the ire of neighboring housewives when his clods soiled the weekly wash.

When the squirrel entangled itself in some chicken wire Bill was the recipient of deep scratches as he removed the animal. He took the squirrel home, where it escaped and hid in a hole in the ceiling. Bill had his face scratched and his nose bitten when he peered in the hole.

Hoffman attached a hose to the gas stove and turned the gas into the hole in the ceiling. In a few minutes the squirrel dropped to the floor and was put in a box.

Fresh air and the animal was soon revived.

And then Bill and the squirrel went for a ride in Bill's car, a ride which took them to Tower Grove park, where the butcher released the animal, which scampered for a tree, perched on a high limb, and chattered insultingly at Bill.

But Bill refused to draw a moral from the story and is satisfied that he saved the little animal from the perils of the city's streets.

"Corpse" Comes to Life When Police Show Up

Racine, Wis .- A "corpse" came to life here while Racine police were carrying the supposedly dead man in a bathtub to the station. A telephone call had requested the officers to call for the body of a man discovered in the tub, which was part of an apartment building that was being wrecked.

The police arrived, picked up the tub, and started to an ambulance when a startled man arose from the improvised stretcher and asked what It all was about.

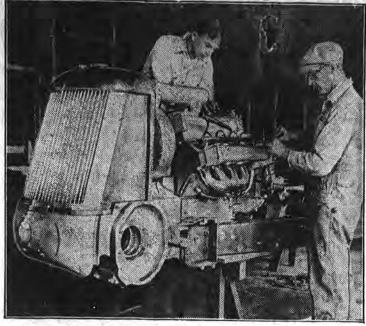

His presence, he explained, was due to a tired feeling after an all-night party. He was employed at the wrecking job and desired to be on time in the morning; hence the use of the tub as a bed.

MOTOR TRUCK NOW BIG FARM FACTOR

Hard-Surfaced Roads Facilitate Marketing of Wheat in Ohio.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In Ohlo, after hard-surfaced highways have become common, the use of the motor truck in taking wheat from the field to the country elevator has become a very important factor in the tremendous after-harvest congestion at country and terminal elevators, says Charles M. Fritz, grain exchange supervisor of the Chicago office of the grain futures administration of the United States Department of Agriculture, following a survey of the development of recent years in harvesting and marketing the Ohio wheat crop.

Permit Use of Trucks.

"The hard-surfaced highways which have been built throughout the countryside," says Mr. Gritz, "permit the use of motor trucks for hauling wheat from the farm, which not only shortens the time required for hauling but also permits taking larger loads. Perhaps the longest haul now required at various Ohio points to move the farmer's wheat is about eight miles. With a horse-drawn vehicle this trip would have required the greater part of a day, and the average load would bave ranged from about 50 bushels in hilly country to about 100 bushels on good level roads. Under those conditions the weather was an important factor in the movement, as wheat was hauled to market generally in fair weather when the roads were dry. Under present-day conditions the trip is made by motor truck in about two and one-half hours, and loads ranging from 85 to 145 bushels are hauled regardless of weather conditions."

Trucks for Delivery.

Mr. Fritz has observed a growing tendency among Ohlo farmers to sell their wheat f. o. b. the farm, and to make purchases of fertilizer, lime, and mixed feed on terms including delivery at the farm. In order to make such deliveries, Ohio elevators have equipped trucks for delivery purposes, charges being fixed on a cost basis and incorporated as a part of the sales contract, at rates less than the farmer can transport such commod ities from elevator to farm. The farmer can now arrange with a local elevator relative to date of threshing and the elevators will supply motor trucks which will be in the wheat field at the beginning of operations. By this method the entire lot of grain is moved to the local elevator in less than a single day. Commercial trucking companies also participate in the wheat movement in the rush season, and wheat is carried until midnight, and receiving and elevation taken care of. "Obviously such an extremely rapid movement of grain from country to elevator," says Fritz, "is a severe strain upon the equipment and storage facilities of the local elevators. The speed at which the railroads today transport wheat during the 'new crop' movement is also a substantial factor in the enormous accumulations of wheat at terminals during the after-harvest rush move-

"In years past," Mr. Fritz reports, 'the railroads' box-car equipment was based on a 60,000-pound capacity car. The present car has a capacity of either 80,000 or 100,000 pounds. The use of the 60,000-pound capacity car established a custom among shippers and receivers of loading 1,100 bushels of red winter wheat for a carload. Receivers and mills are being urged by the railroads 'o use the larger units, for very few 60,000-pound cars remain that can be used for grain shipment. Consequently, the carload is increasing from 1,100 to 1,400 and 1,600 bushels. This increase in car capacity has a tendency to increase the total number of bushels in the daily receipts at terminals, while the number of cars received may not de-note a material increuse over the ly carlet receipts of former years."

The Motor Quiz How Many Can You Answer?

Q. What is done with a reckless driver in China who kills a person?

Ans. It is said the driver is placed against a wall and shot, Q. How many American motorists and cars toured Canada this year and approximately how much money was spent by the tourists?

Ans. About 12,000,000 motorlsts in 3,700,000 cars toured Canada, spending approximately $180,000,000. Q. Why should a car be moved to level ground before jacking it up?

Ans. The car may roll off the jack, and run over anyone unable to get out of the way. It also may run away. If it is impossible to move the car to level ground it is a very good plan to securely block the wheels that remain on the ground.

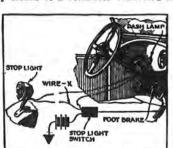

Q. Why is it necessary to renew the oil filter at 10,000

Ans. Because the filtering element becomes filled with foreign matter at this mileage.

Stop Light Indicator

Very Handy Accessory

The common method of hooking the dash light in series with the tail-light, using three-volt bulbs at each point, works nicely with the tail-light, but the system does not work with the stop light, which uses a much more powerful bulb, for no one wants a large bulb shining from the dash. The wiring arrangement shown eliminates this difficulty. A one-and-a-half-volt flashlight bulb is connected across the wire that leads to the stop light from the stop light switch. When current flows through a wire, there is a loss in voltage which can be read his brother man. A slacker forgets by means of a voltmeter connected at both ends of the wire. The flashlight bulb requires very little voltage to make it glow, and the drop in voltage in the wire leading to the stop light is sufficient to operate it. The beauty of the system is that if the stop light bulb burns out the flashlight cannot light, but if the flashlight burns out it will not affect the operation of the stop light. If the flashlight does not glow brightly enough add a few feet to the wire marked X in the diagram. -Popular Science Monthly.

AKE IT Frank H. FROM DAD Cheley

What Is a Slacker? "Dad, we had a great argument today at lunch. Got pretty hot, too!

