Collierville Girls Win Over The Geo. R. James Team

It really started about three or four months ago, but it will be worth telling anyway. When the call was given for candidates for the girls' basket ball team, several responded, because that was the way to show school spirit. Then practices began. All the older players had graduated, and there were only three girls who had seen experience in actual battle. Everything must have a beginning so we began working. No girl was sure of her place nor the position she would be playing next. Bess played center, Daisy forward, and Frances moved about so often that she didn't know where she would be next. We experimented and by a process of trial and error arrived at the present very formidable lineup. When the league opened the machine began to function like a perfect organism. Opponents were met and pellets added until we came to the crucial test for the championship of the Southern Division—this was the game played at James last Thursday night.

We had worked hard, advice had been taken and we were in excellent trim for the fray. The hour came as all hours must, and finally the time for the whistle to blow. The James gym was crowded to capacity, particularly the Collierville side.

Mr Osteen comes on the floor. Daisy springs like a being controlled by elastic bands. Every body is tense, the players cheer the centers to give the ball to our forwards. Things are ready, the ball goes up—will Daisy get the tip? Our hearts quit beating. She springs high, hits the ball and Ella is on it. She passes back to Daisy—Daisy passes to Sara—Sara shoots but misses. Margaret follows the ball but is fouled. James shoots, hits—the ball goes back to center—James secures it—passes to their forward—they score. The score stands 3 to nothing for James. We work awfully hard, foul frequently but still lead. The quarter comes around. Time out. Our girls are alert as race horses. They calm down. The second quarter begins—Nell takes center, Daisy to side center. She follows her opponent. Things rock along. James fouls on a crib shot—the goal counts and we are given the ball for two free throws. If she hits them both we will be ahead by one point. She shoots both but misses. At the half the score stands: James 6 Collierville 7.

Time out—we talk things over and agree to get together because we have got to win.

Then the third quarter begins, and perhaps the most brilliant basket ball this section of the country ever witnessed took place. With lightning rapidity three field goals were scored. James took time out—we just knew we were going to win! A gain and again passes of the James team were broken up and we played brilliantly all over the court. Time is nearly up for the third quarter, and in a brilliant trial for a ball, Sara was fouled—her third foul so she was disqualified. Ella took her place, and played a fine forward notwithstanding her inexperience with that position. The fourth quarter was quieter. Margaret scored some beautiful points. I, trying for the ball Frances fouled out, Ella took her place and

Local Boy Honor Student At Southwestern University

An article in a recent issue of the Commercial Appeal headed "Scholarship on Decline at Southwestern" reports our own James Cowan as one of two students making five "A's".

The people of Collierville, and especially the faculty and student body of the Collierville School, are very proud of James.

As a student in the Collierville High School, he graduated at the head of his class with an average for the four years of a little better than 95. His former teachers, therefore, are not surprised at his "Five A's".

During his freshman year, James won first place in an essay contest on "Why I came to Southwestern." This is his second year, and his friends at Collierville are expecting great things of him before he is through College and after he is at work.

Silver Tea

Don't Forget the Silver Tea to be given next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 in the home of Mrs J H Burkam. Benefit P. T. A. A continuous program of piano music, vocal solos, and readings is promised you, followed by Sandwiches and tea.

P. S. Bring a generous coin for the P. T. A.

Play Volleyball!

Do you want to live to ripe old age? If so, join the men's Volley Ball Class. Business and professional men are planning to play volleyball at the school gym on Tuesday and Thursday nights. If you are interested in joining this group, and getting some good exercise call Mr Williamson at the school building.

The first get-together was held Thursday night with a number of players out. The next game will be Tuesday night, Feb 18th. Come out and develop that wind, and have some real fun.

managed her man wonderfully. The centers exchanged some fine passes and played to the forwards well. The whistle blew and pandemonium broke loose. Collierville girls were champions of the Southern Division for the year 1930. The final score was 21-16.

The boys' game was fine, but there was not so much at stake and the excitement was not so great. The James boys played better ball and covered our scoring eyes so completely that they could not function. The final score of the boys' team was 19-14. The James girls and the Collierville boys, both champions of last year, lost by five points each.

Taking it all in all, it was a night of night for our school. Everybody was in a fine humor, and we thank the James teams and teachers for their hospitality and sportsmanship. We had a grand time. After the games were over, the girls and their coach Mr Jacobs were entertained with a chicken dinner by the Jones and Dudney families. Oh boy! maybe that chicken wasn't good! The girls team had their pictures taken Friday, so if you want to see something handsome watch the Commercial Appeal. On Saturday night they were guests of their coach at a box party in Memphis.

Rewarding Scholastic Achievement

We believe that more notice should be given to scholastic achievement in Collierville than is now being manifested. We give our cups, our banquets and honors to those who predominate in sports. What about the best speller, the best orator, or the best debater?

We should like to offer medals or trophies for the best speller, the best one in arithmetic, the best orator, the best debating team, the best in extemporaneous speaking, the best in humorous and dramatic readings.

Do we have people in Collierville who believe in these things to the extent that they will give a medal or a trophy of some kind? If so, let us know.

Respectfully,
Harry Williamson,
Principal of School

Germantown News

The Germantown Boy Scout Troop No. 60 recently organized by the Rev. Geo. W. Bell as Scout master is growing rapidly, growing in membership, approximately fifteen boys having successfully passed the tenderfoot test. The boys are taking up the work with enthusiasm and expect to pass the second class tests within the next few weeks. The troop is sponsored by the following committee men: R E Harrison, J P Sullivan, Dr J G Seay, G R King, with A P Foster as Assistant Scoutmaster. Regular meetings are held on each Tuesday evening at seven o'clock. Parents are invited to attend.

Mr and Mrs Earl Wise have recently opened a grocery store and lunch room in the building formerly occupied by the late Mr B L Walter where they will do a general grocery business in connection with the sale of sandwiches, soft drinks, confections, ice cream etc. Their opening business indicates a very successful future.

Little Miss Elizabeth Foster of this city will take part in the next Memphis Little Theater production "Ten Nights in a Barroom" which is to be presented during the week of February 17th. She will portray the character of "Little Mary" in this popular old melodrama of the early '90's which is being revived in other cities with great success, due possibly to its appeal for prohibition.

During the performance many songs are sung which fact was taken into consideration in selecting the cast.

Willie Blythe Howard and members of his family narrowly escaped serious injury Monday when the car in which they were riding was struck by the 9 o'clock train at the crossing just west of here. Considerable damage was done to the car.

Mr and Mrs A P Foster have with them their parents Mr and Mrs W J Norris of Memphis, who expect to remain for an extended visit.

Mr and Mrs A L Foster have returned to their home in Memphis after a visit of a few days with their children, Mr and Mrs A P Foster.

Collierville vs Whitehaven

You may have heard the age-old question as to what would happen if something that could not be stopped should run into something that could not be moved.

Just that is going to happen Friday night, February 14th at 7:30 when the fighting Whitehaven lasses meet the undefeated Collierville ex-cit in the Collierville Gymnasium.

Although defeated twice during the present league season, the Whitehaven girls some time ago started out on a non-stop flight, so they say. "You can't stop us" seems to be their slogan, and they are headed towards Collierville.

"They shall not pass" is the quiet but decisive watchword of the Collierville Champions, and this watchword has worked for them thus far.

"This is going to be good", they all say, so you had better come out.

But the scrap between the fair lasses is not all of it by any means. Whitehaven is bringing along an undefeated boys team—Southern Champions, if you please. The Collierville boys are not saying much, but they are working, and working hard.

"We'll get 'em", Captain Cox drolled out.

It is the last league game of the season. Fill the Gymnasium, is the cry.

Basketball Tournaments

At a meeting of Principals and Coaches of the Fourth District at the Claridge Hotel Saturday the drawings for the forth-coming tournaments were held.

The Collierville girls drew the fast Whitehaven team. If they succeed in routing these rivals, they stand a good chance of going to the finals.

The boys had better "Luck" as they drew Somerville, a rather weak team, and have only Brighton standing between them and the semi-finals. Brighton usually turns out a tough bunch, however, and the boys are not expecting easy sailing.

The girls tournament will be held at Brownsville Feb. 20th, 21st and 22nd. Our girls will play Whitehaven at 7:30 on Feb. 20th.

The boys' tournament will be held at Bolton, Feb. 27th, 28th and March 1st. Our boys play Somerville at 8 p.m. on the 27th.

Will Make Town 100 Per Cent In Legion Membership Drive

Under the leadership of Douglas Hill, members of the American Legion plan to make Collierville 100%, in the drive for members of Memphis Post No. 1. At the meeting held last night, Mr Hill reported the following business firms as 100% Post Office, The White Cafe, Biggs Electric Co., J M Mann & Son; Kelsey Bros., Hinton & Hutton Co., Peoples Bank, Cooper Motor Co., C B Piper & Son, Memphis P & L Co. and W S Piper & Son.

Every effort will be made to secure the application of every other ex-service man, making the town 100%.

Charles Marion Duscoe

After a very brief illness with pneumonia, Charles Marion Duscoe, aged 12 died Sunday morning at 10:30 at the home of his parents, Mr and Mrs R R Duscoe. He is survived by his parents, three brothers Orville, Garrison, and Maizee Lee all of Collierville. Funeral services were conducted by Rev J P Horton at Magnolia Cemetery Monday afternoon. Hinton and Hutton Co. had charge of funeral arrangements.

Charles was a fine lad of right principles' much loved by his schoolmates and teachers. He made excellent marks in deportment and scholastic work, being one of the four honor students of his class, the fourth grade, the first term of this session. The many friends extend deepest sympathy to the bereaved family.

Mr. W. W. Neely

Mr W W Neely, 48, died at the Methodist hospital Tuesday night after being struck by a moving street car during his efforts to catch it. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, and one son; his parents, Mr and Mrs J P Neely of Byhalia, Miss.; two sisters, Mrs Moffatt of Byhalia, Mrs Laura Bryant, Collierville; and two brothers, Gus Neely, Banks, Miss. and J A Neely, Collierville.

