The First Step of Thousand Miles

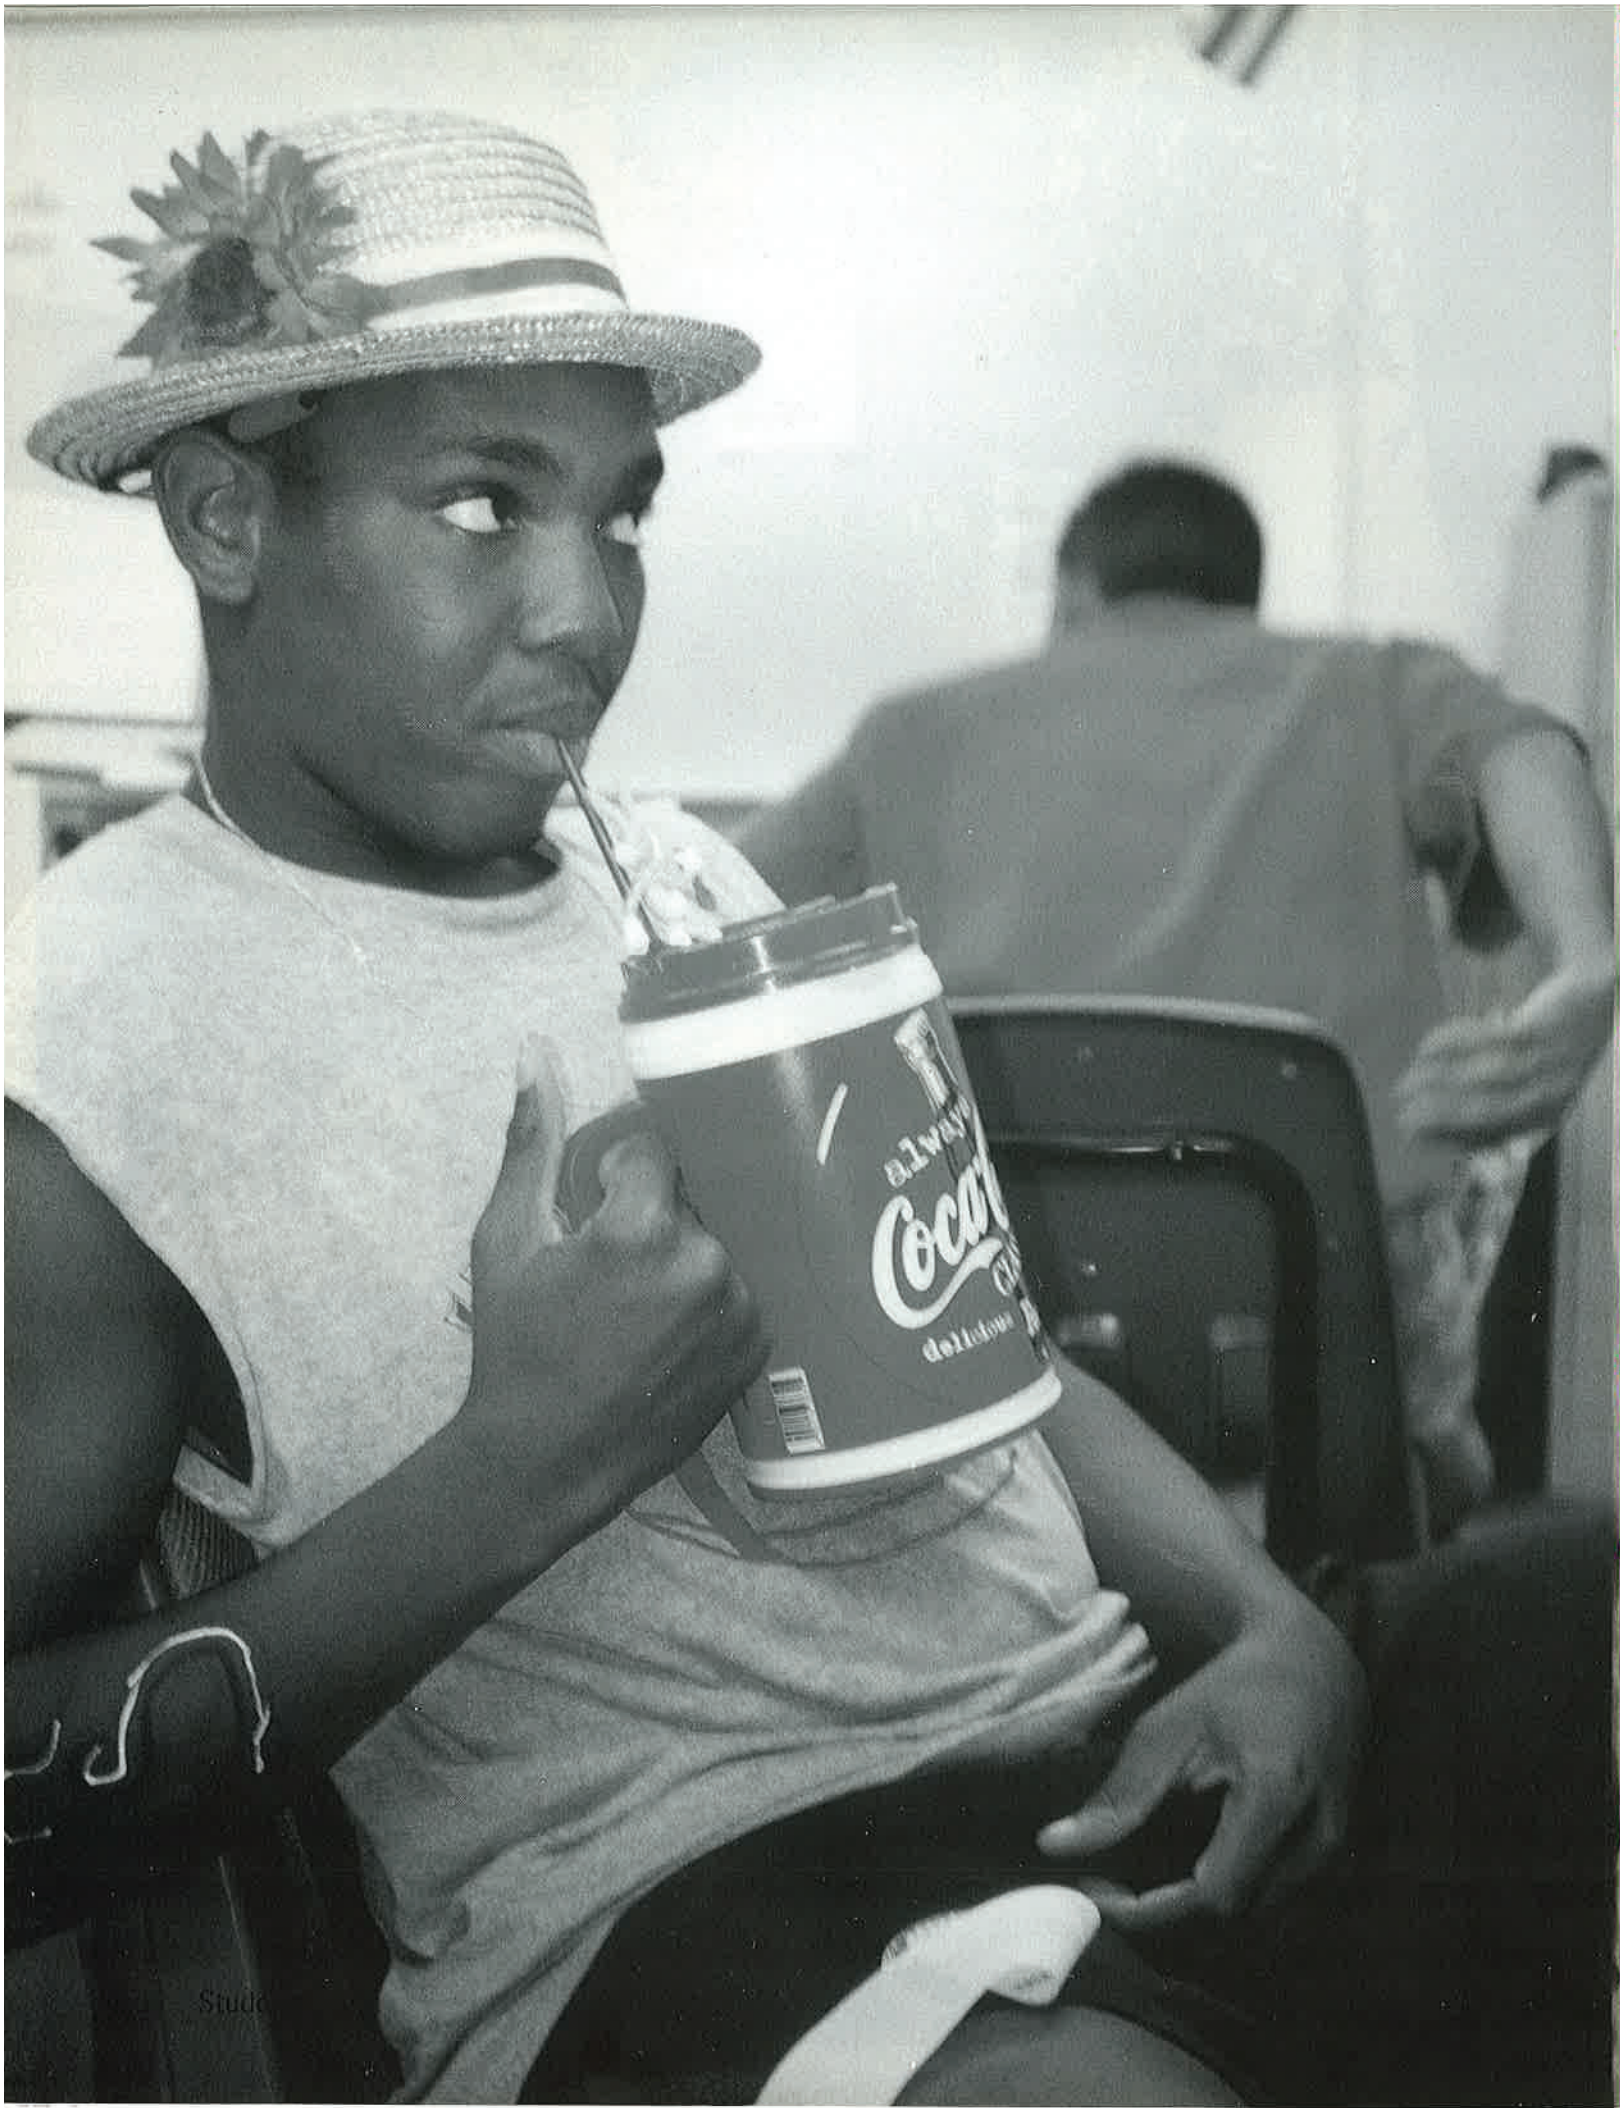

Welcome to the first page of our last yearbook of the millennium. It has been a milestone indeed, not only for the yearbook staff, but for students, sports and teachers alike. You may be wondering, what is a milestone? It could mean different things for different people. For seniors, its graduation; for juniors their first prom; sophomores; a drivers's license, and freshmen, a new beginning.

A milestone is a significant event in a person's life. It is something that is remembered for years to come and by which other events in life are measured. High school is full of many milestones and the year 1999, in itself, is a milestone for everyone because it is the last year of the century and millennium.

With junior, George Smith's unfortunate pre-season football injury, strong rains during homecoming week caused by tropical storm, "Mitch," and witnessing many high school tragedies around the country, learning to cope with hardships this year has been a milestone for all. But along with the hardships, have come many victories including cross country's fourth consecutive district championship, Boy's basketball second consecutive district championship, and Girls' track district championship.

As we find ourselves on the verge of the 22nd century, we can expect many more milestones. It can be said that this is the first step of a thousand miles.....

"Trends change because people change and people change because the media affects them."

Katherine Brown, 12

"The new millennium will bring with it big changes and excitement. It will be neat to write '2000' "

Mr. Damon Jones, teacher/coach

"Having a driver's licence affects you because you have to be more aware of other people and other people have to be more aware of you."

Student Life

School Spirit

Show It!!!

Senior parades, pep rallies, and going to the sport games are ways you can show your school spirit. Let it roar through the school. What's a school without it. Be a part of showing others what Immokalee High School is all about.

Go Big Red! Go, Indians!, you'll hear these and many more chants when you walk the halls. Spirit can be felt throughout the school. This is a part of being a mighty indian. Show your fellow classmates, you have what it takes. Class vs. Class competition always gets the students rallied up.

