FACTS and FICTION BEING

a little bit about anything
"Read not to contradict and confute, nor to find talk and discourse, but to weigh and consider."—Francis Bacon.
By Harry Williamson

The Iron Horse still runs. As this is written we are on the train en route from Nashville, and clipping it off at about 50 miles an hour—a marvelous speed 30 years ago. Now it is not at all unusual as we run along beside Highway No. 1, which we do in several places, to see automobiles come along side, and pass on, doubtless making 65 and 70 miles per hour. An airplane, leaving when we did, would have been in Memphis before we reached the Tennessee River, and by the time we arrive in Memphis could be at Little Rock with plenty of time to spare.

Yet there is something interesting about the railroad. Its history, from the time Stephenson made the first successful run down to the present day, reads like a romance of fiction. America owes its wonderful progress to the development of the railroad. Across the country it went, bridging rivers, spanning plains, and boring under such mountains as it could not cross. With its thousands of miles of trackage, now touching every inhabitable nook and corner of the United States, it has hauled the products of the factory and farm and transported a restless and speed-loving population from coast to coast until its more recent rivals, the automobile and airplane, made their appearance.

Is it to serve its day and pass out, as has the big steam boats of the Mississippi river? Perhaps not. The people may wake up one of these days and come to realize that it would be much better to haul the freight of the country on the railroads which were built for that purpose and leave the highways for the convenience and pleasure of the traveling public.

How wonderful is youth. In the car to which Memphis passengers were assigned in Nashville, some forty or fifty girls and boys from Memphis high schools are enroute back home after winning the state contest in chorus and quartet work. Scattered among them quite a number of business and professional men and women are seen. The spirit of youth, however, predominates. Every body seems in good humor. The train men prolong their stay in the car, seeming loth to leave, and every one seems happy and optimistic. They have sung, laughed, joked, wisecracked, and done a little of everything, but all of it in a very splendid and fine-spirited way.

And what of them? In their more serious moments they have talked of Gandhi, quoted Arthur Brisbane, and shown a familiarity of world affairs that would have startled our grandfathers.

Flaming youth? Let 'em flame! They may be bad in spots, but where there is one bad one, you can find a hundred that are doing things that are worthwhile. The spirit of the age is youth. If we can't adjust ourselves to it, and if we insist on living in the old man world of fifty years ago, it is going to be rather uncomfortable to us.

We had the pleasure of looking in on the famous Investigating Committee on Thursday, April 2nd. Looking was all as we were unable to understand much that was being said. Mr. J. H. O'Connell, of the firm of Haskins and Sells, Auditors, was on the stand. He may be a good auditor, but he doesn't talk very loud. With the noiseless typewriters of the half dozen reporters clicking away, and the general hum of voices in the rear of the big House of Representatives hall, very little could be heard. The place was well befogged with smoke, and the members of the Committee looked rather tired, and some of them bored. Some feel that the Committee has served its best, and should disband. Tennessee is in a bad way, and people will be inclined to give the Committee plenty of time to go

The ladies have been working on this production for the past several weeks and a well coached, carefully studied play is the result and you will enjoy many hearty laughs when you see Sophronia get married.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH NOTICE

Easter Sermon at the Christian Church, Sunday morning, 11 o'clock, subject: "The First Fruits of Them That Slep." Sunday evening at 7:30, "The Unpardonable Sin." This sermon has been requested. You are sure of a welcome at all services.

its stuff. It is to be hoped that they will keep the best interest of the state at heart, and not let the prospective chance for some of its members to become candidates for governor get in the way, as some of the state papers are disposed to accuse. Let's keep the Committee until it does something worse than to appear to be fostering a candidate for governor. It would doubtless be an improvement if they were to furnish a governor.

Now the youngsters are collected in the center of the car, and perched on the back of seats, in the aisle, and on the window ledge, and they are doing some real singing, interspersing occasionally with a yell. Moving about among them, quietly and inconspicuously, is a quiet little man. All of them respect him with an admiration that is pleasing to watch. He is none other than Earnest F. Hawke, the spirit of good singing and music in Memphis. He, with Miss Showers of Tech High, have trained these state champions, and it can easily be seen that they have trained them in something else other than singing.

How big is the sun in the family of stars? Surprising as it may seem, it is one of the smallest and faintest of the stars. Though being at a distance of 93,000,000 miles from it is about 300,000 times nearer to the earth than the next nearest neighbors.