Had to choose an umpire. Somebody called Billy Hughes a slacker because he refused to represent the school in the state oratorical contest. He said it was an ugly word; that he wasn't going to be forced and that the school could go hang; that the war was over and being a slacker was a matter entirely of personal opinion. You don't have to have war to have slackers, do you, Dad?" "Well, I should say not, Bob," laughed Mr. Smithhough, as he laid down his paper. "True, the word slacker is of war origin. It came into being during those terrific days when men by the million the world over were being called upon by government after government to determine which came first in the life of a citizen, his personal pleasure and choice or his country's need. While there is no doubt at all that much false sentiment and even false loyalty is developed and pushed into the forefront, nevertheless there were a great many pure unadulterated slackers who for no other reason than their own safety and because of a yellow streak, sought to pass the hazards of war onto some other fellow while they stepped safely out. In tense times, with a world's peace and happiness at stake, it did come to be an ugly word, filled not only with utter contempt, but hatred, and the idea has survived.

"But the world has always had slackers, and unfortunately, still has them; that group of men, and women, too, who put personal privilege and convenience and safety first and the larger welfare of others, school, club, city, state, nation and humanity last.

"We might say, strictly speaking, that a slacker is one who is disloyal to the best interests of the social group to which he has given allegiance. In days past patriotism in the popular mind was making a lot of noise and waving a flag frantically on holidays. During the war it took on a more farreaching significance.

"Loyalty is a great big word. To be loyal to every person he believes in, and to every worthwhile institution In his community is just a natural attitude for a healthy boy. In his language it just means playing the game fairly and squarely and for all he is worth. Loyalty is good sportsmanship. A slacker is a poor sport, What more despicable thing could we say of anyone?

"A patriot is loyal to his home, be cause of all the sacrifice and devotion on his behalf it represents and all the good fellowship and unselfish lifesharing it provides from day to day. A slacker forgets all of these things.

"A patriot is loyal to his church because it is one of the greatest and most valuable of our modern institutions providing him as it does with exceptional opportunities for inspiration, worship, training and service to all of these things also!

"A patriot is loyal to his group because in this friendly circle, he has a real opporunity to learn to live happily and helpfully with others, to help other boys and to gain help for his own life. A slacker forgets even all of these things !

"A patriot is loyal to his country because it makes all his opportunities possible. He serves its best interests with his talent, his training, his money, and if need be, his life.

"A patriot is loyal to himself, taking care of his health, making the most of his time and keeping himself the right kind of a citizen against any sort of an emergency which may arise. The boy scout oath sums it up beautifully-'to keep oneself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight'.

"A patriot is loyal to all the best Interests of mankind regardless of color, creed, or class; loyal to whatever is good for mankind whether in Europe or Asia, Africa or South America. The slacker is provincial, national minded and says America first at all costs and me first in America ! "I was reading the other day of a famous American named Solomon Willard. Did you ever hear of him? He is quite symbolic to me, my boy, of what a slacker is not. You won't find much mention of him in your history, and his name is not in the Hall of Fame, but here is his story: One hundred years ago Solomon Willard. architect and builder, started some thing in East Boston that should never be lost sight of. He designed and built the Bunker Hill monument. As a patriotic gift to his country, he devoted 18 years of his life to superintending the erection of that great shaft, absolutely without remuneration of any kind! What this country of ours needs most desperately is more Solomon Willards who have great ability coupled with great loyalty-men who are eager to give their best to their country and to mankind, and who are not primarily concerned with tapping the public till. "Just one other thought, Bob. Too much stress has always been placed on dying for one's country to prove one's loyalty."

Forehanded Cat

Miss Helen Currier of Canaan, N. H., has a black Angora cat that, for reasons best known to itself, is showing the hoarding instincts of a squirrel. The cat has brought up from the cellar nearly a bushel of apples which it places back of the living room stove. Lately this cat brought up a turnip that weighed one and onehalf pounds.

CHOICE THINGS TO EAT

A quick hot bouillon may be made by using a teaspoonful of the prepared paste, dissolved in a cupful of hot water. Any other flavor may be added if desired-a slice of lemon or a bit of onion extract. Tomato Canape.—Cut bread onefourth inch thick and make into rounds with a cooky cutter. Spread with butter and then with mayonnaise; on this put a slice of peeled tomato the same size, spread with mayonnaise, edge the tomato with a ring of chopped chives inside a ring of chopped egg white and the riced yolk to fill the center. Top with a stuffed olive or a sprig of parsley.

Oyster Cocktail in Grapefruit Shells. -Put two tablespoonfuls of catsup, a tablespoonful of chili sauce, a dash of paprika and tabasco into a small glass with one-half dozen oysters for each cocktail. Set into the shell of half a grapefruit, surround with ice on the plate and serve. Horseradish is well liked and may be substituted for the Cider Punch.—Beat up a glass of apple jelly to a froth, add a cupful of boiling water and a quart of cider. Flavor with nutmeg. Fill glasses with shaved ice and pour over this the punch.

Cherry Creams for Decorating .- Cut candled or preserved cherries with scissors to make four open petals. Put a small ball of fondant in the center of each, stick a stem and leaf of angelics or citron at the bottom and use to decorate small cakes.

Fruit Juice Frosting.—Beat the yolk of an egg with three tablespoonfuls of any fruit juice, add enough confectioner's sugar to make the frosting of the right consistency. Strawberry or raspberry is especially good.

Favorite Filling for Cake .- To one egg white add one grated tart apple and one cupful of sugar, add a bit of lemon juice or almond, if preferred. Beat until stiff. A large apple will be necessary, or two ordinary ones.

Seasonable Foods.

There are many people who do not enjoy a meringue. The following pie is made with the eggs folded in and makes a filling like sponge cake: Lemon Sponge

Pie.-Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter with two of flour, add the well-beaten egg yolks of two eggs, the juice and rind of a lemon. Mix well and stir in one cupful of milk, three-fourths of a cupful and fold in the whites. Pour into an uncooked pastry shell and bake until firm.