Be a part of your school. Show your spirit! Be a Mighty Indian! I am going to leave you with this chant, take it to heart. Give me a G! Give me an O! Go! Give me an I! Give me a N! Give me a D! Give me a I! Give me an A! Give me a N! Give me a S! Indians!

Go Indians!

Senior Chris Plunkett, rides his three wheeler in the senior parade. Every senior tries to participate in any way possible.

The school mascot shows off our school colors. Red and white, fight, fight, fight!!!

Pep rallies are the few opportunities where you can be loud and not get into trouble. Seniors Rosa Viduarri and Alidia Alviar make sure they sit right next to each other to have fun and talk.

It's An Indian World After All!

A Disney theme to remember !

All of the things you do here, you will always remember Homecoming week. With all the crazy student activities going on and even the teacher involvement, this is definitely a week to cherish. We went from crazy games to dancing the night away, but we didn't care who won the class competitions or the football games. We were glad this Homecoming week was successful beyond wins and losses.

We were also glad to have junior, George Smith back for Homecoming. One of our days during Homecoming week was called George Smith Day. Homecoming is not a thing to miss. It is a time to really show your school pride, and also a time to show your crazy side. This year, it brought out the Disney child in all of us. It really was "An Indian world after all!"

A group of seniors pose in front of their class board. Again the seniors were the overall homecoming winners for their efforts during all of the homecoming events.

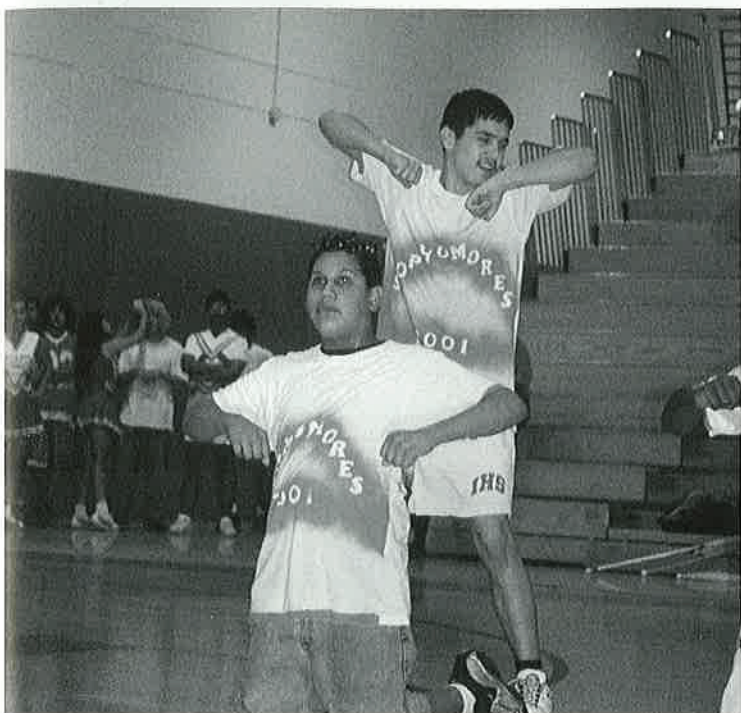

Sophomore Amie Raulerson shows her class support as she stands by their board. She was a big help by coaching the sophomores' powderpuff cheerleaders.

Richard Gallegos, wearing his clothes for Crazy Day and a friend, pose in front of their class board. The juniors gave the seniors a real challenge this year.