Out of the hills and rocks of Middle Tennessee into the rolling hills of the western division of the state this fast train of the N. C. & St. L. plunges on. Seven or eight huge cars, weighing many tons with doubtless more than a hundred human beings are dependent upon the skill and trustworthiness of one grim-faced man, and the mechanism of a complicated machine called a locomotive. The lonesome sound of the whistle from out of the darkness, and the occasional slowing up or speeding up of the train, remind us that he is on the job, and is standing between us and what could easily be death to many of us. Thanks to prohibition—regardless of the bootlegger—he is sober.

Now the boys' quartet is singing, and everyone is listening. Memphis is drawing near. Easter rabbits, colored eggs, and other presents for a waiting family of three must be gotten together. A homecoming, after an absence of three long days, is just ahead, if the trusty engineer, and this machine called a train continues to perform as well as it has for the past 200 miles.

COLLIERVILLE SCHOOL HAS NEW DOMESTI-GAS PLANT

One of the new Domesti-Gas plants has been installed in the Collierville school, furnishing gas for the Domestic Science Department and the Bunsen burners in the Laboratory. This plant makes gas out of charcoal.

The coal is lighted and in a short time gas is produced, which burns and gives the same heat as natural. The operation is entirely automatic after the fire is once lighted and the machine requires practically no attention. The plant was installed by W. B. Howz of the Forrest Products Chemical Company of Memphis.

These plants have been installed recently in the schools at Germantown, Bartlett, Millington and Bolton.

SOUTHERN NEW FREIGHT SERVICE IS A CONVENIENCE

The new fast, local freight service recently installed by the Southern railroad is proving a great convenience to shippers along the line. Last Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, the Collierville Cash Feed Store telephoned an order for a carload of feed to the mill in Memphis. Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock, Mr. Cox, manager of the store, began unloading the car and at 8 o'clock that night the car was back in the yards in Memphis. Again this week Mr. Cox received another carload in the same quick time.

Mr. Hill, the local agent for the Southern, says the new local freight service is being well received by the business men and means a quicker service for local shipments, either in car load lots or less. Freight that is placed in the station in Memphis up to 5 p. m. is in the station here early the next morning, ready for delivery.

LOCAL SCOUT RECEIVES MERIT BADGE AT COURT OF HONOR

The National Council will meet in Memphis on May 5th and 6th, at which time Dan Beard, the father of Scouting, will award the Eagle Badges to all who have attained that rank.

CITY BOARD PETITIONED TO REMAIN IN OFFICE

A petition is being circulated this week among the voters and citizens of Collierville endorsing the splendid work of the present City Administration, and asking that they remain in office for another term and that no election be held. ## U. T. EXPERIMENTS WITH NURSERY ROOTSTOCKS ATTRACT WIDE ATTENTION Tennessee is one of the leading nursery states and in past years has been a large importer of apples, cherry, pear, and plum seedlings from Europe for rootstocks. Recent Federal quarantines prohibit further importation of these rootstocks from Europe, therefore American nurserymen must either grow their own seedlings or do without, states Prof. J. A. McClintock, Horticulturist, U. T. Experiment Station.

To assist nurserymen with problems of seedling production, the Horticultural Department, of the University of Tennessee Experiment station, has been conducting experiments in rootstock production. These experiments, states Prof. McClintock, have proved that as good seedlings can be grown in Tennessee as those produced in other states or in Europe.

Interest in the Tennessee station experiments is indicated by the response to reports on this subject presented by Prof. McClintock at the meetings of American Association for Advancement of Science in December at Cleveland, Ohio. Since these reports were presented, many requests have been received from commercial nurserymen, and from state and Federal experiment stations for further information on the production of Rootstocks in Tennessee.

Since January requests have been received for Tennessee-grown rootstocks from experiment stations in Oklahoma and Kentucky, and from the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Washington. These requests have been filled with seedlings raised at the Tennessee experiment station.

LADIES AUXILIARY MEETS WITH MISS FLEMING

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church met on Tuesday afternoon with Miss Margaret Fleming for the monthly business and social meeting. At this session the year's work was closed, Mrs. B. M. Cowan, president, reading the year's report which showed much splendid work having been accomplished, and interest in the work having steadily grown. There are eighteen members now in the organization, one member having joined at the meeting of Tuesday.

Miss Fleming had the reception rooms gay with Spring flowers of pink and lavender. The delicious refreshments of frozen fruit jello and cake, which were served at the close of the social hour, brought out the pretty tints pink and green.

Friends of Miss Emma Hester will be glad to know she is much improved. Her mother, Mrs. Mattie Hester Mrs. T. E. Watkins, Miss Rebecca Smythe, and Mrs. P. A. Jones visited her Tuesday.