Sweetmeat Wishes,-Put one-half cupful of candied orange peel, one cupful each of dates, figs, walnut meats and candled cherries through the meat chopper, add one tablespoonful of lemon juice and knead until well mixed. Toss on a board dusted well with powdered sugar, roll out to one-fourth inch in thickness and cut into small rounds with a cutter. When stiff frost with a plain orange icing and decorate with bits of cherry and

Orange Squares .- Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-fourth cupful of cold water. Add one-fourth cupful of chopped nuts to the gelatin, add one-fourth cupful of orange juice, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and the grated rind of an orange. Boll together one cupful of sugar and three-fourths cupful of hot water to the soft ball stage, remove from the heat and add the gelatin, stir and cook for ten minutes. Pour into a pan and sprinkle with four tablespoonfuls of chopped nutmeats. Orange Fruit Cake.-Cream one fourth cupful of butter, add one-half of a third cupful of sugar, one egg beaten light, the remaining sugar and two-thirds of a cupful of orange marmalade. Sift two cupfuls of flour with one tenspoonful of baking powder, one-eighth teaspoonful of soda and cinnamon, the same of cloves, add onethird cupful each of chopped orange peel and nutmeats. Bake in one loaf about one hour. Orange Cream Ple,-Slice two or anges or more, cut very thin and all the white pulp removed, place in a baked pastry shell. Scald one cupful of milk, add one-fourth of a cupful of sugar mixed with one tablespoonful of cornstarch and a half-teaspoonful of salt, cook in the milk, stirring well. Beat two egg yolks and add with a little of the mixture to the hot milk. Cool, add a flavoring of vanilla and cover the oranges. Prepare a meringue using the egg whites beaten stiff with a tablespoonful or two of sugar. Brown and serve cold

Coat Is Shorter; Skirt Is Longer

Abbreviated Garment More Graceful Over Trailing Skirt Lengths.

As skirts grow longer, coats get shorter; fashion has discovered that few women can afford more than two or three coats. The happlest compromise for the new silhouette is to have one serviceable coat short enough to look graceful over the new trailing skirt lengths, says a fashlon writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The style trend is definitely "set"and the first revolution against fashions in the history of American clothes, staged by American womenhas been lost!

There are a few brave feminine souls here and there who are wearing short skirts. But from New York to New Orleans, from Los Angeles to Chicago, and all the way around this far-reaching globe-women are succumbing to the 1930 mode.

New dressmaker collections are featuring velvet extensively.

Next in popularity, this observer notes the use of chiffon for both informal and formal wear.

A prominent dealer displayed a vivid green rayon chiffon evening dress, which had a novel flared flounce falling low in the back and rising irregularly on the front in following the cutting line.

Another showed an evening dress in rayon chiffon of the new dark dahlia color. This was trimmed with a series of intriguing cross plaits, two of which crossed each other in front of the dress, holding the fullness with a flared effect.

The mode has grown very roman tic. Ladies will resemble the fair women of King Arthur's court, if the present princess style holds its popu-

For street wear, black and all shaded grays are prevalent; reds amaranth, shell and bois de rose colors are also much favored.

Marocain crepe and molre are much seen, especially becoming when worn under the straight-lined new fur coats. Another dealer features a bluish-gray moire dress for the afternoon built on a straight line, tight-fitted at the hips and widening at the lower part with a flared flounce of irregular width. A georgette collar of the same shade is knotted on the side.

Sports suits have no part on the longshort skirts controversry. They are short! That's that.

Along comes Jean Charles Worth, the Parislan couturier, who says: "Feminine legs have lost their al-lure because so crassly exposed, and that is one reason why skirts are gradually growing longer!' Hunting around for "something new" to startle the feminine public into bigger buying, the stylists have rediscovered elbows! They now advocate "exposure of the elbows" since there no longer is exposure of the

Thus into the mode comes the elbow-length blouse and frock which is very new, very smart and very becoming. They call it "being out at

Flat Furs Are Popular for Smart Winter Hats

The felt hats trimmed with fur seen earlier in the season were merely a forerunner of the winter types made entirely of flat fur such as galyak, lapin or broadtail. Of course, these hats are very small, fitting the head snugly and with perhaps a soft drape at the side of back, beret fashion. They may be worn with almost any daytime costume from tweed to dressier materials and are chic when worn with a coat of the same fur.

Glamorous Hosiery

Exquisitely fine gold and silver mesh stockings are created now for evening wear, with metal frocks or some of the regal velvets and chiffons. They are worn with gold or silver brocaded slippers for the most

A child who is old enough to ask what made the rocks hard or what keeps the stars in the sky is quite old enough to take hold of the idea of a primal cause and of the sustaining force which perpetually holds the universe together. Ideally, an awareness of God's continued immanence should become a commonplace in a child's daily experience.

Equipment for the dining room table need not be expensive but there should be plenty of it and it should be pleasing as well as serviceable. A colorful, well appointed table, with a centerpiece of flowers is the right setting for the inculcation of good table manners and that training in correct social behavior which children should early acquire. It also helps to make simple meals inviting.

The fire alarm box on the corner is provided by the city for the speclfic purpose of calling the fire department. It is thoroughly reliable and its use practically eliminates the possibility of error or delay in response. Go to the fire alarm box, pull the hook, and the fireman will arrive within a very short space of time. It is always well to leave some one stationed at the fire alarm box so that when the firemen come they will lose no time in locating the exact house which is Close on the heels of the new silhouette for women there now comes the announcement from Paris that children's clothes are showing higher waistlines and flared treatments that are in accord with the grownup mode. There is a definite upward movement of circular skirts and the belt is placed at a new and jaunty normal line.

Statistics show that the days of the week when shopping is heaviest are Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. Knowing this, why not plan to avoid the rush and buy your staples on the other days of the week? Statistics also show that the heaviest buying takes place between ten and eleven in the morning, and four and six in the evening. Avoid rush hours and marketing will be easier.

Home "movie" cameras and projectors are ideal gifts which bring both immediate pleasure and lasting enjoyment through the years, Modern cinema equipment provides everything to make good picture-taking auto-

The following toys are appropriate for the child from one to two years: Nested blocks (solidly made of wood, painted in bright colors), sturdy linen picture books, nest of colored wooden trays, floating water toys, pyramid of wooden rings in colors, rubber balls, toys for digging, small wooden carts and trucks for pulling or pushing.

Maroon Tweed Ensemble Advance Spring Fashion

Paris contributes this lovely maroon tweed ensemble with a wrap-around skirt and three-fourths-length coat for early spring wear. The blouse and lining are of beige figured crepe de chine.

Brown With Black; Sports Jewelry Made of Wood

Whether brown should be worn with black may have been a question of any other season, but the combination is completely sanctioned now. The smartest form this alliance takes is seen in the coat of black broadcloth with beaver collar and cuffs. Sports jewelry of wood often combines brown with black and a lighter accent of beige or capucine.

New Hats

In spite of the general unbecomingness of the off-the-face hats for many faces, the predominating style is just that. Turbans now come in at least twenty-four varieties, with the bonnet turban growing more popular, especially for girls and young matrons,

KING OF CLOUDS

"Have you any idea how old you are?" asked the King of the Clouds of the Sun,

"I haven't," said Mr. Sun, "I really have been so busy all my life that I have never counted the time. I've left that to others.