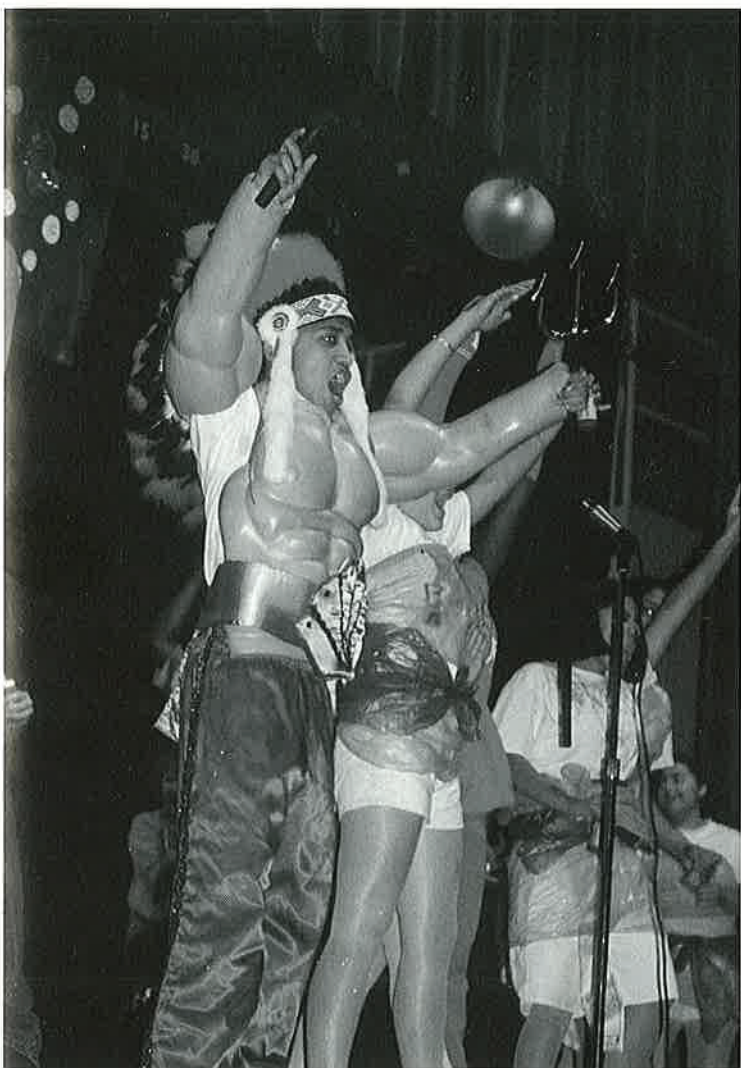

Here, the Freshmen board stands unguarded, but don't be mistaken about their level of participation this year. They came on strong this year with the support of their spirited sponsors.

This year the sophomore class gave a surprising performance during the powder puff cheerleading event. J.D. Norman, top, and Ray Reyna, bottom, were outstanding--ensuring 1st place.

After George Smith's unfortunate accident he is welcomed back to school with opened arms. Everyone is so glad to see that he is still the same cheerful person.

Seniors, Ito Montanez, Jorge Cardenas, and Marisol Herrera beat the indian drum. It's a senior tradition to take turns beating the drum throughout the school day.

Learning the ropes, freshmen Miranda Campos and Zach Holloway compete in the whip cream hairdress competition. This is one of the many events during Indian Insanity which requires true skill.

During his class skit, junior Richard Gallegos plays an indian king. This is just one of the many activities he was involved in during Homecoming week.

Homecoming 1998

The halls were filled with candidates passing out their flyers or other souvenirs.. Saying Vote For.... You could hear this throughout the week. Everyone was anxious to see who the winners were. It would be like this till the actual night. Here is a glimpse of the winners and two surprising guests.

Mr. Calvalous proudly sings the national anthem at the 98-99 Homecoming. Showing off his head band to prove his pride.

And the winners are Chevas Marshall and Titi Fortin. Congratulations! to our Homecoming king and queen.

Returning from last year is our 97-98 king and queen. Reliving the moment are Jesus Adame and Misty Harris-Allen.

Say cheese! Our queen candidates smile for the camera while waiting to be presented.

Its A Small World after all was the Homecoming theme for 98-99. We had 2 special visitors representing Walt Disney.

Senior Jeni Sharpe joyfully tries to start a water fight with fellow classmate Isabel Soliz. Isabel never wins so she tried to get away.

Sophomores Louisa Calixte, Tawana Cochran, and Yvinia Rozard eat some Mc Donald's ice cream on a Saturday morning. "We were just chilling at Mc Donald's [having] a free Mc Flurry," said Louisa.