Little Joan Creeley, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Creeley, was taken to the Baptist Hospital last Sunday, suffering from an abscess in her ear. She is now much better, and on Thursday was able to be brought home with her mother who recently had an appendicitis operation.

HEALTH COLUMN
By Dr. Wallace P. Moore

THE PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE

Who is the Public Health Nurse?
What are her duties and responsibilities?
The Public Health Nurse spreads the gospel of health—she acts as a medium between the physicians and scientists and the public, translating into the language of the people the great discoveries of the realm of hygiene.

She is primarily a trained nurse, is registered in the state in which she works, has had special training and continues to study the prevention of sickness and positive health.

All through her days of training she learns admiration and respect for the physician, from whom she gains her knowledge through observation as well as direct teaching. A definite professional relationship thus comes about between the medical and nursing profession and this attitude is as much a part of every trained nurse as her thermometer and nursing skill. Should you call on her when some member of your family is sick, her first question will be "have you called your physician?" If not she will urge you to do so, and if so, she will want to know what he has told you to do so that she may be sure you are carrying out all his orders.

To the Public Health Nurse and especially the nurses in rural communities the most important thing is to build all her health programs around the local physicians or group of physicians.

What service does a Public Health Nurse render?

Starting with the beginning of life itself she seeks to assure every expectant mother the best supervision and the best environment. Then the infant period—she visits him and tries to see that he, having been well born continues to keep well.
And so through pre-school life, the nurse helps to see that good health continues, good health habits are formed, and that specific immunity is given the child against Smallpox, Typhoid Fever and Diphtheria.
The nurses work in the school is perhaps the best known of her work.

Health supervision and assisting the physician, again back to the home with a health message.

On the adult life, The nurse is interested in every individual, she will try to insist on an annual physical examination for those who are well and is ready to serve any who may have a chronic illness. Those who have Tuberculosis find her a constant help. She tries to institute in the homes the type of care that patients receive in Sanitoriums and see that when your doctor says "REST" you know the meaning of the word; and that when he says "WHOLESOME FOOD" you know what that means.

And then, when Communicable Disease breaks out the nurse is ready to help to assure the restoration of the sick person to health, and the protection of the rest of the community thru quarantine restrictions.

The purpose of these words will be fulfilled if any idea of the work of the public health nurse has been conveyed.

Do you wonder that every day of the public health nurse's day is full of interest and joy?

LOEW'S STATE, MEMPHIS

Friday, April 10th, Loew's State presents William Powell in "Man of the World" with Carole Lombard and Wynne Gibson. As a gentleman in exile, an outcast—loved deeply by two women, one he loves and can't have, the other he can have and doesn't want—Powell is seen as a man so enmeshed in crime that he cannot free himself. In this story of love that comes too late, of the fight of the man to reestablish himself in decent society for the sake of the girl he knows to be far beyond his reach, romance and tense drama are thrown forcefully into relief against the gay and enthralling atmosphere of pleasure-ground Paris.

Powell's excellence in romance and heart-tugging drama, plus the fascination of the Parisian setting, make "Man of the World" a picture to get excited about.

The Stage offers Loew's "Ace" Vaudeville revue Fountain of Youth.

LOEW'S PALACE, MEMPHIS

Saturday, April 11th, Loew's Palace offers Mary Pickford in "Kiki" with Reginald Denny. "America's Sweetheart" presents a glorious surprise to her millions of admirers as she appears in the fascinating title role of "Kiki." A pretty mischevous, little madcap in the chorus of Victor Randall's Broadway Revue, Kiki's harum-scarum ways, her imp-ish temperament and fragile loveliness, are the despair of the whole company. Madly in love with Randall (Reginald Denny) Kiki is constantly doing something to offend him. Her ingenious, and at times, devilish tricks; her ambitions to be a great lady and her bizarre notions about everything in general provide a deluge of diverting comedy. We are proud of the opportunity to again present the charm and fascination of America's Sweetheart—Mary Pickford.

LOEW'S STRAND, MEMPHIS

Loew's Strand presents Monday April 13th, and thru-out the entire week, the return of Charlie Chaplin to Memphis in "City Lights". The story tells of the comic adventures of a blue blood of the highways, who forms a strange friendship with an eccentric millionaire. While intoxicated, the Croesus treats Charlie as a bosom companion, sobered he will have nothing to do with him.
There is a blind flower girl who does unusual things to the heart strings of the friendless tramp. You'll roar one minute and feel all choked up the next watching this happy-go-lucky vagabond trying to solve his and the world's problems. There is a giant helping of laughs, gaiety, surprises and the unmatched artistry of the greatest of all comedians combine to make "City Lights" the greatest funfest you've ever know.
