FACTS and FICTION

BEING

a little bit about anything.

"Read not to contradict and confute, nor to find talk and discourse, but to weigh and consider."—Francis Bacon.

Mother Jones, one of the greatest Labor Leaders of our time, celebrates her 100th anniversary by making a speech in the interest of the cause she has championed so long. One of the Rockefellers sent her a message of congratulations.

This message from one of the capitalist to one of the most militant of labor's supporters bespeaks a much better relation between these two opposing groups of our social structure. It will be a good day for America when Labor and Capital find a common ground upon which they can meet.

"In the heart of the city was the Square of the Revolution, and there stood the ghastly guillotine. To this bloody ground the hapless victims, men and women of high and low degree, were brought in crowds day after day, and in the midst of hooting, staring crowds of idlers, their heads were rolled into the basket."

The above quotation is from an account of the French Revolution in 1793, as told in Modern Times and the Living Past by Elson.

Can you imagine men, women and children standing around witnessing such bloody scenes, and jeering those so unfortunate as to fall victims of such circumstances?

Aren't you thankful that we are more highly civilized?

"Hughes" boy was recovered at 11:45 o'clock tonight from the vault.

"The body was dragged through the narrow opening made by an acetylene torch and dynamite blasts.

"When the men who went into the vault shoved the body through the hole and dumped it to the ground, two stories below, women screamed and clapped their hands and a great cheer went up from the mob.

"The body was tied to the rear of an automobile and it was started through the streets toward the jail, dragging the body, as the maddened crowd cheered wildly.

The above quotation is from an Associated Press story of the action of a mob in Sherman, Texas, on May 9th, 1930. The object of their wrath was a negro by the name of Hughes who was alleged to have confessed to assaulting a white woman.

After a group of National Guardsmen and Texas Rangers had stood the mob off for a number of assaults, they at last succeeded in setting fire to the sixty-thousand dollar courthouse in which the negro had been locked in a vault. Aside from the destruction of the courthouse, practically the entire negro settlement of Sherman was destroyed, and the colored inhabitants driven away.

So much for civilization.

John Masenfeld, known as the Hobo poet, has been named Poet Laureate of England by King George. He is 55 years old, and has roamed the world over as a hobo. He once worked his way from New York to the Pacific Coast, doing odd jobs along the way. He also worked as a porter in a New York saloon, many years ago. He is a strict teetotaler, never touching any kind of liquor.

A very interesting spectacle was recently witnessed in the United States Senate when Southern Senators were fighting shoulder to shoulder with the northern negro to prevent the confirmation of President Hoover's nominee to the Supreme Court, Judge Parker.

It is reported that DePriest, the colored Congressman from Illinois, played a very active part in Judge Parker's defeat. It seems that the Judge ran for Governor a few years ago, and failed to fraternize with the colored voters of the Tar Heel State. Politics makes strange bedfellows.

There are 20,078,202 Roman Catholics in the United States. They have 12,413 churches, 26,926 ordained priests, 135 theological seminaries, 7,225 parochial schools, 624 Catholic Hospitals, treating 100,000 persons daily, 329 orphan asylums with 51,626 orphans, and 2,248,571 pupils in their schools. There were 35,232 converts to the Catholic Faith last year.

MOSQUITO CAMPAIGN IS ON IN COLLIERVILLE

Beginning last Monday, the annual campaign against mosquitos had a splendid start. Mr. J. M. Northcross with one of the large county oil trucks and a gang of men, began work oiling all water holes and low places. This work will be done every ten days throughout the summer months as was done last year. This method proved very effective last year, and with your help, it will be so again. If you know of a low place that needs oiling but has not been please let the officials know and such a place will be oiled.

With the co-operation of each citizen, our town can be kept free of mosquitos. Watch out for those tin cans or other receptacles that may be holding water and prove to be a breeding place. And keep the weeds cut. In short, Fight the Mosquito.

Miss Lillian Morris, who is Sophomore at the University of Tennessee, was signally honored last week when she was elected head of the University Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi. Miss Morris, as a delegate from this Chapter, will attend the National Convention to be held in Bristol, Va., during the month of June.

It's election year in Tennessee. Soon we'll be listening to the dreadful things about the perfectly nice gentlemen Gov. Horton, Mr. L. E. Guinn and Cordell Hull.

Babe Ruth and Charles Linbergh may as well take a back seat, Amos and Andy have the floor now.

Chicago will soon have plenty of bull. The great stone bull of Assyria has been shipped to the University of Chicago. It was made centuries before the Christian Era, and guarded the gates of the palace of Sargon II.

Upon its arrival at the University, it was found too large for any of the present buildings, and remains in its crates on Stagg Field.

We wonder what the old fellow will think about Chicago's racketeers when he gets set up for observation.

Collierville Will Hear Prominent Speakers This Commencement Week

MR. FRANK H. LEAVELL

Collierville is fortunate in having two prominent men come to them this year as Commencement speakers. On Sunday, May 18th, Mr. Frank H. Leavell, Secretary of Student Work, Southern Baptist College, will deliver the Commencement Address, using as his subject "The Eagle Life."

Mr. Leavell, who is a son-in-law of Dr. U. A. Boone, Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Memphis, is of the famous Mississippi family of Leavell of which eight boys became prominent as Pastors or Religious Workers. He is a brother of the late L. P. Leavell of the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board of Nashville.

A number of Collierville people, and some of the members of the Senior Class, have heard Mr. Leavell, and look forward to his coming with interest.

On Wednesday evening, at the Graduation Exercises in the School Auditorium, Mr. F. L. Browning, County Superintendent of Gibson County, Tennessee, will make the class address.

Mr. Browning has been Superintendent of Gibson County for sixteen years, and has been prominently mentioned for State Commissioner of Education. He is a brother of Captain Gordon W. Browning, Congressman from the Eighth Tennessee District.

Mr. Browning is a forceful speaker, a student of education, and a lover of young people of high school age. He is very popular as a Commencement speaker throughout West Tennessee.

EXPRESSION AND VOICE RECITAL TO BE GIVEN TUESDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Staub and Mrs. Shields will present their students of Expression and Voice in Recital at the High School Auditorium, next Tuesday evening, May 20th, beginning at 8 o'clock.

The program will be made up of Readings by the pupils of Mrs. Staub, and Chorus and Solo Numbers by the private voice pupils of Mrs. Shields. One of the special features is a musical reading with Ensemble by a group of girls from the sixth grade.

Everyone remembers with pleasure the splendid programs previously presented by Mrs. Shields, specially the Annual Minstrel Show, given on May 1st, when almost the entire population of Collierville thoroughly enjoyed this most entertaining minstrel.

And those who have heard students of Mrs. Staub, and Mrs. Staub, herself, are looking forward to Tuesday evening when more of her excellent training will be enjoyed.

MEMORIAL AND MOTHER'S DAY OBSERVED LAST SUNDAY

On last Sunday, the Collierville Community observed Mother's Day and the annual Decoration Day, the exercises being held at Magnolia Cemetery at three o'clock.

Long before that hour, throngs, including many from a distance, were in the sacred "City of the Dead," placing with loving and reverent hands, many beautiful flowers.

No mound was forgotten.

As has been the custom for many years, the Maud Cowan Chapter, U. D. C., marked with a Confederate flag, the resting place of each honored veteran of the sixties.

The exercises consisted of the report of the Treasurer of the Cemetery Association, Mr. J. T. Patrick; brief talks by the pastors of the town music by a group of singers; a poem, "To Mother," read by Mrs. R. D. Wilson, prayer and the benediction.

Plans were perfected for the further improvement of the cemetery. As the shadows lengthened, the sacred dust was left in God's keeping, the breezes murmuring a soft requiem and the air fragrant with the breath of myriads of blossoms, as incense wafted upward from remembering hearts.

AARON BOGGS, FRESHMAN—A BREEZY COMEDY

If you are interested in two hours and thirty minutes of rollicking fun, be at the school auditorium on Friday Evening, May 23rd, when the Senior Class makes their last bow, as a class, in the presentation of "Aaron Boggs, Freshman."

This clean and lively College Comedy by Walter Ben Hare, full of humor from beginning to end, is sure to please every one. Every member of the Senior Class—24 in number—will take part in this play, and if Mr. Hare had been writing the play to fit the characters, he could not have done a better job.

WHAT WILL THE SENIORS DO WITH THE MONEY MADE ON THEIR PLAY?

That's a good question. This money has already been spent. Last fall the school needed a radio. All of the better schools were installing them, and of course Collierville be longs to that class.

The Senior Class got busy. A splendid Majestic Radio was installed, and has been enjoyed throughout the year by the entire school. The Damrosch programs, and the American School of the Air alone have been worth the investment.

But what about the money? Tom Parker, President of the Senior class, and Mr. Williamson went down to the bank and borrowed $115 with which to pay for the Radio. This note with interest amounts to about $120. In order to pay this note, and take care of all the expenses of the Senior Play, it will be necessary to fill the house.

Help the Seniors pay off their Radio note.

It's the last night of school. You know you want to be there. Come early and get a good seat. AARON BOGGS, FRESHMAN, the Senior play, at the School Auditorium, Friday evening, May 23rd.

The 1930 Census figures, published Tuesday, gives Collierville a population of 1,066, a gain of 17 over the 1920 census. Fifty seven farms are listed.