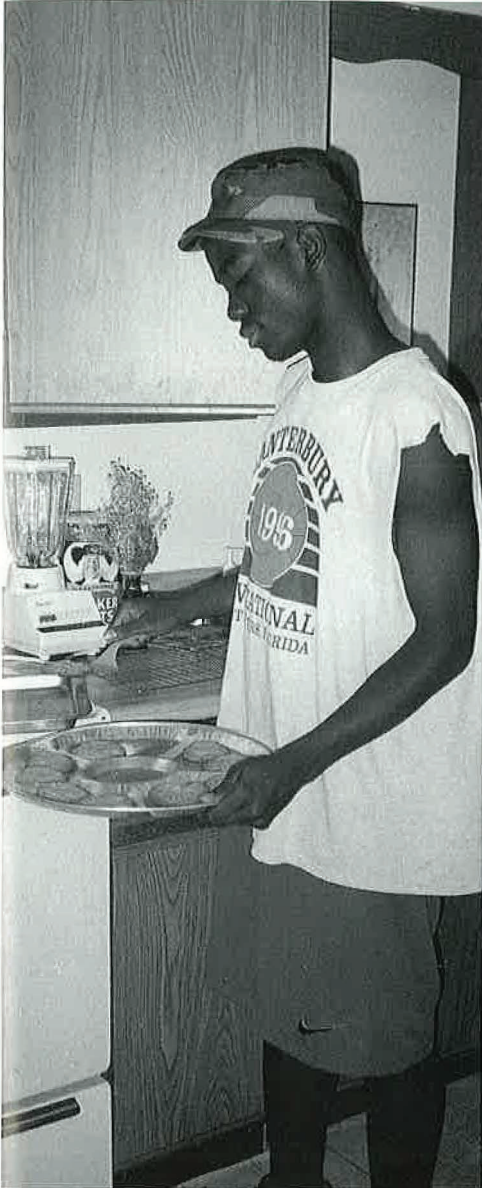

Many bandmembers lose some of their weekend time to band practice. Here William Diaz, Rey Reyna, Porche Shaw, and Nick Gamez spend time rehearsing their music and their moves on the practice field.

ANY PLANS FOR THE WEEKEND?

Junior Waner Bazile looks at his freshly baked cookies with pride. Waner, did you share with your friends, or did you eat them all yourself?

Weekends are what everyone looks forward to. Motivation is what gets them up on Monday morning, so they can get to the weekend again. When asked what is good about weekends, freshman Heather Locke replied, "Not having to wake up early to catch the bus." People who work, go to school, or just don't do anything, look forward to having fun on the weekends. No one can have fun like students!

Finally, Friday is here. And what do students go to on a Friday night? At the football game is where you can find most students yelling and cheering their hearts out! Other students attend movies, watching the latest comedies and action-packed films. Like sophomore Nicholas Gamez said, "I like going to the football games and movies." It's some of the many things students can do, especially after five hard days of work at school.

"My favorite day of the weekend is Saturday, because I still have one more free day to go," said senior Daphne Clark. Some kids like to spend the whole day relaxing and catching up on their rest. Saturday can be spent doing many things.

Sunday is a gospel day for many. "I go to church because it brings me closer to my religion in God," said Manuel Garcia. After attending service, they visit relatives and have a wonderful Sunday supper. It's a day of learning and expressing love to one another.

"If I had my way, weekends would be Monday through Friday, and school Saturday and Sunday," said Ivan Balaez. Weekend is a time to party and have fun. It gives you a break and you can be yourself. Where would students be without weekends?

"If I had my way, weekends would be Monday through Friday, and school Saturday and Sunday."

Looking at her organizer is sophomore Laura Gutierrez. It helps her keep on track with her schedule.

The 70's are back-- the wide-leg pants, and the thick-heeled shoes! Senior Izanagi Sgavino doesn't stay out of the style.