"Besides I don't know arithmetic and would have to know arithmetic to figure it out."

"What's arithmetic and who can do it?" asked the King of the Clouds. "Arithmetic is a lesson they study in school. School is a place where children go to learn about all sorts of things such as how to add two and two and how to spell words.

"They learn how to talk beautifully and they find out where they live in the world.

"They also study about other places and about the seas and the mounthey become just as used to it as we do to shining and raining."

"I suppose so," said the King of the Clouds. "But why are you having such a frolic today?"

"I heard the earth whispering to the breeze," said Mr. Sun, "that some of the raindrops were leaving.

"The earth said that Mr. Sun was drawing them to him, and I laughed for it was quite, quite true,"

"I think I'll have to have a frolic soon," said the King of the Clouds. So the sun continued to draw water from the earth through his powerful ray workers. What fun he did have and how he laughed and sparkled and

A few minutes later some wild ducks flew high up in the air.

"Where are you going?" asked the "We're going to fly far out in the bay," they said. "Do you see?" And they pointed with their wings.

"I think," said Mr. Sun, "I will join you. I will move along slowly and will shine where you go, for the King of the Clouds sent some of the army of raindrops out there this morning."

"To be sure I did," said the King of the Clouds. "Well, if you go out there, they can come in here. We'll just change places, eh?"

"The very idea I had in mind," said the Sun.

"Are you coming, are you coming?" called the wild ducks. "We are in a great hurry today, for we need good, quick flying to make us feel better.

"We're greatly in need of exercise." "I'm coming, I'm coming," said Mr. So Mr. Sun followed the wild ducks out into the bay, and then he shone down over the great ocean. The raindrops left as soon as Mr.

Sun appeared, and they began to play about and where Mr. Sun had been shining and where he had been drawing the raindrops from the earth.

So Mr. Sun and the King of the Clouds kept changing places and such a jolly time as they had of it.

The King of the Clouds said it was such a merry, merry time.

An Indoor Game

Any number of players can join in the game of Questions and Answers, and you can play it indoors. The players must sit in two lines facing each other, so that they are really in pairs. Two of the players are called Question and Answer. Now Question goes all along the line and, without anyone else hearing whispers a question into the ear of each of the players in his line. On the other hand, Answer goes down his line whispering an answer into the ear of each of the

Then the game begins. The first player of the line says aloud the question he was given. The player opposite replies in the answer he was given. For instance, the question might be, "What's the time?" And the reply might come, "It used to, but it died." Another instance: "Have you got any money?"-and the answer, "The cat buried it in the garden."

Deer have been brought from the West to replenish the big-game population of eastern forests, but without marked success. However, transfer of game from parts of the country which are overstocked to places where it is wanted is being done wherever practical.

-14-They did not try to plan for the future, they simply contented themselves with the knowledge that whatever came to them must be good. They did not look ahead to the winter-without a church, without a parsonage, with a meager twenty-five dollars a month to provide food and clothes and a roof over their heads. They merely accepted the present that was given them, and smiled at each other, and strove in every way possible to impress upon themselves the sublimity of their faith, the boundlessness of their possibilities in divine

As they went out to the car answering the call of Eddy Jackson's siren, they met the postman com-

Ginger ran ahead of the others, and took the mail from his hand.

"Three for father, one for Marjory -mine, mine-the rest is for me."

Ginger's watchfulness over Marjory and Hiram Buckworth increased. She intercepted every glance, endured the soft smiles with a glowering grimness, answered every light sally as though it were intended for her ears

One evening, soon after dinner, Hiram Buckworth decided that he must withdraw to his room to prepare his sermon for the following Sunday, and Marjory thought she would go upstairs and manicure her nails. But Ginger was not to be distracted by mere plans for the future. She saw them both upstairs, saw the door of her father's room closed behind Hiram Buckworth's rigid back, saw Miriam ensconced or the foot of her bed with files, orangewood sticks and buffers. Then she went to the studio with a sigh of relief. There she settled down to a complete balancing of her accounts. She counted the dimes in the doll's trunk. She made careful entries in her huge ledger.

Her waste basket she found full to overflowing of discarded letters, little white angels, which had accompanied the contributions to the home. Ginger was systematic and orderly. These angels were to be burned. So with waste basket in one band, lantern in the other, she made her way carefully over the narrow beams, and down the wabbly ladder.

She noted, comfortably, that the two doors remained closed as she had left them, and a pleasantly soothing stillness pervaded the house. Softly, happily, with waste basket and lantern, she slipped around the curve of the circular staircase and stopped She stopped aghast, electrified, spellbound. For beneath ber, before her very eyes, there lay revealed a scene whose unutterable disgustingness was beyond her power of description.

The wide living room was lighted, dimly lighted, by one small corner reading lamp, and in the shadowy semi-darkness, Ginger saw two figures -her sister, Marjory, and Hiram Buckworth-whom she had left behind their seperate closed doors not twenty minutes previous. By what strange intuitiveness each had discovered, behind those burring doors, that the other was descending to the common meeting ground of the living room below, Ginger never knew-nor even which had made the initial move. But one fact was evident-there they

One of Hiram's arms was about her sister's shoulders, and his free hand was fondling very gently, very caressingly, the soft gold of her hair. Mar jory herself, plainly not to be outdistanced in madness, was raising her soft white fingers to his cheek, his lips, his eyes. Ginger's trrepressible gasp startled them. They looked up at her, gravely. They did not move.

"Excuse me." Ginger's voice was cold and subdued, very small. "I thought you were in different placesdoing other things."

She turned short around upon the stairs, and went up to the attic. In the studio she sat berself down, heavily, and fell to deep consideration. She saw clearly that the situation was critical. Marjory was hopeless. She had ogled the grocery clerk. She had almost held hands with Tub Andrews and the ukulele. She even practiced her blandishments on Eddy Jackson, who nad the fortifude to withstand her wiles. And now she was flagrantly necking the young minister. Ginger writhed in belpless fury. The .inister! Even a grocery clerk may aspire to ownership, a bank janitor may progress slowly upward. But once a preacher, always a preacher.

Pininly, then, responsibility rested upon none other than Ginger, and Ginger squared her shoulders to receive it. Marjory was lacking in strength of character-so much was evident. But Hiram Buckworth, now -he was a minister, he must have some right pinciple within-an appeal to him, perhaps- Ginger regretted that she could not entirely abandon Marjory to her own misguided ways. The home for the blind was on its way to firm establishment, it was true, but alas, so many dimes went into the purchase of a load of coal, a month's groceries, a delicate operation for the eyes. An appeal, then, to Hiram Buckworth.