EIGHTH GRADE GRADUATION TONIGHT AT MEMPHIS AUDITORIUM

Commencement exercises for the Eighth Grade Pupils of Shelby County will be held in the Auditorium in Memphis this evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The program for the evening consists of the principal address by Commissioner Davis; invocation by Rev. W. B. Brown, Pastor of the Millington Baptist Church; three songs by the Classes; music by the Central High School Orchestra under the direction of Miss Mohohan, music supervisor, Memphis; presentation of pupils to Miss Powers by Mr. Fred S. Elliot, president of the County Teachers Association; delivery of certificates by Miss Sue M. Powers, County Superintendent.

PIANO RECITALS TONIGHT AND MONDAY NIGHT

The Piano pupils of Miss Lena Leith will give their Recitals, tonight, Friday, May 16th, and Monday night, May 19th, at the School Auditorium.

Miss Leith has two well arranged programs, one by the pupils of the lower grades, and another by the more advanced students. The public is cordially invited to attend these music programs, and enjoy the young talent of Collierville.

MRS. H. F. KELSEY ELECTED PRESIDENT OF LOCAL P. T. A.

The regular meeting of the P. T. A. was held last Thursday at the school auditorium, with Mrs. Chas. Dean presiding. Mrs. V. Leake presented the following Mother's Day Program:

Piano Number, Mrs. Farley Talk, "The Greatest Peril," Mr. Williamson

Vocal Selection, Mrs. A. E. Guy

Reading, Dorothy Hinton

Vocal Selection, Miss Katherine Dean

A short business session was held during which the financial report of the year's work was given by the treasurer. Mr. Williamson, as the chairman of the Nominating Committee, was asked to take the chair and preside during the election of officers. A motion was made and carried to accept the recommendation of the Committee for the following officers for the year 1930-1931:

President, Mrs. H. F. Kelsey
Aide to Pres., Mrs. Winston Jones
Secretary, Mrs. S. C. Fleming
1st Vice Pres., Mrs. Karr Hinton
2nd Vice Pres., Mrs. Warren Clay
3rd Vice Pres., Mrs. Frank Piper
4th Vice Pres., Mrs. A. E. Guy
5th Vice Pres., Mrs. H. Williamson
6th Vice Pres., Mrs. A. L. Hurdle

The Treasurer is yet to be named to take the place of Miss Doria Hinton, who resigned. Short talks were made by the out-going and the incoming president.

The Treasurer's report will be published next week.

MAN KILLED RESISTING OFFICER

Deputy Sheriff V. Leake and City Marshall J. A. Lowe were called Sunday night to come out to Crossroads, at the Mt. Moriah colored church, where Jessie Fritz, negro, aged 35, was raising a disturbance. Sheriff Leake had a warrant for the man's arrest, and when the officers approached Fritz, ordering him to surrender, he refused and drew a pistol. The officers were forced to fire in self defence.

GEO. R. JAMES P. T. A. MEETS

The Geo. R. James P. T. A. held the last regular meeting of the year on May 14. After a most interesting Health talk by Dr. Brown, the various standing committees were heard. The following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. H. S. Bragg
Secretary, Mrs. H. R. Hamner
1st Vice Pres., Miss Pauline Anthony
2nd Vice Pres., Mrs. Walker Reid
3rd Vice Pres., Mrs. C. C. Baxter
4th Vice Pres., Mrs. G. C. Anderson
5th Vice Pres., Mrs. G. W. McConathy

A Pilgrimage of Gold Star Mothers

Gold Star Mothers at Tomb of Unknown Soldier

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Memorial day this year will be unique in the history of that day. Here in America it will be observed in the manner familiar to all of us. But over across the Atlantic groups of American women will visit the places where "stand the crosses, row on row" and there pay reverent tribute to America's soldier dead who sleep in foreign soil. But this tribute will not be just a formal gesture by a group. To each one of these women it will be an intimate, personal act of devotion. For these women are America's Gold Star Mothers, and with loving hands they will lay flowers upon the graves of their sons.

So Memorial day this year will be unique because of the pilgrimage of Gold Star Mothers which has been arranged by the United States government. The idea of this pilgrimage dates from March 2, 1929, when congress passed a bill authorizing an appropriation of more than $5,000,000 to cover the expense of taking the mothers and wives of the service men, who met their death in the World war, as the guests of the government for a visit to the place where their soldier dead are buried. The War department was then directed to make the necessary preparations for the visits and invitations were sent out to 11,630 of these women. Of that number 5,640 have accepted and they will be taken at various times this summer. The remaining 5,990 have been listed and may make the trip at convenient times between now and October, 1933.

The trip will be under the direction of the War department with the quartermaster corps in direct charge, and every detail will be handled by army officers. The quartermaster corps has developed the American cemeteries in Europe and is responsible for their administration. The graves of service men buried abroad are in its charge. It is giving infinite care to the choice of the officers who are to be responsible for all the Gold Star Mothers who cross the seas, and its one idea is that the women who go on this journey shall have everything to make them comfortable and happy.

It is an immense project, this taking 5,000 women to a foreign country. Most of the women are between sixty and sixty-five years old, one is eighty-eight, some of them are in ill health and only their desire to see the last resting place of their beloved dead spurs them to cross the sea and to adventure in foreign lands among people who are strangers.

The War department has tried to think of every possible contingency and provide for it. All the experience in planning military expeditions, from food to passage, has been used to work out arrangements to the smallest detail, and leeway is provided for those unexpected contingencies which they know always arise. The difficult feature about this pilgrimage is that it is unique. There has never been anything like it, so the War department has no experience to build its plans on. It must estimate on vision and imagination to cover all possibilities.

They have figured on $840 per person for each of the women who go—and incidentally no woman who has already visited the grave of her son or husband may go on this pilgrimage. Its purpose is to take those women who cannot go otherwise than as guests of the government.

Besides the actual expense of transportation and care of the mothers, which adds up to this $840 apiece, there will be the salaries of an office force in New York and Paris. The mothers will be looked after by army officers from the moment they arrive in New York until they are put on board the train in New York again after they return from Europe.

Every mother who is to go has received an engraved card inviting her, in the name of the United States government, to go on the pilgrimage. So far only those have been asked who have actual graves to visit. Legislation is pending which would permit those to go whose sons or husbands were buried at sea or are among the missing abroad.

The women will go to New York, whence all sailings will be made, arriving the day before sailing. They will go in groups of 300, sailing once a week from May to October. Their fare will be paid from their homes to New York, but they must come to New York without chaperonage from the government. The War department has made the most careful arrangements with the various railroads, however, to see that the women get their tickets and the railroads are doing their bit by promising every aid, even to delivering tickets personally to mothers who live in the country.

Each mother will have a badge of red, white and blue ribbon, with her name on a metal bar, her number on the back—for each woman will have a number on file in the War department—and this badge will entitle her to special care on her way to New York. Every railroad employee,

Cemetery at Romagne, France

Memorial Chapel at Thiacyourt

from conductor to switchman, will be instructed to look after any woman wearing that badge, with the Gold Star and the Great Seal of the United States on it.

The pilgrims will be met in New York by army officers, mostly captains and lieutenants who have been detailed to stay with the groups. The pilgrims will be housed in first-class hotels. Nine dollars and fifty cents a day is allowed per person in New York. They will stay in New York overnight and the Gold Star Mothers organization will entertain each group the day after they arrive and before they embark. They will sail on American ships and go first class. Everything will be paid for them, from stewards to steamer rugs.

Arrived in Cherbourg the mothers will be met by officers who will conduct them to Paris, where they will stay two days. The groups on the ships will be arranged by states and by cemeteries. As they arrive they will be broken up into units of 25, each forming a busload. From then on each unit will be in charge of an officer who will stay with them until they re-embark.

The war mothers of France are preparing a warm welcome for them. General Gourand, commanding the military district of Paris, will put himself at their disposal. There will be visits by groups to the grave of the Unknown Soldier and to the Suresnes cemetery, "the Arlington of France," which is on the edge of Paris, a place of surpassing beauty. Priests, rabbis and Protestant ministers will be available. American nurses will attend them and the doors of the American hospital will swing open to any who need treatment.

Not only will it be an immense project to take these mothers to Europe, but it was an almost equally stupendous task to search out the mothers of the 30,000 American soldiers who are buried in France, Belgium and England—mostly in France. There had been no occasion for locating these mothers until the present legislation was passed. The quartermaster corps started with the name of the next of kin which was given by each man when he went into the army. It wrote 30,000 letters to the addresses given. Out of every 100 sent, forty came back unclaimed. Those who had been set down as next of kin had died, or moved away, or otherwise disappeared during the twelve or thirteen years that had passed since they were last heard from.

But 60 per cent of the next-of-kin letters brought answers. Of mothers of those who had died abroad, less than half were still alive. Of wives of those who had died abroad there were many who had married again and so became ineligible for the trip. The number of widows who will make the trip is small.

The mothers who responded to letters having been located the quartermaster corps went further in its search for the relatives of those whose next of kin did not respond. It operated through the veterans' bureau. Agency of insurance and compensation, that because has been in touch with most of them. Yet there has been found only one mother or widow to about three men buried abroad—11,630 out of 30,792.

The ships, their days of sailing, and the number of war mothers each will carry are as follows: America, May 7, 300; Republic, May 13, 302; Harding, May 14, 150; Washington, May 21,

Veteran Burglars, 11 and 14, Confess

Los Angeles.—By their own admission Etifanio Renteria, eleven, and Ralph Avila, fourteen, are veteran burglars. The pair were arrested by police breaking into a drug store. They calmly confessed burglarizing more than a dozen neighborhood stores and homes, officers declared.