Funeral services, conducted by Dr. Ben Cox, were held Wednesday afternoon at the J T Hinton funeral parlors. Interment was made in Elmwood cemetery.

Mrs. G. L. Earnhart

Mrs G L Earnhart, aged 61 died Monday morning, Feb. 10, at the home of her daughter Mrs A A Morison in Jackson, Tenn. She had long been a faithful and devout christian, having been a loyal member in the local Baptist Church. She is survived by her husband, G L Earnhart of Collierville, former daughters: Mrs R E Morrison, Halls, Tenn., Mrs T T McAlexander, Holly Springs, Miss.; Mrs L E Sawyer, Wood River, Ill., Mrs A A Morison, Jackson.

Services were held Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock at the Baptist church, conducted by Rev J P Horton. Interment was made in Magnolia Cemetery with Hinton & Hutton Co in charge.

Our delegation to the peace party in London did not create nearly so much interest as did the corps of secretaries and stenographers that went along with them. "Startlingly different" was the way one paper described them, and we are sure they are. England has found our own Virginia girl "startlingly different" and so they will find all our American girls. They are not by any means like the ship loads of their great-great-great-grandmothers that came over from England to make wives for the early settlers. No, they're different.

CHAPTER XI

A fresh wave of wrath painted Ginger's face with rose. She flashed from the secretion of her corner by the stairway just in time to see the can grocer press a fervent and unmistakable kiss upon the delicate lips of Miriam, the sensible twin. Miriam seemed not in the least surprised, but rather pleased. Marjory, too, seemed to take the outrage with indecent calmness, while Eddy Jackson wore a smile no less than diabolic.

"Just for that, Eddy Jackson, you owe me ninety dimes," she announced sternly. "Nine whole dollars I spent on this comedy of yours."

And she marched straight to the kitchen.

Only Eddy Jackson heard her. For Miriam, the last shred of her sensibility thrown to the winds, was clinging to Alexander's hands, and trying to draw Marjory by sheer force into the warmth of his nearness. Eddy followed Ginger to the kitchen.

"Aw, have a heart," he pleaded. "He told me to do it."

Ginger stared at a pan on the stove, where thick heavy bubbles—rose and fell.

"You see the gravy is burning," she said, and offered not a hand to save it. "Let it burn. I hope it does burn. I hope the gravy burns him, and the alligator pear chokes him, and the fried chicken gives him pernicious anemia."

Eddy laughed. "Listen, wild one, and I'll tell the deep and bloody mystery of that young man's life. Nobody knows it. Marjory doesn't know it. Miriam herself doesn't know it. But I know it and I'll tell you. He really is a romantic figure—most romantic."

"Canned beans, canned corn, canned tomato soup, canned peaches—it makes me sick—canned sweet potatoes—" she recounted drearly.

Eddy Jackson briskly stirred the gravy as he talked. Eddy was fond of cream gravy.

"He's no grocer. His family owns that chain gang set, whatever you call it, the Orange and Black, all over the country. Alex will be some high-mucky-muck-manager one of these days. They sent him on this trip west to familiarize himself with the business, and the localities—this new idea of know your stuff from the ground up."

Ginger took the spoon away from him. After all, it was her gravy.

"Eddy, why didn't you tell me?" "He told me not to. Nobody knew it. Not even the chain bunch here in town."

"But you should have told me!" "If anybody asks me not to tell something that is none of my business—and nobody else's—I won't tell it," said Eddy firmly.

"Just like father," mourned Ginger. Suddenly a fresh anxiety swept over her. "But Eddy, just see what a mess you've made of it. Why, he's never so much as looked at Marjory."

"I should say not. He's out over Miriam."

"But Miriam—Miriam hasn't got a thing—but brains."

"She's got Alexander Murdock."

"Does Miriam think he is a real grocer?"

"Yes. She told me she would marry him if he was a shoe shiner."

"Marry him. Did he ask her?"

"Sure. That's what he came back for. Brought her the engagement ring."

Ginger's eyes glittered. "Put another chair at the table, will you? And get me a knife and fork from that drawer. There won't be any waiting on at this party. You can carry the plates back and forth yourself."

So Ginger accepted Alexander Murdock as a prospective brother-in-law, and one to be received with a certain amount of gratitude. After all, he could give them a reduction on the canned groceries. She shook hands with him, exclaimed joyously over the brilliant solitaire which adorned Miriam's slender finger, and admitted that the denouement was well worth the ninety dimes expended.

"Why dimes?" demanded Eddy curiously.

"Oh, that's the way I get it—I mean save it," Ginger amended quickly.

She regarded her twin sisters reflectively, one after the other. Miriam was well enough of course, the still, deep kind, nothing surprising, nothing startling about her. Miriam was the type that one gets used to. But Marjory's brilliancy was a fresh revelation, an entirely new amazement, every day.

"Beauty's queer, isn't it?" she puzzled. Then she studied her own plump features in the mirror, and for the first time, not without some hope,

"Look me over, will you? Does anybody see any signs of it on me?"

CHAPTER XII

The new Methodist church of Red Thrush, Iowa, was an established fact. Mr. Tolliver, his eyes carefully shielded behind the padded glasses, had preached the tender sermon which served both to dedicate the new church, and to bid farewell to his parishioners, for the general conference was to convene the week following. He had accepted the mandate of the church, and planned to live in retirement until some work of different nature could be found for him, or, as he said, until the Lord chose to bless the means used for his restoration. He continued in close correspondence with new surgeons, the best and the most expensive the Middle West afforded.

On this day, the twins had gone to college. Eddy Jackson came in his car and took them and their new bags to the train, after which with Ginger he drove slowly back to the parsonage which would be her home for a brief fortnight longer. Ginger did not know just what was to become of her and her father, but Ginger didn't care. They were always taken care of, would always be. And there was the rich munificence of the home for the blind at their command, although of this her father still knew nothing. They would remain with Miss Jenkins in the parsonage until after the conference, and then go for what they called a visit to Helen and Horace for a while, until they could decide upon the best plan for the future.

The one interest of Ginger herself was to remain in Red Thrush as long as possible. Her address as treasurer of the parsonage home was too broadly disseminated now to be lightly changed, and all of her arguments were based on that great fact.

All the enthusiasm, and the non-chalance, and the farewells, were over. Ginger and Eddy sat alone in the living room of the old parsonage, rather still, a little depressed with their aloneness. In the small den on the left, beyond the curve of the staircase, they could hear Hiram's low voice talking to her father, while they sorted and packed old manuscripts, ready for removal from the house that had been their home for four years. Miss Jenkins had gone to her room, to weep over the departure of the twins. Ginger had seen her go, with relief. Miss Jenkins' weeping depressed her to the deepest extreme.

"Well, it's all over now," she said dully. "Helen's married, the twins are gone, and father and I are fired."

"Oh, nonsense. Helen is well off and very happy. The twins will be home for Christmas, and your father will get a better church than Red Thrush."

"Eddy—" Her voice sank to a whisper. "Do you think he will ever see again? Do you think even the most expensive doctor in the world can cure him?"

"Why, of course he will see again. Didn't all the doctors say the same thing, that it was just nervous and mental reaction, and in time—"

"It's a long time, though. Very long."

"You're so impatient, Ginger. But that's because you're young."

A quick loud knock at the door

When Amateur Sleuth Lost Interest in Case

Most men possess a huge contempt for the detective ability of the police and nurse a confident belief that if it were put up to them they would solve any mystery in jig time.

On Long Island lives a man who not only believes that Sherlock Holmes was a slouch compared to him, but who gets in some active practice. If a crime is committed in his locality he makes a bee-line for the police station and starts in to "help" the department. The police do not relish his interference, but they've got to humor him because of his influence.

But this man proved to be too good a detective. One day he called at the station to see if there was anything doing and was told of a motor car started her to her feet with a nervous gasp, but she quickly recomposed herself, and went in answer. The postman stood there, and with him another man, behind them another, both strangers—inspectors, possibly. Ginger thought, come to check up for statistical purposes. She smiled at the postman.

"Mail?" she asked. The postman showed embarrassment. "Well, yes," he said awkwardly. "You are E. Tolliver, aren't you?"

"Why, of course I am. You know I am. Ellen. Have you no letters for me?"

Suddenly she was aware that the man in the rear carried a large mail pouch. He stepped ahead of the others and entered the room. The postman and his companion followed silently. Ginger followed, also. Eddy Jackson stood up. The man in the dark suit opened the pouch, and lifted it high, pouring out a little stream of letters upon the table.

Then, for the first time, the third man spoke.

"Do you claim this mail?"

"Why, of course, I'm the only E. Tolliver there is. E. stands for Ellen."

"Wait a minute, wait a minute, now. You claim this mail, do you? You acknowledge that it is meant for you? You admit this before witnesses?"

"Be careful, Ginger," interposed Eddy Jackson quickly, scenting trouble. "Don't say anything. Don't commit yourself."

"You keep out of this, young man. Well, miss, then you—"

"Why, of course I claim it," said Ginger quickly. "It's all right, Eddy. It's for me. Why, I've had a lot just like it." She smiled disarmingly at the postman. "You know," she added significantly.

"Well, you all hear that," said the third man, in a snarling low voice. "She claims it. She's the one we're after."

Ginger turned surprised, wide, innocent eyes upon his face. She did not speak.

"Well, come across now, miss. Give us the goods. Where is this here home—parsonage home for the blind, you call it? I don't see any signs of it." His voice was low and ugly.

Ginger smiled nervously. "Well, but you see, this really is it. Father's blind, you know, and this is our home. And the parsonage, well, this is the parsonage. Everybody in town knows that."

"Yes, I know all about it, and a pretty slick game, I call it. But I guess we've got the dope on you, right enough. Getting money under false pretenses—that's what the law calls your home for the blind. Using the mails to defraud, that's what the law says. Penitentiary business, miss, that's what you're up against."

"No, oh, no. It is true—it really is true. It is a home for the blind, for one blind—father."

