NEW IN '92

The Romans named the month of January after their God Janus, because he was the God of gates and doors, of endings and beginnings.

Because doors have two sides and because every ending means a new beginning, Janus was always shown as having two faces — one to look back and one to look ahead.

This year of 1992 is a new beginning for Immokalee Middle School, so our school symbol above is trying on a "Janus face." One side looks back to great years we had on the old campus. The other side looks forward to new things to do and new opportunities in our wonderful new school.

This yearbook is the only one whose pictures will let you look at both schools at once.

Moving — A Time to Remember!

Friday, December 20, 1991, found everyone still in the old building but boxed up and ready to leave for Christmas holidays.

Administration, custodians and some teachers worked on the move during vacation.

Monday, January 6, 1992, found teachers and students in their new building and ready to start school again — though perhaps not entirely unpacked yet.

Or Was It a Time to Forget?

Everybody worked hard but had some fun in the process.

Career Day brought guest speakers to our school to talk about different occupations. Get High on Life Day was a time to prove we can have a wacky and wonderful time naturally. Marisol Luna and Juan Perez take a break from their demonstration of Spanish dancing and Emily Corbitt clowns with her chicken friend Jaime Yzaguirre.