FREAK EATS TWO MEALS AT TIME

Two-Headed Calf Normal in Other Ways.

Seattle.—Two heads with but a single thought—And that's no flight of poetical fancy.

S. Solvadelene, a farmer living a mile south of Snohomish, is the proud owner of a Holstein calf with two heads—each of which is constantly intent upon the bottles of milk with which it has been sustained ever since it first saw the light of day.

The calf is normally formed in every way except for its dual heads and veterinarians who have examined the animal are hopeful it will attain a normal span of life.

When born the calf seemed partly paralyzed, but Solvadelene overcame this condition by holding the calf aloft in much the same manner that live stock are hoisted aboard ships, and exercising its legs by the simple expedient of pulling them.

The calf has only one neck. The two heads are balanced atop it. It has only two ears but four eyes, two noses and two mouths—being capable of taking nourishment through either or both of the latter at will. The jawbones are connected but otherwise the construction of each mouth is independent of the other.

Offers to Let Widow

Ransom Mate from Fire

Vienna.—The devil, attired in black, has appeared at the village of Elbogen, near Prague, Czechoslovakia, where a widow has been endeavoring to get into communication with her dead husband.

She was horrified to hear at a spiritualist's seance that her husband was far from comfortable. In fact, according to the medium, he was being kept busy night and day fighting unquenchable flames.

That night there was a knock at the door and a man, draped from head to foot in black, whispered confidently that he was the devil himself and would make things a little easier for the husband on the payment of a thousand Czech crowns.

Next day the widow went to the bank and cashed a check for the ransom, confiding to the cashier her joy at being able to help her husband escape from the torments of the nether regions.

The cashier informed the police and a trap was laid for "Satan," who was arrested when he came for the check. He confessed that he and the spiritualist had schemed to defraud the widow.

Grocer Is Slain as He

Prays for Customer

St. Louis.—St. Louis' praying grocer was shot to death here by a customer for whom he was praying.

For many years Henry Muehlenbeck has offered up a prayer for virtually every customer who entered his store.

Faithful to the custom, Muehlenbeck dropped to his knees behind the candy counter last night to invoke divine guidance for a man who had just bought a 5-cent candy bar.

"Our Father"—the grocer began. His prayer was cut short by a command to "stick 'em up."

Unable to believe the man he had prayed for would hold him up, Muehlenbeck started to run.

The man at the counter fired one shot and the praying grocer fell dead.

Burglar Prepares Meal and Plays Piano, Too

Norwalk, Ohio.—There is a musical burglar who is also an expert cook abroad in this vicinity. Said burglar is also a neat housekeeper, it appears.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Link, latest victims of the prowler, returned home to find that some one had cooked a tasty meal in the kitchen, had washed the dishes and hung the dish towels up to dry.

After the feast the burglar sat down at the piano and played, if dust marks on the piano keys proved anything.

Only a radio and a quantity of canned goods were taken.

Horse Gets Ride When

Auto Crashes into Herd

Pocatello, Idaho.—When O. R. Brangan's car crashed into a herd of horses, one of the animals was catapulted into the air, landed on top of the car, and rode it into a ditch. Brangan suffered a fractured leg and internal injuries. The horse was not hurt.

Trapped by Love Note

Toronto, Canada.—A love letter he wrote to a girl trapped Basil O'Donnell after he escaped from jail in Toronto, Canada. Police intercepted the letter, and the postmark led them to a near-by town, where O'Donnell was hiding from the authorities.

DRY WEATHER

David wandered across Afghanistan, after Wind had given him a little lift. He found the air so dry in these mountains. He saw many shepherds tending their flocks, but kept on wandering north and west until he came to the Caspian sea and saw places where it seemed as though they cared for nothing in the world except oil. "There's no accounting for tastes, as some one has said," David remarked to himself.

Up north of Caspian and the Sea of Aral he passed the Map Kirghis shepherds who told him how they had to change their homes twice a year to follow the feeding places where they would find green grass for their flocks. He came down into Persia then where he had lunch and passed villages of dark narrow streets and saw rugs being woven and so many unusual sights he hoped he would remember them all!

He knew he would never forget the bread and cheese and milk and stew that he had for lunch, and he liked it rather because they told him he could eat with his fingers—they weren't fussy.

But now he turned off into Mesopotamia and before he knew it he was talking to another river. Well, he liked to talk to rivers. They traveled and knew so much that was going on. Their moving certainly kept them well informed. They always could tell him of so many places.

It was Tigris who talked to him. He met Tigris at Bagdad which he knew was the famous city of the Arabian Nights. He wandered about on the river, riding on a raft made of inflated goatskins, and he saw the orange groves all around Bagdad and the palm trees. He saw men wearing turbans and long gowns, riding mules and letting their long dresses drag along the ground. And he saw donkeys and camels.

"The very name Mesopotamia," Tigris told him, as he wandered along with Tigris, "means 'between the rivers.' Sometimes now the country is called Iraq. It's right between Syria and Persia. Along my river are the ruins of Nineveh, that old, old city that used to be so rich and famous, and the ruins of Babylon are not far south of Bagdad.

"But I want to tell you about my river companion."

"I'd like to hear about him," David said. "I'm a sort of river too in a way—I like to wander!"

Tigris grinned, a funny, rippling river grin.

"Geo has told us about you! Well, you see, there is myself and there is the Euphrates. Euphrates is an old, old river, famous as can be. He is big and wide and clear and beautiful up near Mt. Ararat—you know of Mt. Ararat?"

David had looked as though he recognized the name.

"Of course you do!" Tigris went on, without making David speak first, "for it has been famous ever since those days of the flood."

David nodded. How much one did know when only some one remembered for you.

"When Euphrates gets down here where it is hot and dry he shrivels up and doesn't stay so green and rushing and deep and beautiful. Along our rivers wandering tribes of Arabs with their flocks and their herds move from one oasis to another for grass and water. Along Nile in Egypt and around us were to be found the only civilized nations in the old Bronze age."

"I know Nile well," David said.

"Nile's nice," said Tigris, and David thought it was quite fine to see that there was no river jealousy.

"You see Euphrates and I have so much to say to each other. We have seen so much in our days."

"We got so we couldn't always hear each other so well. There was the distance between us for one thing and we did want to say such a lot."

"So we kept saying to each other, 'I can't hear you. Will you speak a little louder?' and we continued saying that so often that we found ourselves getting closer and closer together."

"We felt as though we had so much to talk about, old, olden days and what not, that we must be together some of the time."

"So we unite and we flow together into the Persian gulf. Then it is that we compare notes."

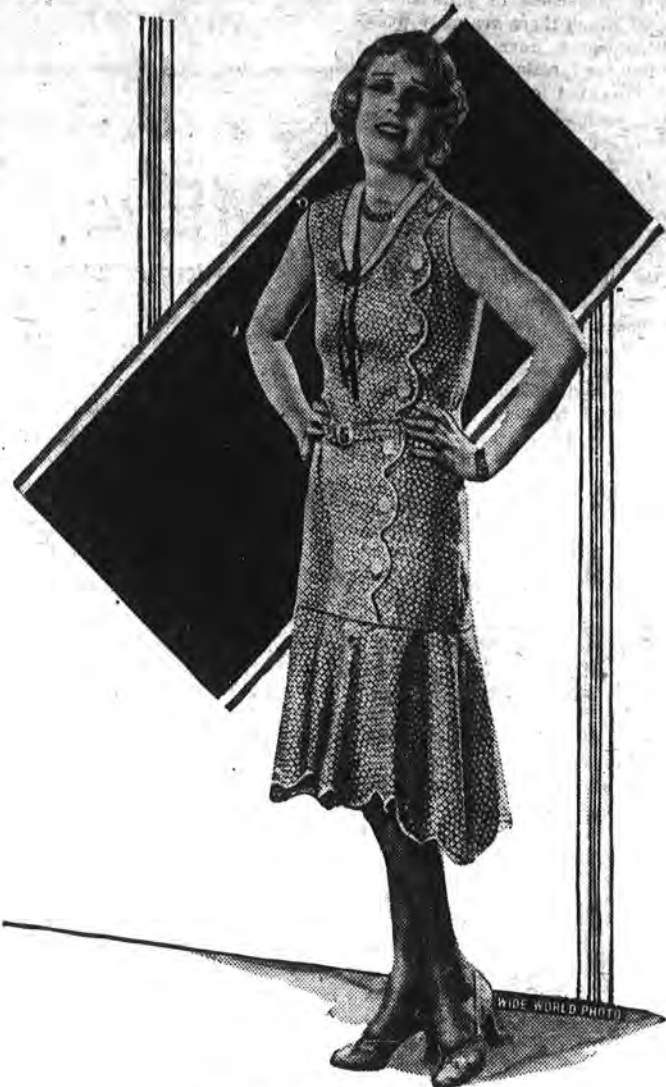

TRIMMING BECOMES IMPORTANT;
PASTEL COLORS MUCH IN VOGUE

WHAT a lure fabric displays are proving to the home sewing woman this season! Never were materials so fascinating, so infinite in weave and color, and that which is the strongest argument in their favor—so amazingly inexpensive.

Then, too, the styles have changed so utterly, which also incites a new interest. The fact that the slenderizing princess lines are so adaptable to the fashioning of simple daytime frocks should prove highly inspiring

Not only fluffy ruffle creations like the model in lower picture flaunt pastel colorings, but the vogue for simple tailored frocks in "baby blue" or haze pink, or pale yellow is outstanding in the sports realm.