"Begging, eh? Well, you've got to have a license in this country, even for that. Oh, we know your game, kid. We're on to you all right. We expected an alibi—Shut up!" he shouted to the shocked old postman, who had endeavored to interpose a word on her behalf. "You shut up, and keep out of this." He turned to Ginger, and caught her arm in a rough grasp. "Come along, now, and no more monkey business."

Eddy was a slow young man, slow to wrath, but the sight of the great red hand on Ginger's slender arm goaded him to action.

"You take your hand, off that girl!" he shouted, springing across the room with a blind violence that sent two chairs spinning away from him.

"Hush, oh, hush," begged Ginger. "Eddy, don't! I'm not hurt. Oh, don't let father hear you! Oh, please hush!"

"Bring out your old man—bring out the whole nest," believed the officer furiously. "We'll clean house here while we're at it!"

Ginger turned despairingly to Eddy Jackson. "Eddy, make him hush! Father's eyes—A shock will—Oh, Eddy!"

The officer, pulling himself away from Eddy's restraining hand, caught her shoulder with a grasp that flung her half to the floor, and Eddy, driven entirely reckless at the sight, leaped upon him.

But Mr. Tolliver in the small adjoining room had heard the unusual uproar in his quiet home, heard it first with surprise, then with rising indignation. With one bound he entered the living room and instinctively, as in a crisis one who has been accustomed to clear vision for many years is bound to do, he tore the protecting bandages from his eyes and dashed them upon the floor.

JESUS HEALING AND HELPING

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 8:1-9:34.
GOLDEN TEXT—Himself took our infirmities and bore our sicknesses.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Healing and Helping.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Healing and Helping.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Friend of the Needy.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Healing Human Needs.

I. Jesus Heals a Leper (8:1-4).

1. The dreadful disease (v. 2). Leprosy, the most loathsome and hopeless disease known, in the Jewish ritual, was regarded as a symbol of sin. As leprosy was incurable by man, so only the divine physician could cure sin.

2. The leper's faith (v. 2). His cry was most pitiable, but his faith was strong. He fully believed that Jesus was able, but not certain that He was willing to heal him.

3. Jesus' power (v. 3). He put forth His hand and touched the leper, bidding the disease depart, and instantly the man was cleansed.

II. Jesus Heals the Centurion's Servant (8:5-13).

1. The disease (v. 6). The victim of paralysis is helpless and disqualified for service.

2. The centurion's humility (v. 8). He first sent the Jewish elders and then his friends (Luke 7:3, 6), because he felt his unworthiness. The case of this servant was so grave that his master brushed aside his timidity and personally appealed to Jesus.

3. The centurion's faith (vv. 8, 9). He believed that if Jesus would but speak the word, his servant would be healed.

4. The wonderful power of Jesus (v. 13). He did not need even to see the helpless man, but only to speak the word and it was done.

III. Jesus Heals Peter's Mother-in-law (8:14, 15).

She was sick of a fever. Jesus was invited into Peter's home to heal this woman. Upon entering the home He touched the hand of the patient and the fever left her, and she arose and ministered unto them.

IV. Jesus Casts Out Demons (8:28-34).

After stilling the tempest, Jesus crossed to the other side of the sea into heathen territory.

1. Met by two men possessed by demons (v. 28). These men were in a desperate condition (see Mark 5:1-17 and Luke 8:27). So fierce were they that no one could safely pass that way. They wore no raiment and no chains were strong enough to hold them.

2. What they knew about Christ (v. 29). They knew that He was the Son of God and that He had come to destroy the devil and his work. Among the demons there is no doubt as to the deity of Jesus Christ and as to the Judgment to come.

3. Christ's power to deliver from the devil (vv. 30, 32). The demons quailed before Him, not daring to dispute His power.

V. Jesus Heals a Woman With an Issue of Blood (9:20-22).

1. Her helpless condition (v. 20). She had been a great sufferer for twelve long years, not only from the disease, but at the hands of the physicians (Mark 5:26).

2. Her faith (v. 21). Her faith was so strong that she believed contact with the Master's garment would secure needed help.

3. Her confession (v. 21, cf. Luke 8:47). She thought secretly to get the blessing, but Jesus perceived that virtue had gone out from Him, and had her make a public confession.

4. Christ's words of encouragement (v. 22). He told her that it was her faith, not her touch that saved her.

VI. Jesus Opening the Eyes of Two Blind Men (9:27-31).

1. Their persistence of faith (v. 28). These poor men had heard of the wonderful works of Jesus and desired to be healed.

2. The intelligence of faith (v. 27). They cried unto Him as the Son of David, which showed that they recognized Him as the promised Messiah. The prophet had foretold such to be the works of Messiah (Isa. 29:18; 35:5; 42:7).

3. The challenge of faith (v. 28). In reply to His challenge, they gave Him a definite answer.

4. The triumph of faith (vv. 29, 30). Their faith brought them into touch with the Lord of life who revealed His power by opening their eyes.

Analyzing YOU

With the New Science of Syllabics

By C. J. COFFMAN
Dean of All the Enumerators

Beatrice

"Ask and it shall be given to you, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you."

It is curious that the first syllable of Beatrice, BEA, should also begin with the word beatitudes. In which is included the famous saying quoted above. Yet this first syllable of your name, BEA, literally means to ask, to seek and to desire.

Few people are blessed with a name that means more, for in your second syllable, TRICE, you indicate our modern word three or thrice. In other words, your ability to express desire in three ways, and get three answers, is again multiplied three times by that last syllable, TRICE.

If Beatrice does not live long, as has sometimes been stated, it is because this ability to ask and to seek, has been lowered too closely to the animal plane. That is, it descends into her eating.

This tendency, if not checked, may cause you to "BE-AT-RICE" or starchy foods too often. There are better things than that for you, I feel sure you will find them.

To really find the highest things for your life, it is necessary for you to move everything in the direction of the spiritual. You must aspire to make more and more of your heartfelt desires take in spiritual truths.

With your fine, full lips and round features, you readily attract those who desire the mothering of a good woman. You may even move great poets, as the beloved Beatrice moved Dante, in his writings. You have the power to make any man glad to do his utmost for your favor.

You can do your part by merely following the significance of the first two letters of your name, BE, and be his real mate.

Charlotte

Charlotte, you represent the secret sign. It is up to you to determine what kind of a sign this shall be.

An old Greek rendering which uses your first syllable, CHAR, meant gladness and joy.

But no one must accuse you of lightness or frivolity, for a still more ancient use of your CHAR, indicated strength in anger.

These two meanings will show you why you can make your own choice as to the use of the powers in your name.

If you feel quite modern in your attitude of mind, you can give dignity to very flapperlike costuming. On the other hand, if you love the ancient, you are capable of giving a very demure and modern effect to old ideas in dress and toilettries.

You can even display these versatile talents without making any effort on your part. Anyone who can read character would know it by looking at your ear with its adaptable nature displayed too clearly.

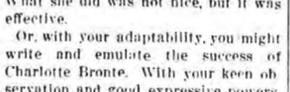

Adaptable indeed is this ear, from deep study and scholarly attainment, to the more frivolous "life of the party." Taken all in all, you are the secret sign of attainment, Charlotte.

Your chances of success will be very much by yourself, in the way you take hold of things, or fail to.

In another day, a Charlotte came gentle, refined and beautiful, to free her people from a tyrant. She was Charlotte Corday, of whom you have no doubt read in your French history. What she did was not nice, but it was effective.

Or, with your adaptability, you might write and emulate the success of Charlotte Bronte. With your keen observation and good expressive powers, you are quite capable of writing effectively.

First Shorthand

Modern shorthand dates from the patent granted on July 26, 1588, for fifteen years, to Dr. Timothy Bright, resident physician at St. Bartholomew's hospital, London, which licensed him "to teach, imprint, and publish, or cause to be taught, imprinted, and published, in or by character not before this time commonly known and used by other our subjects." In the same year Bright published a description of the system in his book, "Character. An arte of shORTE, swifTE and secret writing by character."

Neal's Mother Has Right Idea

Within a few months there will be no more feverish, bilious, headachy, constipated, pale and puny children. That prophecy would surely come true if every mother could see for herself how quickly, easily, and harmlessly the bowels of babies and children are cleansed, regulated, given tone and strength by a product which has proved its merit and reliability to do what is claimed for it to millions of mothers in over fifty years of steadily increasing use.

As mothers find out from using it how children respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup by growing stronger, sturdier and more active daily they simply have to tell other mothers about it. That's one of the reasons for its overwhelming sales of over four million bottles a year.

A Western mother, Mrs. Neal M. Todd, 1701 West 27th St., Oklahoma City, Okla., says: "When my son, Neal, was three years old he began having constipation. I decided to give him California Fig Syrup and in a few days he was all right and looked fine again. This pleased me so much that I have used Fig Syrup ever since for all his colds or little upset spells. It always stops his trouble quick, strengthens him, makes him eat."

Always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name and see that the carton bears the word "California." Then you'll get the genuine.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

FARM POULTRY

PAYING POULTRY FLOCK IS GROWN

Spring-Hatched Pullets Carefully Developed Are Best.

Developing the spring-hatched pullets from the time the chicks leave the incubator until the pullets are placed in the laying house is the pathway to profits in the poultry industry.

"The object of this development is to have pullets of stamina, bone and vigor and fully up to the standard weight of the breed," says R. S. Dearsteyne, poultryman at State college. "At first the proper meshes are needed until finally the laying mash containing 20 per cent of protein is given. The young pullets must have an abundance of succulent green feed especially, as the grass on the range gets old and tough. When placing birds in the laying house, do this about two weeks before they start laying so that they may become accustomed to their surroundings."

Nesting material should be changed often, runs cleared of litter, perch poles scraped and freed of mites, and the birds examined for internal parasites. A minimum of four feet of floor space to each bird is needed in the house, and at least two feet of perch pole for each three birds. Dampness in the house and damp litter is to be avoided if the birds are not to have roup and colds. Fresh, clean water is necessary and the mash hoppers are to be kept filled at all times. Oyster shell and grit needs to be kept before the birds, and grain fed twice each day with the heaviest amount at evening.