The next morning before breakfast, Ginger, alert and watchful, saw him walking down the flagstone path between the rows of flowers, inhaling great breaths of the fresh morning air, his entire manner and countenance reflecting a smug and satisfied contentment with the world at large. She hurried down, and joined him.

"Mr. Buckworth," she began firmly, excuse me for butting in-and it really isn't a thing against Marjory, you know, for she is just as nice as she seems to be-"

"I should say she is!"

"But I've known her a long time, and really, she is a terrible flirt, though at heart she doesn't mean a thing by it. I don't know whether she has told you- 1 mean- You see, it is already arranged-"

"Ellen! You don't mean that Marjory-that she is engaged-"

The use of the word relieved her. She was finding it unaccountably hard to express herself in a way that would gain the desired result, without committing herself to falsehood.

"Well, yes, in a way. Not exactly engaged, you understand, but it is all understood, if you know what I mean."

"Yes, I do know what you mean." The bright ruddiness went suddenly out of Hiram Buckworth's face. "I understand entirely too well. You are a good sport for tipping me off. I see."

And then he went quickly indoors, and said nothing else. The appeal to Hiram Buckworth had Indeed reaped results after a fashion, but Ginger did not feel very well pleased. Hiram Buckworth, although anything but a romantic figure, was a nice chap. And the shocked look on his face, the strange, hurt, stricken took, had touched her heart. He had looked sorry. Ginger did not enjoy seeing people look sorry, not even disgusting pretenders who pawed and held hands.

Breakfast, usually such a gay and cheery meal, proved an awkward oc-Hiram Buckworth seemed casion. every inch a minister, unsmiling, grave, and stiffly formal. He talked exclusively to Miss Jenkins, and not very entertainingly. He did not look at Marjory, who had come in a little late with her usual bright morning radiance. But her radiance was of short duration, paling swiftly to startled, wide-eyed wondering. She had no appetite, toyed idly with her fork, and kept her eyes upon his face, curiously, as though her eyes were seeking something, asking questions. But always they found nothing, received no answer. Immediately after breakfast he excused himself, and went quickly out of the room. Ginger was very uncomfortable indeed. She tried to tell herself that she was merely imagining that these things were so-that it was a mere chance that Hiram had not tooked at Marjory, that Marjory could not eat her breakfast. But she was uncomfortable. Not even a trip to the studio, and a painstaking count of her doll's trunk of dimes sufficed to put her in a cheerful frame of mind. Not even the coming of the postman, with sixteen letters for E Tolliver, made her really happy.

He fished two small packages from his bag and handed them to her. "I see you're getting some more of those samples," he added cheerfully.

"Those are for the twins," she answered, flushing. "Personally, I am not interested in beauty preparations."

The day passed dully, a busy day, as Saturdays always are in parsonages where arrangements are always leading up to the climatic Sabbath. Hiram Buckworth remained down town for luncheon. Marjory, a still, white Marjory, busied herself in a studied way about the work of the house. And dinner in the evening was an increasingly painful repetition of the morning neal.

When the dishes were done, Ginger repaired to the veranda. Miss Jenkins sat there, alone, solemnly rocking.

'Where's Margle?" "She went to bed. She has a headache."

"Oh, 1 see." Ginger went upstairs, and knocked gently at her sister's door.

"I'm in bed," called a muffled voice in answer. Ginger opened the door, and went in. "I just wanted to see if I could do anything for your headache." She gave her sister a sharp look. "You've been crying." "I think I'm getting hay fever," said

Marjory. "My eyes sting. I'm going to sleep now." Ginger, at this dismissal, turned toward the door. "And Ginger, don't you go and talk about It to-Miss Jenkins-or anybody. If I have a headache and hay fever it's nobody's business but my own. Not that anybody would care anyhow."

"I won't talk about it. Go to sleep now, Margie, I'll be very quiet not to disturb you."

And Ginger closed the door softly behind her.

CHAPTER VIII

Sunday, ordinarily such a pleasureably hurried day in the parsonage, was no less than a dreary ordeal. Marjory appeared very late for her breakfast. She need not have appeared at all, for she ate nothing.

"Headache all gone?" inquired Ginger.

Hiram, instead of walking companionably to church with the girls, excused himself and went on in advance, explaining that he wished to see somebody about something. Marjory dreamed absent-mindedly during the service, while Ginger, on the contrary, listened attentively ic every word, reporting confidentially to her sister, later on, that she didn't think so much of the sermon.

In the afternoon, Eddy Jackson came in the car to take them to Pay Dirt and although Hiram tried to be excused from the party there was no evading Eddy's friendly insistence.

But while there was great galety at Pay Dirt, the arrival of the car from the parsonage brought a sudden slump in their high spirits. Alexander Murdock was there, and Ginger's wrath, long slumbering, vented itself upon his unoffending head. Why should he spend all or his spare time at Pay Dirt? What had a mere can grocer to do with the conduct of agriculture? And why, if mere friendship for Eddy attracted him thither, did he so openly ignore his friend in ardent attentiveness to Mirlam? And why, for that matter, should the so-sensible Miriam, be suddenly thus gay and shining?

"What's the matter with everybody anyhow?" demanded Eddy crossly, "That's some grouch of a preacher, if you ask me. Margie's clear at the bottom the dumps, worst thing in the world for her complexion. And even you, Ginger, you're ac cheerier than a broken crutch."

"Well, I have a lot of trouble," said Ginger dully.

The one bright moment in the afternoon for Ginger was when Alexander announced that he was leaving the next day for the farther West.

"Walking?" she inquired coldly. "Oh, no. Business has been quite good. I shall be able to ride quite a little distance before I connect up with another Orange and Black."

"Sort of a can tour."

"Something of the sort, yes." But if the parsonage group had little to contribute to the day's enjoyment, it was more than compensated by the glad hilarity of the others. Mr. Tolliver laughed like a boy at the bald and ribald jokes of the can grocer, Miss Jenkins and Mrs. Jackson exchanged giggling reminiscences of their own untrammeled youth. Miriam and Alexander were ringleaders in the day's recreation, doing all sorts of absurd young things.

JESUS BEGINS HIS MINISTRY

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 4:12-25, GOLDEN TEXT—Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Chooses ome Helpers, JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Begins His

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—How Jesus Began His Ministry. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—The Comprehensive Program of Jesus.