The very feminine and much belauded dress in the picture with its cunning bolero and its flowing sleeves, is typical of the latest afternoon dress movement. As to color, the flat crepe of which this frock is made is mint green, although it may just as well to the home dressmaker who is casting about for "how to make" suggestions. One can readily see from the frock in the picture how very charming is the princess silhouette even when handled in the simplest manner. There is nothing complicated or beyond the ability of the average home dressmaker in the making of this model.

Choose wash silk, or rayon weave, dotted swiss, or what you will, this dress will prove winsome developed in almost any fabric. An endless amount of piping is being done on the new frocks, no doubt because it provides such charming color contrast. Likewise achieves a perfect finish along all edges. The piped scallops on this frock are accented by handsome pearl buttons, for buttons are conspicuous on the trimming list this season. A red and white dotted swiss made up after this fashion would be wondrously attractive.

Washable silk pique also makes up beautifully and at the same time it is be reproduced in any other of the new pastels—perhaps pale gray, for gray is coming "in."

Boleros? Millions of them enter into the scheme of dress design this season. They vary greatly for stylists are playing them in every key. Many of the new cloth or silk suits flaunt a bolero instead of a regulation short jacket. Worn over a lace blouse, as is seen in the picture, is to assure a delightfully feminine combination.

Yes, the lace blouse here shown is a tuck-in. The majority of the new blouses are just that. As to the materials of which they are made, they run the gamut from dotted swiss to gay print silk, including shantung in any and every color, organdie, striped silk shirting, polka dot effects, finest of handkerchief linen in pastel colorings—and still the half has not yet been told.

Therefore it becomes evident that women of fashion are expected to own "oodles" of blouses both fancy and ever so practical. Oh yes, and there's dainty all-wool challis, than which there is no more fashionable weave for the simple frock. Printed flat crepes score in the rayon field. Why not copy this frock in gay print? and should you so do, be sure to add a detachable little cape of self-fabric.

Pastel Colors in Vogue. One really cannot go through the season and be fashionable minus a frock in some one or other of the new and lovely monotone pastels.

tailored this season. There is no such thing as having too many. In fact, the blouse has such a transforming effect on the costume, that women are relying on it to tune the ensemble to the occasion.

Many a blouse is made with short puff sleeves. Also the blouse with a wide puffed or cape collar which can be worn over the coat is very popular.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

The following cocktail of vegetables is one which is quite popular—it may be varied to suit the taste:

Vegetable Cocktail.—Drain one quart of tomatoes and chop fine with the following: One green pepper, one stalk of celery, one slice of spanish onion, one tablespoonful of grated horseradish, a few grains of red and black pepper. Pour on the tomato juice and the seasoning and chill. Serve in cocktail glasses.

Chicken Terrapin.—Combine the yolks of three hard-cooked eggs with five tablespoonfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of mustard, one-half teaspoonful of white pepper, three tablespoonfuls of melted butter; add to two cupfuls of scalded milk and cook until thick. Now add one-half teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of green pepper cut into strips, three hard-cooked egg whites, chopped, one and one-half cupful of chicken cut into cubes, two tablespoonfuls of pimento cut into strips, two tablespoonfuls of ripe olives cut into strips and the juice of a lemon. Mix well and keep hot over hot water. Serve in patty or pastry shells.

Cheese Filled Biscuits.—Take two cupfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, five tablespoonfuls of shortening, three-fourths of a cupful of milk. Sift the dry ingredients, add the milk after working in the shortening. Turn onto a floured board, roll and cut into rounds. Brush one-half of the biscuit with butter and fold over. Brush with butter and bake fifteen minutes. Remove from the pan, break open and fill with the following:

Mix one-fourth of a cupful of butter with one-half cupful of cream cheese, a few drops of lemon juice, one-half chopped green pepper, a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Beat well and fill the biscuit.

Date Pie.—To one and one-half tablespoonfuls of tapioca, add two cupfuls of sliced dates, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water. When boiling remove from the fire, add two and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter, one-third of a cupful of brown sugar and the juice of a lemon with the grated rind. Fill a pastry lined plate, cover over with strips to form lattice work, and bake.

APPEALING DISHES

As we have an abundance of fruits in our menus, the salad or dessert course seems to be the best place for their entry.

Blushing Apple Tapioca Pudding.—Take one-half cupful of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of water, two tablespoonfuls of red, cinnamon drops, one lemon thinly sliced, two tablespoonfuls of quick cooking tapioca, four large apples cored and pared. Combine the sugar, lemon and cinnamon drops and cook until the candy is dissolved. Add the apples and cook, turning often until they are tender. Remove the apples and measure the sirup, adding enough water to make a cupful. Add the tapioca and cook in a double boiler for fifteen minutes, stirring and cooking until the tapioca is clear. Remove from the fire and add one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Fill the apples to overflowing with the tapioca. Chill and serve with sweetened whipped cream.

Burned Sugar Cake.—Brown one-half cupful of sugar until it smokes, add one-half cupful of water, boil to make a sirup. Take three-fourths cupful of shortening, one and one-half cupful of sugar, one cupful of cold water, salt, one teaspoonful of soda, two well beaten eggs, vanilla and three cupfuls of flour. Cream the shortening, add the sugar, sift the soda with the flour and combine as usual.

Frosting.—Take two-thirds of a cupful of cream, one-fourth pound of butter, two cupfuls of sugar. Brown two tablespoonfuls of the sugar and add to the cream, butter and remaining sugar. Boil to the soft ball stage, cool and beat until thick.

Lemon Gelatin Salad.—Take five new carrots, grate, add one full cupful of finely diced tender celery, a dash of lemon juice. Take a package of lemon gelatin, add the juice from the can of pineapple with enough boiling water to make a pint of liquid. Stir until slightly cool, then add the other ingredients. Mold and serve unmolded on lettuce with a nicely seasoned salad dressing.

Tapioca Cream.—Take one-third of a cupful of tapioca, add one-half cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt, flavoring, one quart of milk, one egg yolk beaten and the egg white folded in after the mixture has been cooked.

Weekly Sermonette

By Our Local Pastors

JESUS, THE IDEAL TEACHER

John 7:46—Jesus spake as never man spake. He taught as one having authority. "Without a parable spake He not unto them."

Jesus taught more than thirty of these beautiful and pointed parables. Why? "The common people heard Him gladly."

The lawyer asked, "What must I do?" He replied, "How readest the law?" THIS do.

Another asked, "Who is my neighbor?" Then He gave the never-to-be forgotten parable of the Good Samaritan. The kind of stories that Jesus told—"The sower, the sheep, and goats; the landlord and the cheating rent agent; a woman with a piece of money and a broom; the ninety and nine; the gospel net; the prodigal son."

These stories were given for you and for me.

Jesus had faith in His pupils. No teacher can succeed without confidence in his hearers.

No teacher can succeed without faith in his teaching.

No teacher can succeed without a thorough knowledge of what he teaches.

Jesus had all these.

He knew man—what he needed. And all power was given unto Him in Heaven and in earth.

—Rev. B. M. Cowan.

TO MOTHER

Mother, who rocked me on her knee,
Mother, who guided my first foot steps,

Mother, who loved me, watched and forgave me—

I love you, Mother.

I have neither silver nor gold.

For what you gave and asked no return;

All that I had, I gave when I told—

I love you, Mother.

Mother, who won thru sorrow and strife,

Mother, who denied herself for me,

Mother, who sacrificed all of her life—

I love you, Mother.

Some day, Mother I'll give you the best

Of all that life has to offer,

Both your tired hands shall be idle and rest,

Because I love you, Mother.

Whatever the future may hold for me

Of honor, success and fame,

I'll come to you and sit on your knee,

And say, I love you, Mother.

All that I am I owe to you,

And all that I hope to be.

It's a story like nature, as old and as true—

Because you loved me, Mother.

The world is full of mothers,

All dear and tried and true,

But never in all the whole world of them

Was there ever a mother like you!

For all the harsh things I've said or done,

I'm sorry, Mother.

Forever and ever, in shadow and sun,

I'll need you, Mother.

In joy or grief, thru all the way,

I'll help you, Mother—

It's a promise, though, this is all I can say:

I love you, Mother.

(This poem, which was read at the Service at the Cemetery, Sunday, was written by Kathryn Wilson Walker, the daughter of Mrs. Katie Walker, of Baltimore, Md. Kathryn has many friends here, made when she was attending school in Collierville about ten years ago.)

THE SAME OLD THINGS

The world grows better year by year
Because a nurse in her little sphere
Puts on an apron, smiles and sings
And keeps on doing the same old things.

Taking temperatures, giving pills,
To remedy mankind's numberless ills,
Feeding the baby, answering bells,

Being polite when the heart rebels.
Longing for home while Wearing the same old professional smile.
Blessing the new-born baby's first breath;
Closing the eyes that are still in death;

Taking the blame for others' mistakes;
O dear! What a lot of patience it takes.

Coming off duty, at seven o'clock,
Tired and discouraged, just ready to drop;

But called back on special at seven-fifteen,

With woe in her heart, but it must not be seen—

Morning and evening, noon and night
Just doing things over, and hoping they're right.

When we lay down our caps and
cross the bar,

Dear Lord, will You give us just one little star

To wear in our crown with the uniform new,

In that City Above, where the head nurse is You?

ate nurse, Inez Billingsley, of the Baptist Hospital.)

PROFIT TO FARMER IN COW TEST WORK

Many Benefits to Owner of Dairy Herd From Membership in Association.