Mr. Dearsteyne says that the poultryman will do well to spend about ten minutes each day in general observation of his flock. This will help him to find any lack of thriftiness or any indication of disease. Birds roughly handled, irregularly fed and watered, infested with parasites or neglected in other ways will not prove profitable.

Caponizing Profitable Way to Market Poultry

Caponizing is one of the most profitable ways of marketing late-hatched cockerels. In an experiment last year fifty June hatched cockerels were caponized. The birds were of dual-purpose breeds and caponized when they had reached a weight of 12 ounces to 2½ pounds. These birds were sold the following April and averaged six pounds each, dressed for market. They brought 35 cents a pound, or an average of $2.10 per bird. The feed cost of producing these birds was 84 cents each, and with an additional charge of 10 cents for dressing and picking, the net profit was $1.16 per bird.

Another poultryman caponized 191 barred Plymouth Rocks last summer. When sold their average weight was 7.7 pounds each, and they brought 43 cents per pound. The total cost of growing these capons—chicks, feed and labor—was placed at $306.14. There were 176 birds at selling time, which brought a total of $561.14, leaving a net profit of 85 cents per bird.

Poultry Notes

Winter egg profits will depend largely on the care given pullets.

Hatch the chicks early so that the pullets are mature for winter egg production.

Don't forget the importance of fresh, juicy greens for both the baby chicks and old hens.

The first half of April is the ideal time to hatch chicks of smaller breeds such as the Leghorns.

Giving hens 12 hours of light increases egg production at the season when the prices are high.

When calcium carbonate is not available in sufficient quantities, hens lay soft-shelled eggs or no eggs at all.

Making it easier for the hens to consume large quantities of mash aids in the production of eggs. At least 10 linear feet of double hopper space should be provided for 100 hens.

Culling should not be considered as a substitute for correct management of a flock of hens. Even the good producers may cease laying in the summer if proper care is neglected.

To carry on heavy production hens must have strong bodies and a good supply of nourishing feeds.

Good producing hens may become thin if not fed sufficiently. Total feed consumption can be increased usually by giving a moistened mash once a day throughout the summer months.

Give free range to the birds which are to be used as breeders this spring. They should also be fed an abundance of whole yellow corn.

Breeding, selection, and poultry culture are employed by alert poultrymen to meet the shifting market demands for poultry and eggs.

More Lambs If Ewes Well Fed

Extra Ration in Breeding Season Is Treatment in Big Favor.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Not only has science been able to make two blades of grass grow where but one grew before, but it is now able to induce ewes to drop a larger number of twin lambs. Extra feed at the breeding season is the treatment that produces the additional lambs.

This statement comes from the United States Department of Agriculture, whose sheep specialists have been at work on the problem for the past twelve years. The results of their work show that liberal feeding just before and during the breeding season, commonly known as "flushing," has given a larger number of twins. While the percentage of increase has varied from year to year, the average has been more than 16 lambs per 100 ewes for the flushed ewes than for lots which did not receive this extra feed.

Supplementary Feed.

A study has been made of the comparative value of a supplementary grain ration and of extra-quality pasture for furnishing this extra feed. Very little difference was found in the lambing percentages of ewes flushed by these two methods. However, it is usually cheaper to supply the additional feed in the form of extra-quality pasture.

"The pasture should be sufficiently luxuriant to cause the ewes to gain rapidly. Seasons sometimes occur, however, in which pastures are too short for this purpose. In such seasons it is advisable for farmers to give the flock a supplementary grain allowance of from one-half to one and one-half pounds per head daily, the amount depending upon the size of the sheep and the amount and quality of the green feed available.

Mixed Grain Ration.

A mixed grain ration consisting of equal parts by weight of corn and oats has been found a satisfactory ration for this purpose. Forage crops, such as soy beans, cowpeas, sweet clover, and alfalfa, in sections where they can safely be used for pasture, makes satisfactory pasture crops on which to flush ewes. Blue grass pasture is also excellent. Although ewes gain readily on young, tender clover, much difficulty has been experienced in getting them to breed while on this type of pasture."

Spraying Thoroughly Is Best Plan for Insects

The time for spraying the orchards will soon be here. In fact, spraying can be done at any time now when the weather is suitable. It is well to emphasize the importance of doing this work thoroughly. A few branches missed here and there may have enough scale on them to reinfest the entire tree before the next season is over. Use a fine spray and do a good job.

A spray that develops a strong pressure is essential. Either lime sulphur or the miscible oils, properly applied, should be used for scale insects, which are becoming more numerous. It is reported that San Jose scale, which at one time was well under control, is now menacing our orchards and bringing about a situation that requires prompt attention.

Look over the fruit trees and get the spraying done before growth starts in the spring.

Custom Grinding May Be Best in Some Instances

Experiments at Iowa State college lead to the conclusion that the farmer who needs only one or two hundred bushels ground annually should have it done at a custom mill if within reasonable hauling distance. Where more than four hundred bushels are needed per year, the farmer can well afford to own his own equipment and do the grinding work on his farm. Home grinding costs about one-half that of custom grinding when more than seven hundred bushels are ground per year. A small electric grinder will operate from 25 to 35 per cent cheaper than large equipment, especially when arranged for automatic or semiautomatic operation. It is cheaper to operate, a smaller transformer can be used with much decreased core loss, and it gives an improved load factor and better diversified load.

Egg Quality Important in Sending to Market

Some hens consistently lay a higher quality of eggs than others. That is the conclusion of Prof. W. C. Thompson of the New Jersey Agriculture college at New Brunswick, N. J.

Hens were selected that produced from 100 to 200 eggs per bird during the year. Yet the price received for the eggs from different hens during the year varied from $5.05 to $8.74 per bird. This was due to the fact that some hens laid eggs of which over 90 per cent were extra quality while others laid a high percentage of small eggs. The time will come when markets will compel us to take into account the value of the eggs produced as well as the numbers in selecting our poultry breeding stock, just as the dairyman has already learned to take into account the test along with the weight of the milk produced by different cows.

Advantage in Favor of Spraying Potato

Found More Efficient in Control of Diseases

For several seasons past experiments have been under way on the grounds of the New York State Agricultural Experiment station at Geneva to test the relative efficiency of a copper-lime dust and liquid bordeaux spray, which contains much the same ingredients as the dust mixture, for the control of insect pests and diseases of potatoes, particularly potato blight. The results of the tests show a decided advantage in favor of spraying over dusting.

In each of the four experiments, the spray gave much the better results, as shown both by the appearance of the foliage and by the yield of marketable tubers. Both early blight and late blight were controlled fairly well by dusting, but considerably better by spraying. For the control of tlburn or hopperburn, caused by leafhoppers, the dust proved almost valueless, while the spray showed high efficiency. Since neither flea beetles nor Colorado potato beetles were important factors in any of the experiments, no data on the control of these insects were obtained.

Notwithstanding the lesser efficiency of the dust, its use may be advisable under certain conditions, for example, where water is difficult to obtain and in small fields where it is necessary to use hand machines.

Winter Sun Scald Quite Troublesome in Orchards

"Southwest" injury (sometimes called winter sun scald) was quite troublesome in many apple and cherry orchards last winter. This injury is said to occur late in the winter and results in a splitting of the bark down the southwest side of the trunk. The trouble can be prevented by shading the trunk during the winter. There are many ways of doing this, such as, low-hanging branches, wrapping the trunk, leaning a board against the southwest side of the trunk. Some authorities recommend whitewashing the trunk. When the sun shines on the trunk of a fruit tree on a clear winter afternoon it warms the bark and the part just underneath, and possibly causes a rise of sap. Then, when the sun sinks below the horizon the warmed portion of the tree trunk turns cold very suddenly and the bark freezes and splits. Thus one can readily understand why shading the trunk from the direct rays of the winter sun is a preventative.

Eradication of Onions From Cultivated Land

The eradication of wild onions from cultivated land is a slow process, and can be accomplished only by the regular and systematic rotation of crops and the thoroughly clean cultivation whenever such crops as corn and soy beans come on the land in rotation. Late fall plowing by which the roots are exposed to freezing is also an essential means of eradication.

Wild onion is a pest in wheat fields, for the seed, or bulblets, are about the same size and weight of a grain of wheat, and it is impossible to clean them out in threshing even with the best sieves and fans. But if infested grain is kept for several months and subjected to cold, the onion seed dry and shrivel, becoming light enough to be fanned out with a good machine.

Thorough Cleaning Out Is Poultry House Need

The chicken house should be thoroughly cleaned out and the floor, walls, ceiling and fixtures thoroughly drenched with some powerful disinfectant at least twice a year, preferably the early spring and in the fall. A 3 per cent solution of a coal tar stock dip will serve. The litter kept in the house should be removed and replaced with fresh whenever it becomes so broken up that grain thrown out to the birds does not disappear so that the birds have to search it out to find it.

Agricultural Notes

Select the richest soil and the sunniest spot for the early spinach.

One of the most serious problems of the farmers is that of soil washing.

Barley should go into the ground before oat planting and corn planting time.

Leaching, soil washing and robbing of plantfood are all working to destroy the productivity of mother earth.

People living in different districts of the country become accustomed to the particular flavor of honey common to that district and prefer it to others.

At the Ohio station a three-year average yield of 14.28 tons per acre of sunflowers has been secured while corn under similar conditions yielded 12.78.

Tests run at Iowa State college agronomy farm indicate that soy beans have a long planting period, that is, they may be grown successfully, with equal yields, if planted any time between April 19 and June 7.

The DAIRY

DRIVING COWS TO MILKER FAVORED

Mechanical Milking Unit of Standard Make Praised.

Milking cows is being done in a new way by experts of the United States Department of Agriculture at the dairy experiment farm in Maryland and the plan being used may have several advantages for Minnesota dairymen, in the opinion of Dr. C. H. Eckles, chief of the dairy division, University Farm, St. Paul. This plan involves driving the cows to the milking machine, instead of taking the machine to the cows.