Jesus began His official work as Messiah at Jerusalem where He presented Himself to the men of the Jew-

I. The King His Own Herald (vv. 12-17).

1. The reason for this (v. 12). The news of the imprisonment of John the Baptist caused Jesus to forsake Judea and go into Galilee. The fate of John was accepted as foreshadowing His own. The rejection of the forerunner meant the rejection of the King, whose advent he proclaimed. Because of this He withdrew from the metropolis and went to the remote regions where His work would attract less attention. 2. To whom the proclamation was made (vv. 13-16). It was to the people at Capernaum in fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy (9:1, 2). These people were not blessed with such privileges as those in and around Jerusalem. Thus we see that the darkest and most corrupt of the provinces was getting the light first. In this we see a foreshadowing of the present age, when the gospel of the grace of God is being preached to the Gentiles.

3. His message (v. 17).

"Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." This is the same kingdom which John the Baptist and the Old Testament prophets proclaimed. It means the Messianic earth rule of Jesus Christ. It is for this we pray when we intelligently say, "Thy kingdom come." At that time the light will break forth which shall illumine the whole earth.

II. The King Calling to Himself Assistants (vv. 18-22). 1. His command of authority (vv.

18, 19). He did not endeavor to persuade them, and He dld not use arguments but issued the mandate. To command is the King's prerogative-not to argue called (vv. 18, 21). They were men of lowly birth and occupation-fishermen. God chooses the foolish things of this world to confound the wise and the weak things to confound the things which are mighty (I Cor. 1:26). 3. They were called to definite service (v. 19). "I will make you fishers of men." He had previously called them to be disciples (John 1:36-42). He now called them to service. This call therefore was not the gospel call to sinners which is "believe on me." but the call to service of those who have already heeded His call to discipleship. The qualities which made for good fishers -patience, bravery to face the storm and the night, the perseverance which toiled all night though no fish were caught-would make for good fishers

4. Their prompt obedience (vv. 20, 22).

They put their trust in Him who called, believing that He was able to supply their needs. There is no time for delay when the King commands. III. The King's Triumphant Progress

(vv. 23-25). He went the whole round of Galilee, teaching the Scriptures, preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom, and henting all manner of diseases. He did a threefold work:

1. Teaching the Scriptures in the synagogues (v. 23).

The revelation of God needed to be explained. This is what He was doing in Nazareth (Luke 4:16-22). Such is the primary business of every minister. 2. Preaching the glad tidings of the kingdom (v. 23).

The King who was present and was heralding His own mission, was ready to establish His kingdom if they would have been willing to receive Him. 3. Healing all manner of diseases

(vv. 23-25)

"His fame went throughout all Syria, and they brought unto Him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and those which were lunntic, and those that had the palsy; and He healed them."

What God Has to Tell Us If we think no more of ourselves than we ought to think, if we seek not our own but others' welfare, if we are prepared to take all things as God's dealings with us, then we may have a chance of catching from time to time what God has to tell us.

Half and Half Story Writers

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyvight)

S O YOU'RE the new English instructor," said Blaire O'Neill, scrutinizing the young woman across from him at one of the small tables of the College Inn in the small col-lege town of Kingsberg.

"And you're the new associate professor." she said with something in the same tone that Blaire had used in addressing her.

"Is there anything remarkable in that?" he asked. "Only that you don't look like a professor or even an instructor, and you don't act like one," she said.

"And you don't act any more like an instructor," he said smiling. Then in spite of herself Jane Holland laughed and Blaire O'Neill laughed loud and long-laughed as perhaps ill became a newly appointed associate professor of English. "It was really quite funny," she agreed. "What would staid old Professor Ormsby, head of the department, say if he knew that on the way to Kingsburg his new associate professor and his new instructor, neither one knowing the identity of the other, had mildly flirted for an hour or so. If I'd known who you were I would have been very reserved when you began by asking me if I wanted to borrow your magazine. I wonder why you ever decided to be a professor-you look more like a budding young author."

"Thanks awfully," said Blaire.

"I didn't say you looked exactly like a budding young author. Only more like one than a college profes-

"The trouble is I'm only half a writer," said Blaire with something of

"Which half?" asked Jane.

"I'm all right on characterization, personality, local color-that sort of thing," said Blaire, becoming much interested in the trend of the conversation, "but I'm lacking in plot sense. Plot doesn't appeal to me."

"How funny," said Jane, eyes wide with interest, "Plotting is the only thing I can do."

"Between the two of us we ought to make one first rate story writer. Let's go into partnership."

Thus was created the individuality of Blaire Holland, whose short stories soon appeared with remarkable success in the magazines and whose first novel published the following autumn was one of the two or three best sellers of the season. Before autumn had come both associate professor and instructor had tendered their resignations from the faculty of Kingsberg college, but no one there guessed that the identity of the much talked about Blaire Holland was really these two rather quiet and unassuming person-

By this time they had rented an office in the city and spent four or five hours a day there-sometimes longer -collaborating, writing, rewriting, amending, planning. "I was just thinking," said Jane one morning after she had seen her partner dancing interestedly with another girl the night before, "I was just thinking that perhaps for our mutual protection we ought to draw up some sort of contract-"Exactly what I was thinking," said Blaire O'Neill, with a curious unsteadiness in his voice. He was thinking of the interesting stranger who had danced three dances in succession with Jane. "Together we can make a more than enviable income and can have the joy of writing really successful stories. If one should draw off the other would be in the lurch. Of course you would be more likely to desert. I'll always have to earn a living anyway. It doesn't seem fair for me to ask you to promise_'

"But I want you to promise, too, If you-you should marry-some onethat some one mightn't like having you spend so much time with another girl every day. She might be jealous." "Little chance I'll ever marry-at least anyone that would be jealous of you," said Blaire.

"Of course, I shan't marry."

Then in their embarrassment their eyes met and each held the other in a long glance. Blaire walked slowly over to the chair where Jane had been sitting correcting manuscript. He carefully took the papers and pencils from her lap and then sat down on the floor at her knees.

"Suppose we marry each other. It occurred to me that first day we met -when we were going to Kingsbergthat you were the woman I wanted to marry. Then you turned out to be an English instructor and I was afraid to ask you, and then we went into partnership and you seemed so much preoccupied with your work that I thought you'd never want to think of marrying-me."

"I'd been wondering, said Jane, what I would say if you ever should ask me to marry you, though I didn't much expect you would. And then last night there was that other girl, and I just made up my mind you'd have to marry me. I'd made up my mind if you did marry anyone else I'd never work with you again."

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Leroy Young, 1116 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Leroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and "When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and billousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset spells. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully !"

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way.

Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

CLEANLINESS IS BEST FOR CALF

Every Utensil Should Be Washed and Sterilized.