The easiest way known for a farm family to make from 25 per cent to 50 per cent more profit on the average dairy herd, according to the De Laval Bureau of Dairying, is to join a cow testing association. These prosperity-building organizations of local dairy farmers, of which there are more than 1,000 in 40 states, have the backing, co-operation and endorsement of the owners of 414,891 cows, every state college of agriculture and the U. S.
Department of Agriculture. In these organizations every member is visited every month by the cow tester, who tabulates the month's milk yield, tests the milk and figures out the monthly butterfat production of each cow, works out balanced rations for the herd, tests the skim milk from the cream separator to see that the machine is not losing butterfat, etc.

Every dollar invested by the dairy farmer in cow test association work usually returns from 15 to 25 times more profit than money invested in the soundest bonds on the market, states the De Laval Bureau. Directly and indirectly the benefits derived from joining a cow testing organization, the practical help and assistance and inspiration they provide makes the small yearly cost of being a member seem a mere trifle. A typical story pointing out one of the benefits of belonging to such an association is found in an item in the monthly report to the Iowa Agricultural college made by Harold Strom, tester for the Montgomery-Mills (Iowa) association.

The cream separator of one of his members broke down one day, so he took the milk over to a neighbor's to have the cream separated. To his surprise he found that the machine left
.24 of 1 per cent fat in the skim milk.
The owner of this separator had produced close to 9,000 pounds of skim-milk during the month; therefore, he must have lost in the neighborhood of 20 pounds of butterfat worth nearly $10. How much better off that neighbor would have been had he spent the $10 which he lost in a single month from an inefficient separator, for joining a cow testing association which would check the efficiency of his separator every month!

There are an untold number of poorly constructed and badly worn separators on farms today that are "short-changing" their owners every time they are used. An effective method resorted to by some farmers to check the efficiency of their separators is to have five gallons from their separator reskimmed in a new separator of known standard quality. Like the neighbor in the above story, quite a lot of them are finding that they have been feeding their stock on skim milk that is entirely too rich for their pocketbooks. Responsible concerns are glad to provide the facilities whereby the farmer may make a test of his separator and to furnish information on how a cow testing association can be organized in a community.

Try This Test on Your Separator

Setting aside a glass of skim milk to await the rising of any cream in it to the top is the least efficient and least accurate way that can be used to determine the amount of butterfat lost in skim milk, says the De Laval Bureau of Dairying. When cows are in certain periods of lactation or eating dry feeds in the winter months, cream may be present in the skim milk and yet not show at the top of the glass.
Depending on this kind of test to deter-

Reskimming skim milk to test the mine the efficiency of his cream separator, a farmer may be losing from 5 one-hundredths to 15 one-hundredths of one per cent butterfat and never know that the poor separator is causing him to lose from $12 to $38

worth of butterfat a year.

The most practical, positive way to test skimming efficiency—the best way to catch the cream thief—is to take five gallons of skim milk from a separator and reskim it in a good separator. This method produces the evidence and shows the farmer how much butterfat he is feeding to his hogs and chickens. If the owner of the cream-stealing separator will take the cream recovered by the good separator and have it tested by the Babcock test, he will likely find his year-losses on butterfat, in a herd of six cows, are four or five times more

WHEN chicks are grown in large broods, as with a colony brooder, the danger of loss has not passed when the youngsters have reached the age of three to four weeks. As a matter of fact, it is at this time that the dreaded crowding and piling up is likely to develop with consequent death to many chicks and injury to others.

It works about this way. So long as the youngsters are small in size and require the heat of the hover, they will usually settle down close to the machine and remain there quietly until morning. But as they get larger and stronger and begin to develop their plumage, there is a tendency for them to settle on the floor at some distance from the machine. If the night turns cool or the brooder fire drops somewhat, the chicks will begin to crowd together for warmth and finally pile up. Then the burial detail gets busy.

Darkness is one of the controlling factors here. If the chicks get uncomfortable or restless they cannot see where to go, so they naturally crowd together. A dim light, as a low power electric bulb or even a good lantern, left burning in the brooder pen all night will overcome this to a great degree. On every hand I note a growing tendency to light the brooding quarters in this way. The light has an additional advantage in that it permits hungry and thirsty chicks to find food and water during the night. And that means more rapid growth.

ANOTHER method of preventing night crowding is to provide roosts early. When the most forward individuals in a given brood begin to settle for the night at points somewhat distant from the brooder or even go to roost on the edge of a feed hopper or other slightly elevated place, they give the signal that it is time to supply roosts.

These chick roosts, of course, differ greatly in construction from the ones supplied adult stock. Remember, too, that these brooder chicks have no older birds to guide them; they must learn from experience. The first roosts, therefore, should be so constructed as to make the lessons easy.

THE most satisfactory chick roosts are frames on which narrow strips, suited to the gripping of little feet, are attached. These frames, beneath the roosts, should be covered with inch-mesh wire netting. This serves the double purpose of preventing the chicks from crowding underneath and also from coming in contact with the droppings which may accumulate there.

Such roost frames should be set in a slanting position against the walls, the front edge resting on the floor and the rear elevated a foot or more according to the width of the frame. If the forward edge is close to the brooder where there is considerable heat, so much the better. The chicks will take to it more readily.

It goes without saying that all openings which will permit chicks to get underneath the roosts should be closed, either with wire or boards.

Some few venturesome chicks will soon adopt these new sleeping quarters and will attract others in turn. Many, however, will continue to settle on the floor in little groups, often in corners or against the wall.

These, of course, are in danger as previously described, especially if the house is in darkness. If the youngsters huddle on the wire beneath the roosts there is but little danger since the circulation of air underneath prevents smothering.

LARGE, open feed hoppers are another danger spot during this period. Chicks at this stage of growth seem to like to get into sheltered places. If they begin to crowd danger is sure to follow. The unfortunates in the lower level are almost sure to be smothered. They cannot escape—they cannot get the air. So such hoppers or similar appliances should be removed or tightly covered each night until the whole crowd is roosting.

Since this critical period is relatively brief, the attendant should regularly visit the brooder houses as the chicks are first settling down for the night and put the youngsters safely to bed. If little groups are found scattered about the floor they should be carefully driven to the roosting frame and they will gradually work their way up the wire and settle down to roost. Once so located they are usually safe until morning. After two or three nights of such treatment, they will usually take to the roosts at bedtime. And when the majority does this the danger is over.

EVEN after the greater part of the brood is roosting and the brooder fire permitted to go out, it is advisable to leave the brooder in the house for a short period. Spells of cold, wet weather may make it desirable to have some heat in the house. Then it is only necessary to light the fire again and the brood will be comfortable.

Do not overlook the matter of ventilation. Chicks need plenty of fresh air. Provide it, but do not expose the youngsters to drafts. And keep the house clean.

WHEN chicks have reached the age of four weeks they should receive large quantities of succulent, tender green feed. If they have free range or big yards they will usually find enough tender greens at this season of the year. But be sure they get them from some source. It is good practice to cut the material up rather fine so that it may be readily eaten. A "vegetable plate dinner" may be given occasionally. Moistened the fine cut greens with water or milk, then dust the mass with growing mash. This appetizing mixture is greatly relished and the chicks will eat large quantities of it. (Copyright.)

Bible Story of Locusts Retold

Recent Plague of Insects
Repetition of Scourge
Related in Exodus.

Basra, Iraq.—Centuries ago, long before Christ, a swarm of locusts descended upon Egypt, ravished the land, and was later swept into the Red sea. The Biblical historian responsible for the book of Exodus reported the locusts as a plague sent by the Lord to punish Pharaoh for lying to the children of Israel. Pharaoh repented and the locusts were destroyed, writes Ernest Main in the Chicago Tribune.

Now comes a repetition of the plague and the locusts' destruction. For weeks millions of locusts, exceeding in numbers any ever seen by Arabs here, had been making a steady advance against all efforts to stop their progress. Natives of Basra almost had resigned themselves to the ever increasing swarms.

Pests Blown Into Gulf.

Then, suddenly, when almost all hope of stopping the destruction had left, up came a strong wind which blew the ravenous pests into the Persian gulf, where they were drowned.

Scriptural scholars note the parallel between the present day plague and the deliverance and the plague and deliverance of the Israelites centuries ago. They read in Exodus how the Lord visited his wrath on the Egyptians because Pharaoh had broken a promise to free the children of Israel.

"And the locusts went up over all the land of Egypt . . . for they covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened, and they did eat every herb of the land."—Ex.: x, 14-15.

Reading on, the scriptural student learns that Pharaoh repented of his falsehood, besought Moses' forgiveness and Moses interceded with the Lord.

"And the Lord turned a mighty strong west wind, which took away the locusts, and cast them into the Red Sea."—Ex.: x, 19.

Magazines for Protection.

One curious result of the present locust invasion is that American magazines have been sold at high prices to the Arabs, who were unable to read them, but who bought them because the smooth surfaces of the colored pictures formed an unscalable wall to the tumbling masses of insects. But the fields have lain unprotected for mile on mile under the oncoming swarms.

One Bedouin camel driver, who journeyed 12 days from Nejd, King Ibn Saud's stronghold in central Arabia, reported that his camel walked on grasshoppers throughout the trip and that his saddle, sandals, and harness were consumed by the hungry pests.

Iraq is now perturbed, however, because the Tigris and Euphrates river floods, on which agriculture depends, are the lowest this spring that they have been in 25 years.

JESUS TEACHING IN THE TEMPLE

(Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 22:1-22, 34-40.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. The second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself (22:37-39).

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaching in the Temple.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus in the Temple.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Become a Good Citizen.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Who Is a Good Citizen?