A mechanical milking unit of standard make is used, but instead of the usual portable receptacle for the milk, it is drawn into a stationary container located between two stalls. Cows are driven into the milking stalls from the rear and instead of being tied or stanchioned they are detained by movable gates placed in front of the stalls. These can be opened from the rear by the operator after each cow is milked, allowing her to move on and another bossy to take her place.

Doctor Eckles thinks the idea is well worth considering for dairymen who are contemplating building new barns and particularly so for farmers who wish to go into the dairy business, utilizing buildings which they already have, but which are not equipped for dairying.

For instance, a man who is raising beef cattle might easily and cheaply convert his place into a dairy farm by fitting up a small milking plant along the lines described above, using the regular sheds or shelters for dairy cows and driving them to the special stalls for milking. Large herds of dairy cows may be sheltered together without stanchions providing they are dehorned and the sheds kept well bedded.

Doctor Eckles would favor having enough milking stalls to permit the cows to remain in them while eating their grain. Feeding the cows their grain individually at milking time enables the dairymen to adjust the amount of grain to milk flow and also attracts the cows to the milking stalls. Reside being a relatively cheap way to equip a farm for dairying, this new system would make it easier to keep the milking quarters clean because of their smaller size, Doctor Eckles says.

Sweet Clover Excellent Ration for Dairy Cows

Cows may be pastured on sweet clover as readily as on clover or alfalfa. Care must be taken at first to turn them on only when the clover is dry and only for an hour or two for the first few days until the cows are accustomed to the clover.

Sweet clover is best seeded in the spring with oats or barley. The growth is slow at first, but in favorable years and on good soil it may be pastured lightly the first fall after the grain is harvested. Sweet clover is a biennial. The main crop comes the second year, when it should be pastured off closely, as the plant then dies. The best practice is, of course, to have two pieces, seeding one each year, and plowing up the land after the main crop has been pastured off.

Unless it grows wild in your neighborhood, seed inoculation will undoubtedly be a benefit. It is doubtful if sweet clover that is sown in the fall with rye or wheat would make sufficient growth to carry it through the winter and be strong enough to make a vigorous growth in the spring.

Dairy Hints

Cows like to breathe fresh air. Barns need to be properly ventilated.

Cows will eat three pounds of silage per day for every 100 pounds live weight.

Milk from a cow properly fed, contains vitamins which are essential to human health.

Cows will eat from one to two pounds of alfalfa hay per day for every 100 pounds live weight.

Alfalfa or clover hay should be included in the ration of calves or yearlings being fattened for the market.

Don't turn cows on pasture until the grass has developed substance and has a good start. Put them out for only a short time at first that they may gradually become accustomed to the change.

Let the calf suck the fingers and gradually draw its nose into the milk when the fingers should be removed gradually as soon as the calf gets a taste of the milk. This method may have to be repeated several times before the calf will drink alone.

Cows may eat and may also use bedding, timothy hay, quack grass, etc. These roughages require from 18 per cent to 20 per cent digestible protein in the grain mixture. Such mixtures are more expensive than when alfalfa or clover is fed.

"Why Will Ye Die?" Ezekiel 18:31
By Rev. B. M. Cowan

The text implies that the person addressed is not well.

Physical death is not meant here—all men must die physically. The death here noted is the death of soul and body forever. This means the separation from the God of hope and love.

1—The text implies that in some way a man is responsible for his death. But one says "God is sovereign; He is not influenced by any act of mine." We maintain that the sinner is responsible for the following reasons:

1. The character of the Gospel—abundant and free.
2. The character of man—he reasons, he knows, he is capable of knowing God.

3. The character of his future, with or without God. God has but one way—"Believe". Abraham believed God and it was counted unto him for righteousness. Believing is more than assenting to a thing. It means pillowing your head on God's breast. Begin with Jesus Christ. He is the A B C of the Gospel. Learn the A B C first.

The Gospel has but one time—Today. "Now is the accepted time." God, your Father, asks you "Why?"

God your Saviour asks you "Why?"

God, the Holy Spirit, asks you "Why?"

Your mother, father, friend, pastor ask you "Why?"
"Why Will You Die?"

PIPERTON

The regular meeting of the Piperton Woman's Club was held at the Club house on last Thursday afternoon at which time the drawing took place for the Steam Pressure Cocker. The tickets were shuffled and drawn out by Frances Dunn. Mrs Susie Ballard's ticket was drawn and she was awarded the 12-quart Cocker. As chance would have it, this day was Mrs Ballard's birthday, and the prize was a very appropriate gift. The money obtained from the sale of the tickets in this Cocker Contest will be used by the Club in further worthwhile work in the Community, where the club is doing a splendid service. At the close of the meeting last week, fruit cake and coffee were served by the hostesses for the afternoon.

The Club, with Mrs C B Piper, President; Mrs Lottie Dunn, Secretary, wishes to thank everyone who so willingly helped in this contest—whether with buying or selling tickets.

No Woman Need Be A Drudge These Days

Electricity is so efficient and economical that no woman can afford to waste her time and energy in doing drudgery work in these modern days.

For a few cents an hour. Electricity will relieve her of labor in doing the washing, ironing, cleaning and cooking, leaving more time for leisure and culture.

The modern home is incomplete without adequate Electric Service.

Permanent Pastures, Their Proper Management Essential to Successful Dairying.

by R. Cohen, Forest Hill, Tenn.

Now everybody goes into the Dairy Business. Will they make a success of it as little as they are prepared for it? It is so easy to buy a cow or two, put them on a so called pasture and pull their teats for a gallon or so of milk a day.

The subject is a very large and varied one, so I can today touch only the high points. Successful dairying is a business like any other business and proper pasturing a science and a most essential feature of this branch of agriculture.

Dairying does not begin with milking cows, but starts with raising calves, healthy calves, well developed, as only well matured animals will bring a profit to the owner. But you cannot raise healthy calves without pasture and you cannot have good pastures the year round unless you prepare them. A pasture raised cow will use concentrates to better advantage and if the cattle are raised on a good pasture a healthy normal stomach is developed, which works intensely and extracts from the feed all there is in it. Thus they will be able to get more out of roughage at a saving of concentrates. The various plants of a meadow increase the appetite through their various aromatic ingredients and help the digestion through their richness of easy digestible protein, vitamins and various salts. A good pasture makes well developed animals. A good pasture has a great influence on the generative organs and precludes nonbreeders.

The only pastures worth while are permanent pastures, not as we understand them in a general way here. Not pastures which you turn under every three or four years. To plow up good permanent pastures is a capital loss and therefore a grievous mistake. In this part of the country, we turn into so called pastures land which is not good for anything else. I call such meadows, "Starvation Runs" as they dry up in July and only bitter weeds and the like remain after the cattle even ruin the sod, hence they are nothing but plots to exercise weary bones. The very best land is not too rich for permanent pastures, but you can transform any land into highly producing permanent pastures provided you give it proper care and have the water level at least one and a half yards below surface. Wet land is cold, unproductive and good only to produce weeds. Cattle do not thrive on swamp grass. A permanent pasture must be just as well prepared as corn acreage with the district addition that it should be rich in lime and humus. The land must be properly prepared to eradicate all weeds as they will outstrip the growth of the valuable pasture grasses and legumes. Lime has the double value of not only improving the physical structure of the soil, but also creates a sweet nutritious food, so much cherished by all cattle.

The necessary acid phosphate for our heavy clay soils should be added according to individual needs. Steamed bonemeal is the best for all pastures, as it is organic manure and of lasting capacity.

The most important compound for a permanent pasture is, however, nitrate. The grasses which compose 75 to 80 per cent of a permanent pasture are nitrate consumers. They can only develop when they receive in their youth a good supply of nitrate, in order to enable a quick growth and a thick spreading of the root system so that no ground is available, it must be a solid green. The organic form of nitrates in stable manure tankage is preferable as they foster the development of ground bacteria so indispensable.

Of the chemical nitrate fertilizers calcium nitrate and ammonia phosphate may be specially mentioned. These should be applied a few weeks before sowing at about 100 pounds per acre.

All land to be put in permanent pasture should be well prepared in every respect and for clay soil such as we have here a mixture of melilopus, rye grass, orchard grass, lespedeza, white clover, reed top, is recommended.

These young permanent pastures must not be opened for cattle until the young plants are well developed. I should say 6-8 weeks after sowing, but only during dry weather so the cattle cannot sink into the soft ground. Holes must be avoided. The young pasture on the other hand must not grow too high, so that it stools and thickens out and if need be it is advisable to cut first for hay but not too close to the ground. After grazing has begun it is very imperative to narrow the ground from time to time in order to distribute the droppings.

To change our common so called permanent pastures into real permanent pastures, the labor so applied will prove highly profitable. Harrow thoroughly in the spring, sow a mixture as mentioned previously, manure or fertilize well and pasture frequently and where need be on account of weeds now often to kill them out. Where the water level is too high, drain it, preferably through tiles. Don't be afraid! It is not the quantity of the grass but the quality which counts. Swamp grass makes good bedding but no milk. You know from personal observation that the cattle prefers the sweet grass on the high spots to the long tough acid grass of the wet places. The same applies to hay when you feed it during winter, only the quality counts, never the quantity.

Your Corn Crop

LIKES

IS it just another corn crop for you this year, or have you decided to join the ranks of farmers who make a crop that really is a crop? Now is the time to decide... and you can just as easily make a good crop. No luck to it... just one single rule for success. Chilean Nitrate of Soda is the difference between a good corn crop and a poor one. A side dressing with this nitrate fertilizer (the only natural nitrate in the world) greatly increases the yield. Makes larger ears with more corn per ear and more ears per stalk.

A Tennessee Farmer Boy

Leonard J. Mabry, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., made 103 bu. on one acre in his 4-H Club project. He used only 100 lbs. of Chilean Nitrate, in 14 rows, leaving 2 rows without it. The 14 rows each made 1 1/2 bu. more per row than those without Chilean Nitrate. In other words, 100 lbs. Chilean Nitrate made 21 extra bushels for him.