To have a runt among the calves usually means that some one has failed at the calf management job. Perhaps one or the most over-looked tasks is that of cleanliness of quar-

"Cleanliness is one of the most essential things in the whole process of feeding the calf," relates James W. Linn, extension dairyman, Kansas State Agricultural college, by way of cautioning dairymen against the ills of unclean juarters and feed. "Especially is this true as long as it is necessary to feed whole milk or milk substitutes."

Every utensil, including the bucket, dipper, separator, and can, should be washed and sterilized or every feeding, recommends the extension specialist. Such a practice will insure against foreign material or bacteria getting in the milk.

Temperature and quantity of milk are important considerations to be given calf management. It will pay dairymen to use a thermometer and see that the milk is kept as near the normal temperature at production time as possible. It is essential to feed the calf its milk at the same temperature each feeding.

Linn recommends weighing to the tenth of a pound the milk fed the calf. His formula calls for one pound of milk to each ten pounds of live weight of calf until 16 pounds daily is reached. Do not increase above that

Proper Feeding Rule to Follow in Cold Weather It is a good rule in winter feeding to allow one pound of grain or concentrate feed per day to cows for each four pounds of milk they produce testing 3 to 31/2 per cent fat; or one pound per day for each three pounds of milk if it tests 5 per cent or more of fat. This rule may be used as a guide to determine how much grain to feed during the pasture season. With the grass still in fairly good condition one-third as much grain as is required in the winter season will ordinarily be enough, but as the season advances and the grass shortens and dries a gradual increase becomes necessary.

Judgment, however, must be the main rule always. The aim should be to maintain production and the condition of the cows. Cows in the advanced stages of their milking periods that are only producing 10 to 15 pounds daily will not ordinarily require concentrate feeds during the pasture season.

Cream Will Deteriorate

Even in Winter Season Cool weather does not mean that cream can be held several days without damaging its quality, points out in charge or dairy manufacturers at the experiment station of the University of Kentucky.

Sweet cream held at a temperature of 50 degrees for a week or ten days makes a poor grade of butter. Such cream may be of low acidity and sweet to the taste when churned, but the resulting butter will have an old flavor. Winter cream kept in cellars where such vegetables as onlons and cabbage are stored will have a bad flavor. Likewise, cream kept in the kitchen is exposed to the odors of foods being cooked, and to the heat of the stove.

Cream should not be allowed to freeze, as frozen cream makes an oily butter of poor quality.

 Dairy Facts

Live stock farming is often said to be one of the most satisfactory ways of maintaining soil fertility.

Watch the position of the cream or skim milk screw in the cream separator. Any change in this screw will affect the cream test.

So far as investigations have gons, there are no cases that have shown that the calves from a tuberculosis bull or even from a cow inherit tuber-

Cows continue in much better physical condition and maintain their milk flow at a higher level throughout the winter months when legume bays are fed in place of non-legumes.

Trouble with stringy milk may usually be overcome by thoroughly boiling and disinfecting all utensils, according to dairy experts at University Farm, St. Paul.

See that the calves' bowels are in normal condition and their appetites keen. If off feed, it is apt to be from indigestion or impure milk.

Keep the dairy cows in the barn on all cold, stormy days. The additional milk obtained will pay for the extra feed and care.

Green Manure Is Fertility Help

Certain Crops Possess Greater Value Than Others for Purpose.

(By F. B. WELLS, Extension Soils Specialist, Kansas State Agricultural College.) Green manuring refers to the incorporation of green organic material in the soil. The purpose is to maintain or increase the organic matter supply of the soll which constitutes one of the most important factors in soil fertility.

Green manure crops may be divided into two general classes; legumes and non-legumes. In this sense any crop may serve as a green manure, but certain crops possess a greater value than others for this purpose for they are able to obtain certain of their plant foods from sources not accessible to all crops. One class of plants can obtain the nitrogen necessary for their growth from the air as well as the soil, while the other, as far as we know, can obtain it only from the soil. These two groups of plants are classified as legumes or nitrogen gatherers and non-legumes or nitrogen consumers.

Legumes Build Up Soil.

Nitrogen gatherers belong to the legume or clover family, most of which take their nitrogen from the air and do not reduce the content of soil nitrogen, These crops, when plowed down as green manures, add directly to the crop-producing power of the soil. In order that the plant may obtain its nitrogen from the air the soil must originally contain or must be inoculated with a special type of bacteria, the presence of which is noted by the growth of nodules upon the roots through which the nitrogen is obtained.

Most well tilled soils contain the bacteria in abundance which inoculate the different kinds of nitrogen gathering plants, especially if the soils are well supplied with lime. Of the nitrogen gathering green manure crops that are used in Kansas, red clover, sweet clover, alfalfa, cowpeas, soy beans, and winter or hairy vetch are the most common.

Green Manure Crops.

The nitrogen consuming or nonleguminous green manure crops are those which can obtain their nitrogen only from the soil. This type of plant may increase the organic matter supply in the soil to some extent, but it does so at the expense of the other plant food materials that are already present. Some of the most common green manure crops that draw upon the soil for their entire supply of plant food are: rye, wheat, oats, barley, rape, and turnips. The main use of these crops is to prevent the possible loss of nitrogen and other plant foods by leaching. It is true that they greatly improve the physical condition of the soil through the addition of organic matter. Their use should not be generally recommended except on those soils which are not adapted to the production of legumes or nitrogen gathering plants.

Soluble Potash Is Most

Available in Manures

With certain minor exceptions, as in the wool of sheep and the milk of dairy cows, practically all the potash in the feeds and fodders consumed by our farm stock is excreted by the kidneys. More than 90 per cent of the total potash excreted by the animals is to be found in the urine, and this in addition to the fact that one-half or more of the total nitrogen excreted is also present in the liquid excreta. It thus comes about that, weight for weight, urine has a greater manurial value than the solid excrement, and this not only by reason of its larger percentages of potash and nitrogen, but because these constituents are in a soluble conditions and practically at once available for the nutrition of

Prevention Found for Damping-Off Disease

Soil in Seed Bed Should Be Sterilized or Replaced.

The serious losses suffered by farmers each year because of young plants dying from the damping-off disease while in the seed bed may be prevented. Dr. W. H. Martin, plant pathologist at the New Jersey agricultural experiment station advises that to control the disease the soil in the seed bed should either be sterilized or completely replaced with new soil.

"Regardless of whether this has been done or not," says Doctor Martin, "the young plants should not be crowded, as this is highly conducive to damping off. Another condition to be avoided is over-wet soil, for there the disease is usually most severe, One other preventive measure is to keep the temperature and moisture of the air from getting to high. This can be done by ventilation."