In the previous parable, the responsibilities of the subjects of the kingdom were set before us in the light of the obligation to render to the householder the fruits of his vineyard. In this one the emphasis is placed upon the privileges and blessings of the kingdom. Christ's kingdom is infinitely more than a system of laws and regulations to be obeyed.

I. The Marriage Feast (vv. 1-14). The benefits of the kingdom are set forth under the figure of marriage. The highest ideal of love and friendship known to the world is expressed in marriage.

1. The king's invitation despised (vv. 1-7).

The previous parable showed the attitude of the Jewish people toward the king up to the crucifixion. This one carries us beyond the cross, even to the present age of the Gentiles. The marriage feast which the king made for his son and to which he invited guests, represents the gracious offer of God to give joy and blessing to His creatures. This feast has been made in honor of his son, and is an exceeding rich one. The repeated invitations show God's earnestness in seeking to bless men. They not only neglected it, but made light of it and hurried on to their worldly business, showing their disregard for the salvation of their souls. Some did violence to the messengers of the king, even killing them. Primarily, this is a picture of the attitude of the Jews from Christ's crucifixion to the destruction of Jerusalem, but it has its counterpart in the present day.

2. The king's invitation accepted (vv. 8-10).

When those first invited refused, the king sent his servants to others, for his table must be provided with guests. The Lord's table has been prepared at infinite cost.

3. The king inspecting the guests (vv. 11-14).

As a result of this inspection, one was found without a wedding garment. Failure, therefore, to conform to the regulation of the feast was an insult to the king. The wedding garment provided for each one invited to the Lord's table is the righteousness of Christ.

II. The Wonderful Wisdom of the King (vv. 15-22, 34-40).

That which called forth this wisdom was the effort of the leaders to entrap Jesus.

1. The tribute money (vv. 15-22).

The Herodians sought to test His loyalty to the Roman government; therefore, they came to him with the subtle question, "Is it lawful to give tribute unto Caesar, or not?" For Christ to have answered "Yes" would have conveyed the impression of endorsement of the Roman government, and "No" would have brought him into conflict with the government. Christ's reply to this question is the final word on the Christian's relationship to civil government.

2. Concerning the resurrection (vv. 23-33).

The Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection. To entrap Him they placed before Him a hypothetical case of a woman who had had seven husbands—as to whose wife she would be in the resurrection. The Scriptures make it clear that marriage is only for this life; that in the resurrection human beings will be as angels of God.

3. The great commandment in the law (vv. 34-40).

(1) The first commandment (vv. 34-38). "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." Supreme and undivided love to God is the first and great commandment. (2) The second commandment (vv. 39, 40). This is like the first, in that it centers in love. The measure of love to my neighbor is my self-love.

4. The question put by Christ (vv. 41-43).

The mystery of Christ being the son of David and at the same time being David's Lord put to silence all those who had sought to embarrass Him.

Legume Silage Is
Dairy Farm HelpSweet Clover May Prove Valuable as Winter Ration for Cows.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Sweet clover silage may prove valuable as a wintering ration for dry cows and heifers under dry-land conditions during years when other feed crops fail, says the federal bureau of dairy industry. Sweet clover can be placed in an inexpensive silo, such as a trench, and can provide the principal feed for the dry stock through the winter. This is indicated by tests at the United States Department of Agriculture field station at Ardmore, South Dakota.

Prefer Corn Silage.

Cows, however, did not relish the sweet clover silage as they did corn silage or grass silage. In a feeding experiment in which cows were fed sweet clover silage without a grain or hay ration, production dropped greatly. A sweet clover crop usually produces considerable vegetation, even in years when drought takes the corn crop, but in the vicinity of Ardmore many cows refuse to graze the sweet clover because of a bitter taste that is more noticeable in that vicinity than at other field stations of the department. Experience with sweet clover silage at Ardmore showed that ensiling causes the bitterness to disappear.

Molasses Added.

At the Huntley, Mont., station cows preferred corn silage to alfalfa silage made by adding 1 part of beet-sugar molasses to 20 parts of first cutting alfalfa.

"An interesting feature of the legume-silage feeding," says J. R. Dawson of the bureau of dairy industry, "was the inability of the animals, when receiving silage as the only feed, to maintain an appetite for quantities. Many of the cows consumed large quantities for a few days, but invariably the consumption declined after a short time."

New Type of Asphaltic
Coating for the Silo

Asphalt is one of the best coatings for stopping leaks in silos and water tanks, but this has been handicapped by the fact that the walls must be dry and fairly warm if the asphalt is to make a good bond. There is now on the market an asphalt coating which can be applied to a wet surface, so that the silo can be coated on the inside a few feet at a time as the silo is filled. Apparently, the bond is just as strong as with the ordinary asphalt applied to a dry surface. This property of adhering tightly to a damp surface is also important in stopping leaks in tanks and cisterns, as is the fact that this type of asphalt does not make the water taste or smell.

Beetles Are Greatest
Enemies of Cucumber

The striped cucumber beetle and the spotted cucumber beetle are the great insect enemies to the cucumber. If only a few plants are included in the garden, make small frames and cover with cheesecloth to protect the plants from the beetles. A solution made by mixing arsenate of lead and a small quantity of bordeaux mixture will repel attacks from the beetle and prevent injury to the foliage.

Agricultural Hints

Cool, moist storage is best for beets, carrots, turnips, rutabagas, parsnips, salsify, winter radishes and celery.

When transplanting do not let the roots of plants lie open to the hot sun or to the drying influence of the wind.

It costs on the average $3 less to sell a truck load of produce at a market than to furnish containers for rail shipment.

Removing a crop of alfalfa late in the season will make the plants more susceptible to winter injury and may cause the destruction of the stand.

For lightning protection it is well to ground to earth every electric entrance to any farm building on the outside even though the system is connected to a water pipe on the inside.

The turkey crop last year showed an increase of about nine per cent over the year before. The most of this increase was in the western states where the greater part of the stock is put on the market as meat.

Garden arbors often can be used to screen unsightly objects. These can be made easily at home. Vines, such as climbing roses, clematis, polygonum, and wistaria, may be planted in the spring and trained over the arbor.

Smoothness, rotundity, cleanliness, freedom from blemishes or disease within and without, and uniformity of cooking are characteristics of quality in potatoes. Spraying and the use of clean seed aid the development of quality potatoes.

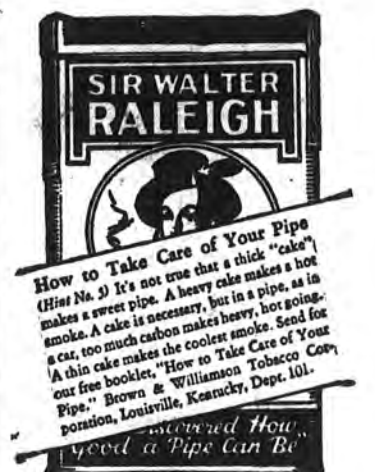

"In plain blunt words, Bill, your pipe smells like a 'Hot-Box'!"

ONLY an old and trusted friend would venture to speak so frankly.

A new pipe, or an old one carefully broken in with Sir Walter Raleigh's favorite smoking mixture, changes everything. And why shouldn't it? Sir Walter is milder and more fragrant. And it has the body and flavor found only in the finest of Burley, skillfully seasoned and blended. What more could we offer any pipe smoker? What more could he ask?

TUNE IN ON "The Raleigh Revue" every Friday, 10:00 to 11:00 p. m. (New York Time) over the WEAF coast-to-coast network of N. B. C.

It's 15¢—and milder

Good sewing machine needs
best oil, say repair men

If all housewives knew what repair men know about sewing machines, they wouldn't think "any kind of oil will do." Three-fourths of all repairs on sewing machines are due to neglect or the wrong kind of oil.

There's only one oil good enough for your machine—the best. Regardless of price, you can't find better oil than 3-In-One. It is a scientific blend of high grade animal, mineral and vegetable oils and contains unique properties not possessed by ordinary oil. It cleans and protects as well as lubricates. It is unsurpassed for sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, lawn mowers, washers, electric fans, refrigerators, locks, hinges and general household lubrication.

Don't endanger the life of your sewing machine and expensive household equipment with ordinary oil. 3-In-One Oil costs only a trifle more and will save you lots of money in repairs. At good stores everywhere, in 15c and 30c sizes. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-In-One" printed in Red on every package.

Softer

"What kind of tires do you prefer, balloon or high pressure?" "I like balloons better, as a matter of fact."

"What kind of car have you?" "I haven't any car; I'm a pedestrian."

A man of means seldom gives himself away.

WORLD WAR HAS COST US
SUM OF $51,400,000,000 GROSS

Interest on Debt Will Run for Twenty Years, Says Treasury Department.

Washington.—The World war and its aftermath cost the United States approximately the gross sum of $51,400,000,000, according to figures compiled by the Treasury department.

The country is paying about $1,102,000,000 this year as a result of the war. Included in this expenditure is interest on the public debt and provision for its retirement, upkeep of the veterans' bureau, war risk insurance and compensation and the settlement of the claims of German and other former enemy aliens for seized property.

War costs and the annual bill for national defense make up about 60 per cent of all government expenditures. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, these expenditures amounted to $2,361,000,000. Indications have been that these costs would be greater this year than last because of the increasing expenses of the veterans' bureau, the War department and the navy.

Including the present "value" of the war debts due to the United States from foreign powers $7,470,000,000, so-called war assets amount to $9,004,887,000. Sales of war materials, other items and war assets brought the net cost of the war to the United States to $37,573,960,000 up to June 30, 1929.