Chilean Nitrate is not synthetic. It is mined and refined in Chile, largely by American capital, brought here in American ships and sold to American farmers at a low price. See your local dealer. If he does not carry Chilean Nitrate, he can easily get it for you.

Early Day Prohibition Enforcement

James Wilkinson

Little Turtle, Miami War-Chief

*Head Quarters
Detroit July 12 1797*

*General Order
James Wilkinson*

The duration of the troops, produced by the unassisted sale of liquor which have been permitted, and to the satisfaction of the Government of the United States.

To remedy evil habits with consequence, so destructive to the national interests, and so subversive of subordination and discipline, all persons are hereby prohibited selling liquor of any kind to the troops, except under the special permission of Lieutenant Colonel Commandant Strong; the infraction of this order by whomsoever committed, shall be punished by the Court Martial, and the forfeiture of a General Court-Martial.

Head Quarters Fort Mifflin February 21

Tomorrow being the Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington, the illustrious President of the United States, the auspicious day will be distinguished by a display of the flag from the flag-staff at this place to a general salute from the troops at 12 o'clock. All salutes are to cease at 12 o'clock. All salutes are to cease. The troops will draw an extra gill of Whisky. The Officers of Duty are requested to dine at Head Quarters.

A Wet Celebration of Washington's Birthday

BY ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ALTHOUGH we think of prohibition enforcement as a strictly modern American question, yet the fact is that here, as in many other present-day problems, is a curious instance of "history repeating itself." The passing of the Volstead act did not bring into being the first prohibition enforcement officer. That title belongs to an Indian chief and he was given his appointment more than 250 years ago!

In the middle of the Seventeenth century the Dutch in New Netherland were engaged in a series of wars with the neighboring Indian tribes. Finally a permanent treaty of peace was concluded in 1660, the leading signer of which was "Oratamin, sachem of the savages living at Achkinshacky (Hackensack), who declared himself commissioned by the savages of Tappan (Tappan), Rechgawawanc (Manhattan), Kichtawance (Kitchawank) and Sintsinck (Sintsink)" to act on their behalf. But this treaty did not end the troubles between the two races, for in 1662 Oratamin (whose name is also spelled Oratam, Oratamy, Oratan and Oraton) complained to the Dutch authorities of the illicit sale of brandy to his people.

As the result of this protest there appeared in the official records of New Netherland this entry:

Whereas Oratam, chief of Hackinghesky, and other savages have complained several times that many selfish people dare not only to sell brandy to the savages in this city, but also to carry whole ankers of it into their country and peddle it out there, from which, if it is not prevented in time, many troubles will arise, therefore, the director general and council of New Netherland, not knowing for the present of a better way to stop it, authorize the said chief together with the Sachem Mattanouch to seize the brandy brought into their country for sale and those offering to sell it, and bring them here that they may be punished as an example to others.

The Chiefs Oratam and Mattano are hereby authorized to seize the brandy brought into their country for sale, together with those who bring it, and conduct them hither.

Done at Fort Amsterdam in New Netherland the thirtieth day of March, 1662.

Evidently the two chiefs were efficient "prohibition enforcement officers" for there is no further mention of trouble for fifteen months. But it is evident, too, that prohibition then, as now, produced bootleggers, for in June, 1663, Oratam and other chiefs again appeared before the authorities, complaining that brandy was still being carried among their people. "On being told that we tried to prevent and had authorized Oratam to arrest Dutchmen who came into their country to peddle brandy," reads the record, "they replied that they were cheated by the Dutch, who said that the general had given his consent, and showed a letter giving permission to sell brandy in their country, also that they had taken away a large quantity of wampum, whereby the savages were entirely impoverished."

Again they were told to arrest the white men who brought liquor into their country and this time they were further authorized to bring their captives to New Amsterdam in fetters. As a reward for their enforcement work "We promised that they should have a piece of cloth for a coat beside the brandy which such persons should carry, and he who brought in the first should have two pieces." Of this incident one historian says "The piece of cloth can be understood, but one wonders what these temperance advocates did with the brandy; perhaps they sold it back to the Dutch!"

Oratam, however, was not the only chief who was destined to be concerned over the liquor question. American history is full of cases of Indian leaders who saw with alarm what the white man's "freewater" was doing to their people and who protested, usually in vain, to white authorities to stop the sale of it. One of the outstanding of these was Chief Little Turtle of the Miamis in Indiana, conqueror of Generals Harmar and St. Clair during the Indian wars after the Revolution. After his defeat by "Mad Anthony" Wayne at the Battle of Fallen Timbers, Little Turtle settled down near Fort Wayne, Ind., and devoted his efforts to trying to improve the lot of the Miami tribesmen by teaching them to learn to "walk in the white man's road" and to avoid the pitfalls placed in that road by the white man.

During a visit to the East in 1796, Little Turtle visited the yearly conference of the Society of Friends, at Baltimore, and appealed to them to use their influence to stop the transportation of liquor to the Indian country. Accordingly the Friends addressed a memorial to congress asking that this be done. But nothing seems to have come of it, for in 1802 and 1803, we find him making a personal appeal to the legislatures of Kentucky and Ohio for their aid in suppressing the liquor traffic among his people.

Mention of "Mad Anthony" Wayne recalls the fact that a regular ration of liquor was considered an indispensable part of the soldier's daily fare during the early days of the United States army and in that respect its use by Wayne's forces during the campaign against the tribes of the Old Northwest was in accordance with the custom of the day. The original manuscript "Orderly Books" of the western army, commanded first by Wayne and later by Gen. James Wilkinson, are preserved in the library of the United States Military Academy at West Point, and in them are some entries which make curious reading in these days of the Eighteenth amendment. For instance, on July 4, 1792, when headquarters of the expedition were at Pittsburgh, Wayne issued a general order for "a double allowance of spirits to the troops today, being the anniversary of the independence of the United States." On February 21, 1796, at Greenville, General Wilkinson ordered that the soldiers were to be allowed to "draw an extra gill of whisky" with which to celebrate Washington's birthday. The same extra allowance was authorized for the celebration of St. Patrick's day on March 17, although it was accompanied by a warning that "the brigadier-general will have no riot or drunkenness."

The next year, however, when headquarters were at Detroit, the use of liquor by the soldiers was causing so much trouble that Wilkinson was forced to issue an order prohibiting its sale to them.

Within the last year or so the state of Michigan has received widespread publicity because of its famous "life-for-a-pint" liquor law, especially when several women were convicted under that law. And these convictions were another example of "history repeating itself," for the first conviction and punishment of a woman liquor seller was the result of Wilkinson's order of July 12, 1797. The woman was Lydia Connor, described as a "follower of the army," in the report of the court martial at which she and two men were tried. All three were found guilty but only the woman was punished. What her punishment was is recorded thus in the orderly books:

The court finds the prisoner guilty of the charge exhibited against her, and sentences her, under the General Order of the 12th, Instant, and the 23rd, Article of the 13th, Section of the rules and articles of war, to be drummed with a bottle suspended about her neck, with the Rouge March, together with William Mitchell, a prisoner convicted of the like offense, her right hand tied to his left, through the Citadel in front of the troops, paraded, thence through the streets of the town, thence to and around the front of the barracks of the soldiery in Fort Lernaut, thence out of the fort to and along the main street, and out of the west or southwest gate of the town not to return therein or within the lines and fortifications of the troops of the United States, on penalty of receiving such punishment as may be inflicted upon her, by sentence of a court martial.

When these sentences were presented to General Wilkinson, he acted upon them thus. "The sentence passed upon Lydia Connor, a notorious offender, is to be carried into execution at six o'clock this afternoon. However highly merited, he remits so much of the sentence passed upon Mitchell as relates to drumming and he flatters himself that this instance of his clemency may not be misapprehended, as no further indulgence must be expected."

In the case of Frazer, the other man, Wilkinson was even more lenient probably because Frazer was very prominent in the little town of Detroit, and by dealing lightly with him the general may have hoped to curry favor with the citizens. This Wilkinson was not an admirable character, it will be remembered, for later in his career while commander-in-chief of the American army, he was guilty of what closely bordered upon treason, more so even than Aaron Burr, upon whom the greater odium of the conspiracy with the Spaniards in the Southwest fell. So there is reason for reading in a cynical frame of mind the following unctuous words:

With respect to William Frazer, the commander-in-chief will observe that, as he can never be indifferent to the feelings of any person, should the transgression have originated in misapprehension, he regrets the occasion; otherwise, he hopes the process may be received as evidence of the impartiality of his administration, and of the duty of the court, and that it will have the effect to prevent a repetition of the offense which cannot be permitted or pardoned.

The measures of the general since he took command of the post have been directed by motives of public utility, and the effects are visible to all. Acting above personal considerations—he abhors every emotion of a vindictive spirit and disdains the principles of a narrow and insidious policy—bound by the solemn obligations of public trust, and personal honor, he will sedulously guard the interests confided to his charge. And it will be a source of pleasure to him, should he, in the discharge of his duty, give satisfaction to citizens and aliens, but this is a secondary object. The first is the promotion of the national interests and the approbation of his superiors. The commander-in-chief is here to render public service, not to court popularity, or to subvert the accommodation of individuals.

Clam Pinches Nose of Inquisitive Man

Whitneyville, Conn.—A man in this city dug a fine mess of soft clams at the seashore and left part of the spoils with a friend in Hartford. The latter noticed that one of the largest of the clams had its shells wide open. He doubted that it was alive and to verify his suspicions he placed his nose well within the gaping jaws and took a whiff. The clam came down on the inquisitive nose with such vigor that its owner screamed in pain. Before the doubting Thomas could disengage his nose that organ was badly bruised and scratched.

GIRL BANDIT GETS 5 YEARS IN PRISON

Judge Blames Her for Downfall of Companion.

Wahoo, Neb.—Leona Paulson, twenty-one-year-old girl bandit of Omaha, and Dan Prochazka, nineteen, also of Omaha, when arraigned before District Judge Hastings recently were found guilty of burglary. They were sentenced to terms in the state penitentiary and state reformatory, respectively.

