Thyne of the 30" ult. regarding the widening of Morphy ane. is at hand. And I would say, I am confident that the officers members of the Council have used their best judgement of the full value of the damage to be done in the widening of Morphy, including removal of the fence. And my judgement being very fallible I would accept the price named viz. $80.00 in full payment for damage in widening the road tenn ft, on the north side.

The work of moving the fence is complete.

Respectfully, Marion Smith.

Mr. Marion Smith
Fairhope, Ala.

Dear Lessee:

Your appraisal of $120.00 of damages to you resulting from the proposed widening of Morphy Ave., 10 ft to the south was given consideration by the Executive Council at its meeting Sept. 21, 1937.

After due deliberation and reports by officers and members of the council who had made personal observations and comparisons with the appraisals of other lessees it was decided that your appraisal was high.

I am instructed to make an offer of $80.00 in full settlement for all improvement loss to you and including your cost of moving the fence. If you agree to accept this offer you will please advise me at an early date of such acceptance and of the approximate date your work of moving the fence will be completed.

Very truly yours,

Secretary

GENERAL BUSINESS CONDITIONS

From the Monthly Bank Letter for November Issued by The National City Bank of New York

COOPERATIVE efforts by the Government and leading banking interests to relieve the acute stage of banking difficulties reached early in October provided the highlight in business in the United States during the month, according to the monthly Review of Conditions published by The National City Bank of New York. Largely because of the demonstration of banking power and solidarity given, the review states, these difficulties are receding. Indications of reviving confidence are the better tone of the stock market, easier foreign exchange rates, subsidence of the gold export movement, and most important of all a decline of $24,000,000 in money in circulation in the final week of the month. This "seems to indicate that the hoarding of currency has at last passed its peak."

On the subject of foreign withdrawals of gold from the United States, the review points out that "while the movement itself has been regarded as a hysterical one, it is recognized that redistribution of gold not needed in this country will be helpful in restoring not only the world equilibrium, but more wholesome credit conditions in this country." Noting that the gold lost has in effect been "under foreign ownership throughout its stay here," the review says "it is a fortunate thing to have the excess removed at a time when its withdrawal causes the minimum of disturbance. Notwithstanding the loss of gold, the amount of 'free' gold in the Federal Reserve Banks at the current writing is substantially as large as before the movement started."

Discussing the fundamental causes of the bank failures in the United States, the review calls attention to the tendency of bank credit in recent years to take the form of loans and investments ineligible for rediscount at the Federal Reserve Banks. This decline in holdings of eligible paper has been largely outside the control of the banks, being due to the depression and the fact that corporations during the boom financed themselves more by security sales and less by bank loans.

"For such reasons," the review continues, "the last few years have been in general a period of declining liquidity especially for country banks, with a marked turn by city banks, within the current year, toward increased liquidity through purchase of U. S. Government bonds. Undoubtedly, the only reason why country banks also have not reversed their position is that they have been unable to do so. Five-cent cotton and 30-cent wheat have been too great a problem for them to solve. Even where they have an adequate percentage of well-secured loans of short maturity, debtors have been unable to repay promptly, necessitating renewal or the sale of the security at a sacrifice, a demoralizing necessity avoided whenever possible. The impact upon banks in such condition of a sudden and panicky demand of depositors for the repayment of their funds at once becomes insupportable. The weakness in the situation due to lack of liquidity has been evident in two ways: first, in the inability of solvent banks promptly to borrow upon their assets to a sufficient extent to meet demands upon them and second, in selling of bonds by the banks in order to raise funds. This depreciates the investments of other banks which in turn may find their capital impaired, the whole process illustrating the vicious circle in which depression operates."

Discussing the operation of the National Credit Corporation which has been established to ease this situation, the review says:

"The purpose of the National Credit Corporation, sponsored and subscribed to by the banks of the country, is to mobilize banking resources into a pool, out of which to make loans in the present emergency to sound banks upon sound assets. It is a mechanism for the rediscount of such good paper of these banks as is not eligible for rediscount by the Federal Reserve Banks, as a method of assisting temporarily illiquid banks to meet their current obligations and thus make sacrifices of assets unnecessary, reduce the number of bank suspensions and assist in the restoration of public confidence in the banking situation.

"It is our view that the dramatic events of these few weeks have immensely strengthened the resolution of the strong banks, members of the Federal Reserve System, to cooperate effectively in support of the situation and to widen the latitude of the individual assistance they give."

The review stresses the importance of the advances in prices of wheat, cotton, and other farm products, stating that "their recovery, relieving the pressure upon marginal holders, encouraging buyers and facilitating repayment of loans, is one of the most hopeful features of the situation." It says that business activity has shown some pickup during October, but improvement has been limited to ordinary seasonal increases. The heavy industries continue quiet, but resumption of operations by leading automobile manufacturers during November will provide needed support for steel and other industries.

The current review contains a tabulation of third-quarter earnings reports of about 200 corporations engaged in the major manufacturing industries and in retail trade, showing aggregate net profits, after all charges but before dividends, of approximately $97,000,000, against $167,000,000 the previous quarter, and $131,000,000 in the first quarter. In the third quarter of last year such net profits amounted to $192,000,000, indicating a decline this year of 49.2 per cent.