Of the costs of war which will continue for years to come interest on the war debt will cause the greatest outlay. Up to June 30 last, the interest payment had been $3,748,088,000. This will decrease as the public debt is retired but it will be an important item of expenditure for at least 20 years.

Care of the veterans of the World

BILL, THE BUS DRIVER SAYS

"The middle of the block is no man's land, where many a healthy human gets mowed down for keeps."

(By MARCUS A. DOW.)

"Are walkers human?" a drivin' fool once asked that question. Read this one and answer it yourself:

The scene is Fifth avenue in little old New York. "Superb, Majestic, Inspiring," some poet called this expensive lane which runs for a few miles up and down Manhattan. As an inspiration it's a flat tire to me, but as a hustlin' transportin' highway it's a wow. Traffic in this lane durin' busy hours runs in three lines each way.

I was standin' on the west side of the well known avenue watchin' autos roll by about four o'clock in the afternoon. A simple-minded lookin' egg wearin' a silly grin all over his face decides he wants to come across the street right there in the middle of the block. He looks, sees a car comin' toward him next to the curb. He starts across in front of it, gets clear, but runs in front a bliver and to escape the disgrace of bein' bumped off by a road louse, makes a half acrobatic hop-skip-and-jump due west, clearin' the lizzie, also a tourin' car comin' in the third line. He had generated so much steam he had a h-l of a time diggin' his heels into the asphalt deep enough and quick enough to keep from skiddin' into a gas buggy goin' the opposite way. A couple more lucky, agile and funny movements puts him on the curb near where I was standin'. So I just watched him—and the crazy yap walked over to a store in front of where he had made his successful trans-boulevard flight and stood there five minutes lookin' over a display of ladies' stockin's on wooden legs in the window.

That yap only thought he was in a hurry. He just couldn't wait ten seconds until he got to the next crossin' to cross. Hurry causes a lot of accidents and the funny part is folks ain't in the hurry they think they are.

Small Villages Tire of Through Traffic Scheme

The danger of picking out the main street of a town and arbitrarily making it a through street, as pointed out in recent studies made by the National Safety Council, has recently been emphasized in several Illinois towns. Petitions have been received by the state highway commission, at Springfield, from representatives of small towns and villages asking that state roads, around which many of them have been built, be re-routed so that the constant stream of traffic may be diverted from their centers.

According to the representatives, it was once thought advantageous to bring as much traffic into the main street as possible, for transient trade meant increased business.

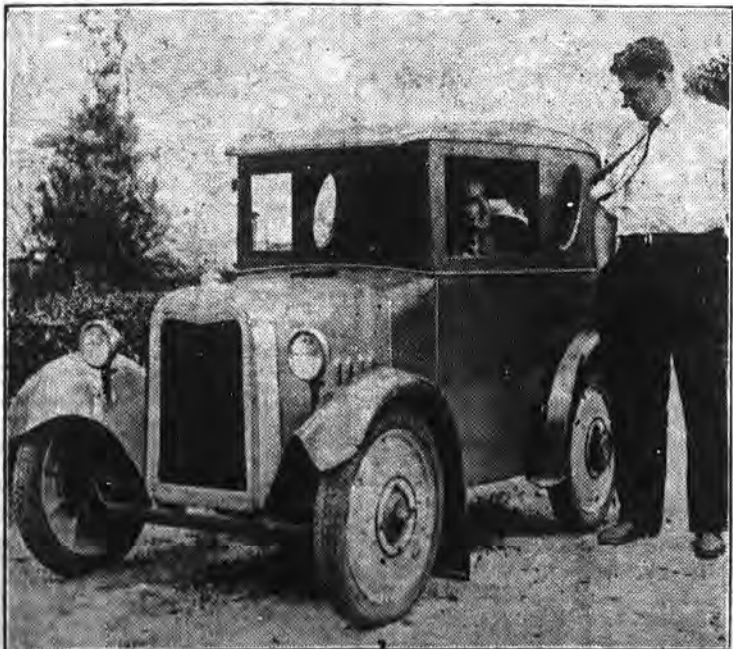

The flow of cars, however, has become so great and the speed at which they travel so rapid that few stop at all. The increased volume has reached a stage where it endangers the lives of the inhabitants.

Even large cities are now finding that the most successful system shunts nonstop traffic around the business district to avoid congestion in the downtown centers.

Important Suggestion on Prevention of Wear

Scatterings of oil found on the garage floor or on the pavement where the car has been parked usually indicate loose oil line connections or loose crankcase bolts. After adjustments are made, the oil filter should be serviced if it has been used 10,000 miles. Attention to these important items means oil economy and prevention of wear on the automobile engine.

NEAT LITTLE STUDY IN COMPARISONS

The small size of this new baby automobile is clearly illustrated by this comparison with a man of average height. The new car, recently put on the market, sells for $200 and can be lifted off the ground and carried by the driver whenever necessary.

THE MOTOR QUIZ

(How Many Can You Answer?)

Q. How many passenger automobiles are on farms in United States?

Ans. Approximately 4,750,000.

Q. What states lead in the number of passenger cars on farms?

Ans. Texas, Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Missouri and New York, in the order named.

Brakes Are Subjected to Most Terrific Heat

Due to the excessive heats developed in bringing an automobile to a stop, brake linings have to be of such composition that they will not break down or burn up under these high temperatures.

When a vehicle weighing 5,000 pounds is brought to a stop from a speed of fifty miles per hour in approximately four seconds, as it is quite possible to do with the present four-wheel brakes, there is about 450,000 foot pounds of kinetic energy to be converted into heat that has to be absorbed, or dissipated, through the brake lining and brake drums.

The average brake drum wearing surface on cars of such weight is only about three hundred square inches. If many quick stops like this are made in a short time, it can readily be seen that this surface cannot possibly dissipate such an enormous amount of heat and as a result the brake drums would soon be red-hot. Many times, when driving in heavy traffic or in hilly country, the brake drums are often at a temperature of 300 degrees Fahrenheit for considerable periods of time.

Screen Helmet Shields Speeding Auto Driver

Protects Speeding Motorist.

Earl Howe, the famous auto racer, with the novel wind-and-dust-screen helmet, just before setting out on a trial spin at Brooklands, England, where the auto racing season is now in full swing.

AUTOMOBILE FACTS

Gov. Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts is in favor of the back-seat driver. He urges passengers in automobiles to insist that the operator in control drive carefully.

A new type of motor car may be stopped with the sound of the human voice. There are faces, of course, that would stop a clock, but the principle here is different.

A good pressure gauge is calibrated for all sizes of balloon tires. That means that if you have several cars using different sizes of tires the same gauge will do for all of them.

A man was arrested in New York for whistling on the street at midnight. He should have run through town with his muffler open if he wanted to make a noise and get away with it.

WORTH MILLION AND FORGETS IT

Someone Fails to Claim Fortune in England.

London.—Could you forget that you had a million dollars?

Someone in England has, and the sum total of fortunes that he and others have "overlooked" amounts to $20,000,000.

This vast sum lies in the hands of the officials of the national exchequer, which every year benefits to the extent of approximately $1,000,000 by the failure of an army of stockholders to claim the interest on their government stock.

That this figure is underestimated is admitted by the officials of the exchequer. It is done so purposely to avoid a flood of spurious claims. The present practice of the Bank of England is to wait until one claimant appears for a hitherto unclaimed stock, and then advertise for all other claimants to the same stock.

One reason that people forget such valuable property is that many stockholders go abroad and are never heard from again. Then there are aged or ailing persons, who forget that they possess stock, and there are the hundreds of persons, who when they die, neglect to leave any mention of their possessions.

A claim recently brought out the fact that an English woman, who had died at Marseilles at the age of ninety-eight, was entitled to $280,000 in stocks, and $100,000 in accumulated dividends, yet she had been constantly borrowing from her relatives.

The finance act of 1921 gives to the national exchequer all dividends unclaimed after five years, although the stocks remain in the holders' names for another ten years.

Dr. Carter to Seek Tomb of Alexander the Great

London.—Howard Carter, archeologist and discoverer of the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, plans to embark on his most sensational exploit—search for the tomb and body of Alexander the Great.

Upon completion of his work at the sepulchre of Tut-Ankh-Amen in Egypt he said in an interview with the Daily Mail, he will proceed with the infinitely more difficult attempt to find the resting place of the young man who came out of Macedonia to conquer the entire known world of 22 centuries ago.

Alexander died at Babylon in 323 B. C., but one of his greatest generals, the satrap Ptolemy I, later ruler of Egypt, contrived to procure the body and is said to have given it burial in a golden coffin at Alexandria. The discovery of his tomb, Carter believes, would far overshadow in importance the finding of Tut-Ankh-Amen's last resting place.

"According to Plutarch," he said, "the exact position of Alexander's tomb in Alexandria was unknown. However, it may possibly be found in one of the royal cemeteries, but I anticipate a long, difficult and expensive search."

The preliminary work, he said, will consist of probing the ground by sinking tubes and shafts, then working toward the center of the supposed royal cemetery.

Regarding Tut-Ankh-Amen, Carter admits there is still much work to be done, although he hopes to remove four great shrines from the tomb in October, when the Egyptian excavation season begins.