Miss Paulson was sentenced to serve five years in the state penitentiary and Prochazka was sentenced to an indeterminate term of from five to ten years in the state reformatory. They were convicted on charges growing out of the robbery of the John Kilian general store at Cedar Bluffs.

In sentencing the girl Judge Hastings placed the blame for the downfall of Prochazka on her, telling her that her influence on the youth, whose instructors and Sunday school teachers appeared as character witnesses, had been largely responsible for his criminal career.

Neither Miss Paulson nor Prochazka were visibly affected by the sentence and both laughed and joked with Omaha friends and relatives who had crowded into the courtroom.

Miss Paulson was implicated only in the Cedar Bluffs robbery, in which Marshal Elmer Tracey was bound and gagged at the point of a revolver prior to the burglary. Prochazka admitted robberies at Colon and Wahoo, Neb., in November and in Logan and Dennison, Iowa.

Chained Fox Saves Family From Death

Richmond, Va.—It was an eventful day one month ago when Ed McCulloch ensnared a predatory fox in a steel trap, for the very same Sir Reynard probably saved the lives of three persons at the McCulloch home, at Spring Grove, near Bluefield, W. Va., the other day.

Pounding of the fox's body against the basement door and the rattle of his chains awakened Mrs. McCulloch, her son, George, and daughter, Miss Nannie McCulloch, in time to find the cellar in flames. George McCulloch, who is manager of the Bluefield Airport, made his escape through the smoke-filled house.

Two other members of the McCulloch household, both elderly women, were rescued from the veranda by firemen.

The fox was suffocated. His body was resented to the firemen who responded to the alarm and the skin is to be mounted and displayed at the fire station.

Mrs. McCulloch, the first to open the basement door, was met by a wall of smoke and flames.

George McCulloch stated that the rooms in which the members of the family were asleep were entirely free of smoke and that, had it not been for the animal's warning sounds, they might not have been awakened until too late.

Girl Who Slew Suitor Freed in Short Trial

Cumberland, Md.—Eula Robertson, sixteen-year-old former junior high school girl, was acquitted of a charge of manslaughter by a jury in the Circuit court recently after a half hour of deliberation. She was charged with slaying Thomas Sullivan, forty-five, a rejected suitor, in the back yard at the home of her mother, Mrs. Stella Miller, Pine avenue, early on the night of September 18.

The girl, who is a blond of modest appearance, told the jury that she had repeatedly been harassed, insulted, threatened with harm, called vile names, followed and annoyed by Sullivan, who boarded at the home of Mrs. Mildred Shipley, next door. On the evening of the tragedy, she said, after Sullivan, who had made threats during the day, while in the back yard, he sprang at her, and she shot when he was about eight feet from her.

Tunnel Linking Spain to Africa Starts Soon

Gibraltar.—The preliminary work of taking the soundings for sinking the shafts for the proposed tunnel under the Straits of Gibraltar will begin shortly at Alcazar, Spanish Morocco, opposite Tarifa on the European side. Actual work on the tunnel will begin this year. Colonel Jevons, author of the scheme, inspected and approved the plans.

Needless Pain!

The man who wouldn't drive his motorcar half a mile when it's out of order, will often drive his brain all day with a head that's throbbing.

Such punishment isn't very good for one's nerves! It's unwise, and it's unnecessary. A tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin will relieve a headache every time. So, remember this accepted antidote for pain, and spare yourself a lot of needless suffering. Read the proven directions and you'll discover many valuable uses for these tablets. For headaches; to check colds. To ease a sore throat and reduce the infection. For relieving neuralgia, neuritic, rheumatic pain.

answered that question years ago. It is not. Some folks still wonder if it really does relieve pain. That's settled! For millions of men and women have found it does. To cure the cause of any pain you must consult your doctor; but you may always turn to Bayer Aspirin for immediate relief.

People used to wonder if Bayer Aspirin was harmful. The doctors

No Quality of Mercy for the Counterfeiter

"His death to counterfeit." This pointed warning is carried on an ancient four-dollar bill printed by the state of Maryland before the Revolutionary war, and has just come into possession of John V. Shea of the Treasury department, says the Washington Star.

The interesting old paper money is yellowed with age, but its inscriptions, which are still readable, show it was made according to an act of the assembly of Maryland dated in Annapolis on the "1st day of March, Anno Domini 1770."

On its face it bears these words: "Four dollars—Maryland. This indent bill of four dollars shall entitle the bearer hereof to receive bills of exchange payable in London in gold and silver at the rate of four shillings and sixpence." The warning of death to counterfeiters is printed in bold type across the bill.

Mr. Shea received the old bill in a collection of old money, fractional currency, including a hero medal of Andrew Jackson, some old gold dollars, post office notes, half dimes, three-cent pieces and old pennies from the estate of his brother-in-law, George B. Wilde, who recently died at Cornwell, Pa.

When BABIES are upset

Baby ill and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your own one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

Dame Fashion Smiles

By Grace Jewett Austin

There has been much talk for months about "costume jewelry," and the term brings a clear vision to mind of bright gilded arrow-like chains, and large crystals or stones in various colors that harmonize with costumes or enhance the values of colors worn. Now there seems to be another jewel name on the horizon, which may make us all feel a bit more aristocratic. These are the so-called "crown jewels." The type of these is just as easily recognized as the costume jewelry; the chains or bracelets are of colored stones set around about with diamonds or pearls—or perhaps for the most of us, by rhinestones. Real jewels of this kind are offered, with prices in five to six figures, while even the imitations are not precisely cheap, and may be of much beauty.

Has it made you sad to lay aside fur scarfs, at the time when they were superfluous from the presence of your fur coat, or your much-furred cloth heavy coat? And yet perhaps you have an evening wrap of black velvet or some deeply rich color. Dame Fashion saw an example of this the other day when a friend had taken a fur scarf, inherited from her mother, and had applied it as a collar on an evening wrap, with beautiful effect.

Probably "fashion" is the most subtle word in the English language. No one can define it exactly, and illustrations of it vary with every step you take and every person you ask. Fashions in fishing tackle, furniture and fruit are just as real as fashions in frocks, frills and flounces. Fashions of a really long gone day, now counted as antiques, are very much in fashion. A pretty little shop that specializes in antiques has an atmosphere appreciated by the most up-to-date. So the paradox comes about that the one hundred-year-old article, or its design, may be more in the mode than a five-year-old creation. This is why the date "1830" reverberates so much in this far different year of 1930.

After a practically brimless winter in millinery styles, good old Mr. Brim is returning to fashion. Before the days when straw makes its entire entrance, for hat-wear, it comes creeping in by way of bands and trimmings, or of straw brims on felt hats. There are indications that the summer will be more of a straw season than it has been in several recent years.

Dame Fashion gets a really happy thrill in seeing the phrase "carnation plink" repeated more and more often, as a season color. Gowns for evening—or morning in the kitchen, for that matter—win high praise when they are in carnation plink, and a pink chiffon frock has always the possibility of revealing some girl as a dream of beauty. The faded-out pastel shades promise to be entirely eclipsed this year by what are called "vivid pastels."

Once upon a time there was a representative in congress who was never seen upon the floor of the house without a carnation in his buttonhole. That was perhaps 25 years ago. It may be men are more self-conscious now and could not stand such fragrant publicity. There was a wife in that family who supplied that daily carnation. Perhaps the wives of 1930 have too many and varied interests to obtain 365 carnations in a year for their husbands. But the fact remains, that in gown-color or sentiment, there are great possibilities in the carnation.

Advance Spring Fashion; No Long Skirt Is Shown

This early spring outfit, offered by American designers who disregard the long skirt mode, is of printed crepe, with side bandings.

Printemps, an Offering in Spring Print Frock

Long before the fur coat goes into its tar bag, the printed frock arrives, bringing along its cheery spring note at just the moment when our winter clothes seem decidedly drab, says the Woman's Home Companion. Printemps is such a dress. It makes its bow to spring not only in silhouette and silk, but also in its three vestees, providing for that freshening touch a frock so often needs. It endorses the new length, the normal waistline and the low-placed flare, but with such moderation that though the frock is distinctly smart it is in no way extreme. Printemps made in a dainty printed silk showing greenish yellow berries on a brown and beige background would be youthfully sophisticated. Two of the vestees could be made of sheer handkerchief linen in the greenish yellow of the berries. For the third vestee with revers eggshell silk pique could be used.

Originality Marks the Late Type of Jewelry

It is the little things that make such a big difference whereby the smart woman shows her exclusiveness. Originality, says a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star, is synonymous with personality, and every one strives to be different from other people, even in the tiniest detail of the toilette. Mark the woman who went to a smart party recently wearing her pearl necklace attached to the V opening of her gown by a series of invisible clips.

A well-known dowager was seen wearing a handsome diamond necklace attached to the frock at the back of the neck—the frock being cut high at the back—and down the left side of the V opening. The right side of the necklace was left to dangle freely.

A sparkling debutante refused to carry a vanity bag. A floral spray at the waist masked a tiny pocket, every bit large enough for small change and the wisp of silk that serves some women for a handkerchief. Lipstick and powder puff were both hidden away in a large jeweled, hinged shoulder brooch. To match her jeweled wrist watch, this lady wore, on her right wrist, a tiny mirror, surrounded by diamonds.

The clip brooch, launched in Paris only a few short months ago, has become an established fashion. It is seen everywhere that well-dressed women go, and in the smartest jewel shops. It is so definitely a part of Paris fashions that women are beginning to have their watches put on clip brooches, to wear them with certain frocks that will not show off a watch-bracelet to advantage.

The clip-watch is preferred by many smart Parisiennes, jewelers say—mainly because it can be worn in a number of ways. Like any clip brooch, it may be fastened to a plait on the shoulder, to the edge of a neckline, or on the collar of a suit. It may be tucked into a belt, to serve as a buckle. Or, following in the wake of its bracelet predecessor, it may be clipped to one's cuff. Some women fasten a watch-clip to the outside of a purse or to the edge of a muff.