In case the disease has appeared in the seed bed, the following steps should be taken immediately, according to Doctor Martin's advice: (1) ventilate to reduce the moisture content of the air, and at the same time reduce the air temperature to 70 degrees or less; (2) dry out the surface of the soil by cultivation—a layer of dry sand will also assist in retarding the development of the disease: (3) remove all diseased plants, together with the surrounding soil to prevent the spread of the disease to neighboring healthy plants.

Mulch Increases Yield

in Recent Ohio Tests

Tests made at Wooster, Ohio, experiment station, resulted in an increase bushels of potatoes per acre where clean straw was added as a mulch at the rate of ten to twelve tons per acre after the potatoes started growth. The mulched potatoes yielded 366 bushels per acre and the unmulched 275 bushels. Another plot on which the mulch was applied as soon as the potatoes were planted, produced 323 bushels to the acre. If straw is available at a low price, Doctor Bushnell, who conducted the tests, believes it can be economically used for mulching early potatoes.

 Agricultural Notes

 Feed sugar sirup to bees that are short of food. Help the bees to build up strong colonies before the clover honey flow.

When the soll has plenty of humus it plows up better and can be reduced to the proper fineness much more quickly and with less power.

Soy beans do not make an ideal forage crop because they do not produce new growth when eaten off and consequently their season is short.

Manure applied to land that is producing alfalfa, corn, and wheat in rotation has increased the crop yields sufficiently to make the manure worth $3.26 a ton.

A top dressing of manure on young alfalfa will protect the plants during the winter, cause them to start growth ea-lier next spring, and increase the yield of alfalfa.

Speaking of the thousands of forest trees planted last spring, forestry specialists call attention to the absolute necessity of ordering trees early for planting next spring.

Manure stacked in an uncovered plie suffers a big loss from rains which wash away its valuable constituents. If it cannot be hauled to the fields daily, it should be kept covered and then spread over the land as often as

INSURE PROFITS FROM HEN FLOCK

Protection From the Wintry Blasts Quite Important.

Insuring the poultry flock against wintry blasts will insure the profits to be received from the birds this winter.

"Incomes from farm flocks depend upon poultry housing conditions. A good flock poorly housed is almost certain to be less profitable than a poor flock sheltered in an adequate building," warns G. T. Klein, extension poultryman, Kansas State Agricultural college.

The modern poultry house has facilities for the hens to scratch, feed, roost, lay, and exercise in the same coom, according to the poultry specialist. One large, well-ventilated, well-lighted, clean sanitary room has replaced the separate roosting quarters, scratching shed, and laying house. An up-to-date house is so complete that hens are confined in them in September and are not given range until the following spring.

Klein says that the most satisfactory house is one 20 feet in depth. It should have about one-fourth of the south side open and be tight on the other three sides except for windows in the east and west ends and under the droppings board on the north. A 10-inch layer of straw as a ceiling gives protection to the birds by modifying the temperature in both winter and summer. Such a ceiling keeps the air in the building free from dampness, prevents accumulation of frost, and keeps the litter dry.

Lanterns as Henhouse

Lights During Winter

There is no question but what providing the laying flock with a twelvehour day throughout the winter by means of artificial light at the beginning or end of the day, or both, pays under Iowa conditions. More and more farm flocks are being thus helped to make the best of warm houses and good rations during the months of short days. Generally, providing the poultry house with lights has been assumed to go hand in hand with electricity on the farm. But as yet a comparatively small per cent of Iowa farms are electrically equipped.

During the last two years I have visted at least a dozen Iowa farms where It was called to my attention that lanterns had been used to furnish light for the chicken house, says a writer in Wallace's Farmer. In most cases, these were gasoline lanterns, although I know at least one farm woman reported the use of an oil pressure kerosene lamp. If equipped with reflectors of the right sort and hung in the right part of the poultry house, these lanerns have proved a safe and desirable sort of light. For those without electricity, this sort of lighting for the poultry house is worth investigation and trial.

 Poultry Facts *******

Turkeys have the annoying habit of getting into a lot of difficulties.

A damp house causes colds and other troubles for the birds, and a loss of money to the owners.

Experience has shown that washed eggs are suitable only for immediate consumption, and will not stand for any length of time under storage con-

If Leghorns are hatched too early they may start laying early and have a fall moult before cold weather. This throws them out of laying all

Hatch the turkey eggs in the incubator. Put the poults in chick boxes until they are forty-eight hours old. Have the brooder houses thoroughly cleaned and disinfected and keep the temperature under the hover around 90 degrees.

Give each poult a drink of warm water when they are put under the hover. Use a good intestinal antiseptic in the water for seven days, then skip seven days.

Test after test has proved that a plentiful supply of liquid milk is one of the best ingredients in the ration for chicks of any size.

Many farm flock owners fail to realize the importance of selecting good cockerels for the breeding purposes the following season.

Shavings are superior to straw as litter for hens, as well as for nest material to prevent solled eggs.

This is a good time to get rid of the unpromising pullets. Later you will have to part with them, even though you know they will lay few eggs.

The most certain means of controlling blackhead of turkeys is to prevent its development by artificial hatching and brooding and rearing the fowls on ground not used for poultry of any kind previously,

Home Has More Danger Than Savages of Brazil

JOHN J. WHITEHEAD, explorer and lecturer, has just returned from eight months in the jungles of South America, where he was searching for traces of the lost Colonel Fawcett and his son.

Dangerous as he found the jungle, he encountered a worse danger at home. But let him tell it.

"One of the great problems of a trip of this kind is keeping in healthy condition. When we started, some of the members of the party had laxa-tives with them, but made wise by experience I carried Nujol. All too quickly my stock ran out. Soon I was in bad shape—what with a diet of rice and beans, lacking vitamins and green vegetables.

"When we finally got back to civilizalater in the United States, I became positively ill. Severe stomach pains and poor elimination made me realize and poor enimination made and realize that Nujol would again prove the reliable, trusty keeper of health. Sure enough, with the first bottle the trouble disappeared.

Don't think Nujol is a medicine. It is as tasteless and colorless as clear water. It brings you, however, what your body needs like any other machine—lubrication. Just as a good bath washes our bodies clean, Nujol sweeps away, easily and normally, those internal bodily poisons (we all have them) that make us feel dull and headachy and sick. Nujol canot hurt even a little baby; it forms no habit; it contains not one single drug. Doctors and nurses use it them-selves and tell you to use it, if you Take Nujol every night for two weeks and prove to yourself how happy and bright and full of pep you can be, if your body is internally clean. Get a bottle today at any drug store. It costs but a few cents, and makes you feel like a million dollars. Start traveling the health-road to success and happiness—this very day!