Hardy Constitutions of Dogs Seen in Operations

London.—The cat is not the only member of the animal family which has nine lives. Through scientific aid and operations, the dog is now enjoying several lives. Many operations performed in the Royal Veterinary college have saved the lives of numerous canines which ordinarily would have expired. A recent operation was performed on a greyhound with a dislocated neck. Shortly afterward the dog resumed its racing. At the college dogs have been provided with false teeth and limbs and even rejuvenating operations have been performed on them.

Times Certainly Have Changed in Forty Years

Kansas City, Mo.—There has been a change of views in the last 40 years. The following item appeared 40 years ago in a Kansas City newspaper: "A peculiar incident happened at the public library today. A young woman reading a periodical at one of the tables had her left leg accidentally (?) exposed so that a pink stocking was visible up to her knee. She was quietly asked to leave."

Women Soldiers Unpopular With Reds

Moscow.—Women soldiers are unpopular in the eyes of the Russian government. "Female rifle squads" from the Red army were sent to the villages in discontented districts to protect communal farms from being plundered by opposition peasantry engaged in private enterprise. But, states the Soviet cabinet in an official announcement, "The rifle-women have fraternized with the peasantry."

LAKE SUPERIOR MAY GET NATIONAL PARK

Apostle Islands Named in Bill Before Congress

Ashland, Wis.—A group of islands, nestled like precious stones in a setting of natural charm on the edge of one of the most beautiful natural harbors in the world, may become the site of a new national park.

The islands, termed the Apostle group after a band of 12 rollicking brigands who called themselves the apostles and who preyed upon lone coureurs de bois on Chequamegon bay of Lake Superior in the early Seventeenth century, are as wild, rugged and beautiful as in the earliest days of Wisconsin's civilization.

Already the mecca of hundreds of wealthy Americans who maintain summer homes upon Madeline island, the largest of the group, the Apostles are to be made a national park if the efforts of Wisconsin citizens are successful in congress.

Bill Pending in Congress.

A bill introduced by Congressman H. H. Peavey, Washburn, Wis., to establish a park, is pending before congress now.

At La Pointe, the population center of the sparsely settled islands, the first known dwelling in Wisconsin for white men was erected about 1653. Two Frenchmen, Pierre Radisson and Medard Chouart de Crosselliers, built the log habitation and, according to the history of the region, "were delighted with the country and Radisson described its beauties with an eloquent pen."

"The country was so pleasant, so beautiful and fruitful that it grieved me to see that the world could not discover such enticing countries to live in," wrote the French explorer.

Converted Indians.

The French remained in the region, colonizing and establishing trading posts, converting the Indians to Christianity and extending the boundaries of the French empire in Wisconsin and Minnesota. The islands remained a center of this work, the trading post at La Pointe, occupying a strategic position in the French fur trade.

Later, when the British obtained the territory, Madeline and the other islands flourished as local centers of the vast Northwest fur trade.

La Pointe at one time was the county seat of Ashland county, losing its identity shortly after the founding of Ashland. It still remains a center of fishing, trapping and has a population of several hundred summer residents.

Several of the islands are uninhabited but possess rare natural beauty in the form of sandstone caves and rock formations, cut into queer and fantastic shape by the waters of Lake Superior.

Boston University Has Typewriter Orchestra

Boston.—Almost any day if you stand within earshot of Boston university's college of practical arts and letters, you may hear a strange staccato rhythm, a novel interpretation of a currently popular tune.

Investigation will show that the weird melody, as fascinating as the dot-dash-dot of a telegraph instrument, emanates from what is probably the country's only typewriter orchestra.

Miss Elizabeth Carvell, instructor, inaugurated the plan recently "to demonstrate the elasticity of the method of using rhythm in typing."

While a phonograph plays, for example, "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," or some other tune that lends itself to touch system interpretation, the 14 "musicians" sit in orchestral formation and tap out an obbligato.

One group devotes its technique to clicking out the melody, another to hammering out the second part, while a third punches away at the bass. The ultimate effect is surprisingly rhythmic.

"It may not necessarily speed up the words per minute," Miss Carvell explains, "but it gives a uniformity to the work which otherwise is often lacking. The second aim in using music is to give a new interest to the typewriting work and key up the girls to a new stride in their progress."

Model of Ex-Kaiser Is Target in Gallery

Trondhjem, Norway.—Trondhjem will be boycotted by German tourists unless the shooting gallery here ceases to use models of the ex-kaiser and the German crown prince as targets.

This step is threatened by the German Travelling association in a written protest demanding the demolition of the figures, but the populace of Trondhjem is having a good laugh, for investigation proved that the targets in question were made in Germany and exported to Norway.

Wife in Poorhouse, Husband Asks Divorce

Great Falls, Mont.—One of the most unusual divorce cases ever filed in a Montana court comes to issue when Solomon T. Niles, eighty-one-year-old Civil war veteran, attempts to secure legal separation from Mrs. Johanna G. Niles, seventy-nine, on the ground of desertion. The wife, forced to live in the poor farm, denies her husband's allegations. In her answer, she asks that her husband be compelled either to take her back or to provide for her.

LIGHTS of NEW YORK

By GRANT DIXON

Getting Service

A young New Yorker recently went to a famous mid-western hospital for a highly specialized operation, and has returned bearing word that, "out among the big things," he has been set down as a mental case. But it comes out even, for he thinks the nurses were a set of mental cases. He found, he said, that his $8 a day nurses would give him no service. If he asked for something, they replied, "You don't want that now." So he devised the scheme of holding a water pitcher high in the air and saying, "If you don't give me what I want I'll drop the pitcher." After the nurses had cleaned up two broken pitchers, his requests were granted, but the hospital officially set him down as a maniac.

Pet Clinic

Every Saturday afternoon, at a building in lower Seventh avenue, may be found a line-up of pet lovers at a free clinic for animals. Here, at the headquarters of the Humane society, come those who can't afford to pay for veterinary services, and those who can—for the reputation of the society's veterinarians is great. The other afternoon I dropped in to see Harry Moran, the superintendent, and to get a line on the sort of services dispensed.

Animals, Moran told me, have just about the same illnesses that human beings do. While I was there a woman arrived in her limousine, carrying a Sealyham terrier that was suffering from a case of nerves. And someone brought a billygoat that was suffering from—believe it or not—indigestion. One of the regular visitors is a cat with ingrowing toenails, brought in for a—tell me if I'm wrong—manicure.

New Game

Ultra smart New Yorkers who have tired of Guggenheim, anagrams and other childish pastimes have devised a new means of amusement. It is the game of larceny. If you are invited to the Smiths for dinner, you snoop about the apartment looking for Smith's wallet or Mrs. Smith's pocketbook. You try to steal $5. You win the game, of course, if you get the $5 without being caught. Then, if you're an ultra smart New Yorker, you return the money a week later, accompanying it with a light jest.

Minor Upheaval

One of the minor upheavals caused by the waistline-and-long-skirt epidemic has been in the window display business. Store proprietors have found that their wax mannequins are completely out of touch with the mode, with their lack of feminine curves. So many a sculptor's work of art has been confined to the junk heap, and the sculptors are working night and day turning out mannequins with fuller figures.

True Story

I can't mention the name, without getting into trouble. But here is the story: A press agent for a well known producer was reading in bed the other night after a hard day's work giving out press passes, and he came upon a startling passage in his book. "Why," he exclaimed, "That's my boss!" It read like one of those Broadway novels in which the characters have fictitious names but everyone knows who is meant. Not willing to trust his own imagination, the press agent took the book with him to the office next morning, and read the passage to close associates of the producer. "Who's this?" the press agent would say, and then would begin to read. "You don't need to go any further," the listener would reply shortly. "It's the boss. Somebody has been writing another Broadway novel."

The book the press agent read from was a scholarly biography of Cesare Borgia.

Chick Is Some Chicken; Crows When 2 Days Old

Blytheville, Ark.—A young chicken which began crowing at the age of two days is the prize possession of Mrs. Chuck Burns.

"Chickie," a handsome Plymouth Rock, recently startled the other barnyard fowl and his owner by crowing lustily in imitation of a grown rooster. Since then he rises early each morning, flaps his wings and greets the morning sun with a ringing crow.

Each time he performs this unusual feat he has an audience of several unbelievers who go away convinced "Chickie" is "some chicken."

Man Turns Robber to Pay for Divorce

San Francisco.—A "robbing Peter to pay Paul defense" failed Harry Schilder in Superior court here and he must serve one year to life in San Quentin penitentiary.

Schilder, a baker, told the court that he had held up a man in order to pay a divorce attorney fees.

"I had no other way to get the money," he said, "and court had ordered me to pay it."

This Little Girl Got Well Quick

"Just after her third birthday, my little daughter, Connie, had a serious attack of intestinal flu," says Mrs. H. W. Turnage, 217 Cadwalder St., San Antonio, Texas. "It left her very weak and pale. Her bowels wouldn't act right, she had no appetite and nothing agreed with her."

"Our physician told us to give her some California Fig Syrup. It made her pick up right away, and now she is as robust and happy as any child in our neighborhood. I give California Fig Syrup full credit for her wonderful condition. It is a great thing for children."

Children like the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup, and you can give it to them as often as they need it, because it is purely vegetable. For over 50 years leading physicians have recommended it, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows it gives satisfaction. Nothing compares with it as a gentle but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It regulates the stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup, so look for the name "California" on the carton to be sure you get the genuine.

Promptness Always Pays

Banks lend money belonging to other people, and for this reason have to be careful about security.

However, the person who is known to be in the habit of attending carefully and promptly to all of his obligations will be far more likely to get money when he needs it than one who, while both his collateral and intentions may be good, still is careless and slipshod in attending to business.