These new watch-clips are especially handsome, and include a number of fine stones—diamonds, rubies, emeralds, sapphires and topaz—all carved and arranged to simulate a bouquet of leaves and flowers.

Veils and Just-Right Hat in Winter Fashion

Veils, which we thought had been consigned to the limbo of forgotten styles these many years, are again hovering on the edge of fashion, reports Olga Clark, Paris correspondent of the Household Magazine.

Going up in front and down in back, hats are so severe, she says, they need the half mode face veil that has been teasing Paris for some months now, and will be worn more than ever this winter. Push them back well, so that the long back portions will fit close to the neck when you wear them. Otherwise you are sure to look like a fireman. And if you have a long neck the better these new hats may be worn. They're sculpture hats, and you must get the just-right one for you.

TASTY THINGS TO EAT

A nice hot sandwich which may be served as a luncheon or supper dish is prepared thus: Take any cold meat chopped, well seasoned and mixed with enough thick white sauce to moisten. Butter thin slices of bread cut into finger sizes or into triangles, spread with the hot meat mixture and place in a hot frying pan with a bit of butter. Fry brown on both sides, serve with sliced Bermuda onions or the green ones. If onions are not enjoyed, pickles and olives will be a good accompaniment.

Did you ever hear of this? New Orleans Sundaes.—Make a sauce by mixing one-half cupful of New Orleans molasses with one and one-half cupful of orange juice, a teaspoonful of grated rind and one-fourth teaspoonful of cinnamon; heat hot and pour over vanilla ice cream.

Do you ever get so blasé that popcorn balls have lost their charm?

Molasses Popcorn Balls.—Discard all hard kernels from fresh, tender popped corn. Boil three-fourths of a cupful of molasses with one and one-half cupful of water, one teaspoonful of vinegar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, without stirring until it becomes brittle when dropped into cold water. Remove from the fire, add two teaspoonfuls of vanilla and two table-spoonfuls of butter. Have the corn (about three quarts) in a large pan, and pour the sirup slowly over it, mixing and stirring well. Form into balls quickly before it hardens. Wrap in waxed paper. This recipe makes three dozen balls.

Oyster Cocktail.—Chill the oysters and the glasses in which they are to be served. Blend two table-spoonfuls of tomato catsup, one table-spoonful of tabasco sauce and paprika, a table-spoonful of grated horseradish which has been mixed with vinegar, three table-spoonfuls of the oyster liquor. Turn the sauce over the oysters after seasoning well with salt and pepper.

Fish Curry.—Take two pounds of fish cut into small-sized pieces. Stew with two small onions, a few cloves for ten minutes. Add one table-spoonful of curry powder, one table-spoonful of paste to a pint of the fish broth, mix and put through a sieve. Add a table-spoonful of flour and another table-spoonful of curry if the paste is not obtainable. Add to the fish and stew a half hour. Serve hot.

Shrimp Salad.—There is nothing that takes the place of plump, fresh shrimp as salad dressed with french dressing and served on lettuce. Add a half teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce with plenty of salt.

VISIONS OF SUGAR PLUMS

The plummy cakes, puddings, pies and sweetmeats are not alone enjoyed by the children, but those who are older, grown enjoy an occasional sugar plum.

Apricot Pudding.—Take one-half pound of dried bread crumbs, using a combination of whole wheat, rye, graham or white flour bread. Place one-fourth cupful of butter in a saucepan, stir in the crumbs until all well mixed with the butter. Line a dish with the crumbs, cover with stewed dried apricots with plenty of the sirup used in cooking, cover with more crumbs and steam until well heated through. Chill, unmold and serve with whipped cream dotted with bits of tart jelly.

Date Sweets.—Chop one pound of dates and one-half pound of suet fine, add three cupfuls of bread crumbs, three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, one beaten egg, four table-spoonfuls of flour, one-half cupful of milk, two table-spoonfuls of baking powder and one cupful or less of pecan meats. Steam three hours and serve with any desired sauce.

Delicious Fruit Cake.—Cream one pound of butter and add gradually two cupfuls of sugar, nine well-beaten eggs, one cupful of strong coffee infusion, three pounds of currants, two pounds of raisins, one pound of citron, four cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of mace, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, one-fourth of a nutmeg grated, one-half teaspoonful of soda. Mix as usual, adding some of the flour to the finely cut fruit and steam one to three hours according to the size of the molds, then bake one to two hours.

English Plum Pudding.—Take one pound of finely chopped suet, two pounds of raisins, one pound of currants, one pound of mixed orange and lemon peel, two cupfuls of crumbs, one teaspoonful of mixed spices, two cupfuls of brown sugar and eight eggs. Mix and ball in pudding cloths or bowls five to seven hours, according to the size of the puddings.

Jack Natteford, the scenario writer, has an Irish friend who has the distinction of having slipped a fast one over an none other than General Pershing himself.

Pershing was making a personal inspection of the trenches when he came across Pat, busily engaged at a game of catch-as-catch-can along the seam of his coat sleeve.

"Aha!" laughed Pershing pleasantly. "I see you are picking them out."

"I am not!" retorted Pat, "I'm takin' 'em as they come."

Swiftest, Easiest Way to End Bilious Spell

When you neglect those first symptoms of constipation—bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness, the whole system soon suffers. Appetite lags. Digestion slows up. You become head-achy, dizzy, bilious.

It's easy to correct sluggish bowel action! Take a candy Cascaret tonight. See how quickly—and pleasantly—the bowels are activated. All the souring waste is gently propelled from the system. Regular and complete bowel action is restored.

Cascarets are made from pure cascara, a substance which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. All drug stores have Cascarets. 10c.

Just Leave It to Bobby

Bobbie, the pet dog, was comfortably napping in the living room where a group of Butler students were being entertained.

"Bobbie, come on and catch a rat," called the head of the house from an adjoining room. A surprised young man among the group reluctantly left the room, saying: "I'll do my darndest."

Twelve Years Mayor and Going Strong!

WHEN a man who has been mayor of a big city for twelve years finds out how to live, his words are worth listening to. Ex-Mayor E. N. Kirby of Abilene, Texas, discovered the simple way to health about ten years ago (he is now 64.)

"I am now a new man, and as active as a boy," says Mr. Kirby. "I feel fine all the time and rarely have an ache or a pain, although for twenty-five years I suffered with rheumatism, and sometimes was unable to stand or walk. I would not give up my simple health discovery—no, not for five thousand dollars in gold!" That discovery was Nujol!

That's the wonderful thing about Nujol. Although it is not a medicine and contains absolutely no drugs, its harmless internal lubrication seems to make people feel better and look on the brighter side of life, whether they are old or young.

Of course you can understand why this is so: we all of us have natural poisons in our bodies that make us feel headachy, sick and low in our minds. Nujol, which is as tasteless and colorless as pure water, helps to absorb these and carry them away, easily, regularly as clock work.

Instead of drugging and irritating your body with pills, cathartics, laxatives, and other habit-forming drugs, give your body the internal lubrication which it needs, just as much as any other machine. After a few days you will be surprised at the difference in the way you feel. You can get Nujol in a sealed package in any drug store. Nujol may change your whole outlook on life. Get a bottle today and give yourself a chance to be well!

Hon. E. N. Kirby, for twelve years Mayor of Abilene, Texas, who has discovered secret of success.

"Didn't you see any water?"

Dear Mr. Cook,
I wish to say just a few words about your wonderful feed, that others may try it and thereby "chase the rainbow to its end, where they will surely find their pot of long looked for gold." I have been in the poultry business for some time and have tried lots of other brands of feeds but never had much success until I secured my Pure Bred White Leghorns, Tancred strain and began feeding them all they would consume of the International Ready Mixed Feeds and find it the best all around feed I have ever used and always cheaper, thereby giving me bigger profits,

SOCIETY

The Ladies Aid of the Christian Church met with Mrs Joe Hughes Tuesday afternoon with 8 members present. The meeting was opened by repeating the 23rd Psalm in concert, followed by prayer by Mrs Coyle. The reading of the minutes was followed by a treasurer's report from Mrs A T Crawford. Ways of adding to our treasure were discussed. An oyster dinner was thought of and a cook book was also spoken of, but nothing definite decided upon. A collection of $2.45 was taken at this meeting. The Valentine idea was carried out in the delicious refreshments served by the hostess. After a pleasant social hour we adjourned to meet with Mrs Willie Hughes the 2nd Tuesday in March.
Secretary, Mrs Willie Hughes

The home of Miss Mattie Lowry was the scene of a happy party last Sunday when relatives and friends gathered to celebrate Miss Lowry's 83rd birthday. A lovely three course dinner was served at noon, followed by an afternoon of pleasant events, among which was the presentation to the honoree of many useful and pretty gifts. About forty-five enjoyed this day with Miss Lowry and all wish for her many more such birthdays.

Mrs B M Cowan and Miss Mildred Cowan entertained the Maud Cowan Chapter U. D. C. on Saturday afternoon, the decorations, favors and refreshments bearing out the Valentine motif.

A pretty Valentine party of the week was that held last evening in the home of Mrs E J Morton where she and Miss Lydie Dodridge were hostesses to the Happy Hustlers Class of the Christian Church. The Valentine motif was cleverly used in the decorations of the rooms and in the favors.

Edgar Morton as the noted Heart Specialist, Dr Valentine, held sway during the affairs of the hour, with the assistance of Mrs Jack Jameson, the charming office girl, and Miss Dodridge, the kind and efficient nurse. Besides healing hearts, several appropriate contests and games were enjoyed by the jolly Hustlers. In the late evening fruits and candies brought by the guests were enjoyed along with delicious coffee and sandwiches served by the hostesses.

The Mission Study class of the Methodist Missionary Society met last Monday afternoon for further study of "Roads to the City of God". Three chapters were interestingly discussed by Meses. Wilson, McFerrin and Ballard.

The second Monday of each month is given to mission study and all members of the Society are urged to take part in these vital studies. The better informed all members are, the greater the interest in this great work.

Collierville Senior Endeavor was second at the Memphis Union Monday night. Let's be first next time and stay first during 1930.