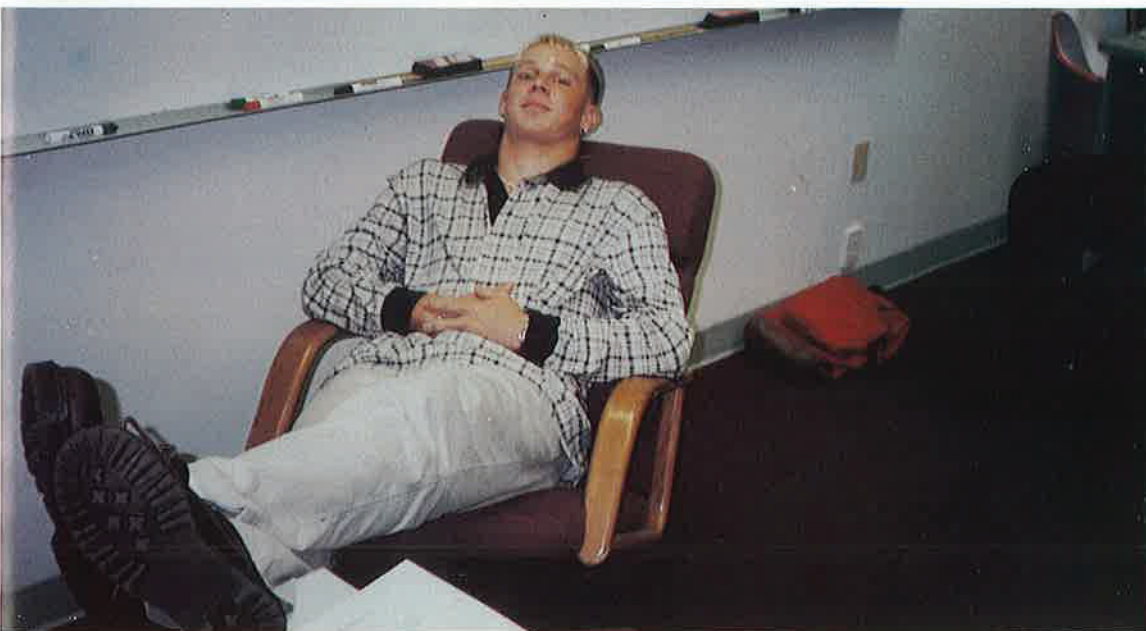

Putting the Gatorade in her backpack after school is junior Elva Quintero. The sports beverage was popular among the majority of students.

Coming out of the boys' restroom is Johnson Felusn. "I like Tommy Hilfiger because I like how it's made, and it's also well-known in school," he said.

Moon shoes, made popular by the Spice Girls are the new trend for girls. "I like them because they make me feel important and taller," said Katherine Brown.

What's

What do bell-bottoms, clogs, and planners tell you? They are things that we utilized quite often this year. Yes, these things and more are a part of our current trend.

Bell-bottoms and clogs were originated in disco times. (Something our parents used when they were young.) The fashion items have returned to in the nineties. Many students have gone wild wearing them. (I guess mom and dad did have style.)

Planners are also a widespread product among the students, teachers, and whoever feels they need to plan ahead. Students use planners for writing down assignments, getting phone numbers, and for many other different purposes. Teachers use planners for phone numbers, upcoming events, and tasks needing completion.

Many students were asked what they thought was "in". There was a different opinion from each student. One student, Marianna Herrera, said she thought that "thick shoes (Spice Girl-style shoes) are in.

From planners to bell-bottoms and clogs, students are set to go anywhere, call anyone, wear anything, and just be comfortable in and out of the classroom.

Resting during drafting class is senior Ryan Massey. Many students opted for khakis in place of jeans.

In?

Giving customers their food is one of the many duties of senior Chris Hernandez. Fast food restaurants are popular places for students to get jobs.

Show me the MONEY!

Cash, dollars, cents, dinero, peso, loot, bread, dough, a slab, G's, and notes--all familiar terms of money. When students want money, they get a J. O. B., the number one resource of having your own money.

Where can students find a job? Community companies like Winn Dixie, McDonalds, Burger King, and the newest Rib City proudly makes high school students very welcome as employees. Although there is a great variety of student occupations, most seem to involve cooking, cleaning, cashiering and caring. "I cook, clean, help receive money, and serve food to help with the rent and all the bills," said junior Perla Herrera, an employee at Las Perlas. Sophomore Nicholas Gamez does janitorial work on campus after school (a job provided through the Migrant Program). "To earn extra money is why I work. I save some of it and spend some of it to go out with my friends."

Although jobs provide many benefits, there are downsides to having to work. For example, work schedules can interfere with students' social lives. Senior Merencia Prelus agreed, "Some days I have practices or activities I am scheduled to work."

Whether working in the fields, a restaurant, convenience store, or center for a necessity or want, a job takes some time out of students' personal life. But by setting priorities first, using time management, and organizational skills, a job can get a student just what he or she wants and needs.

Senior Solange Michel works diligently on the computer. She is registering patients on a Saturday morning at the Urgent Care Center.

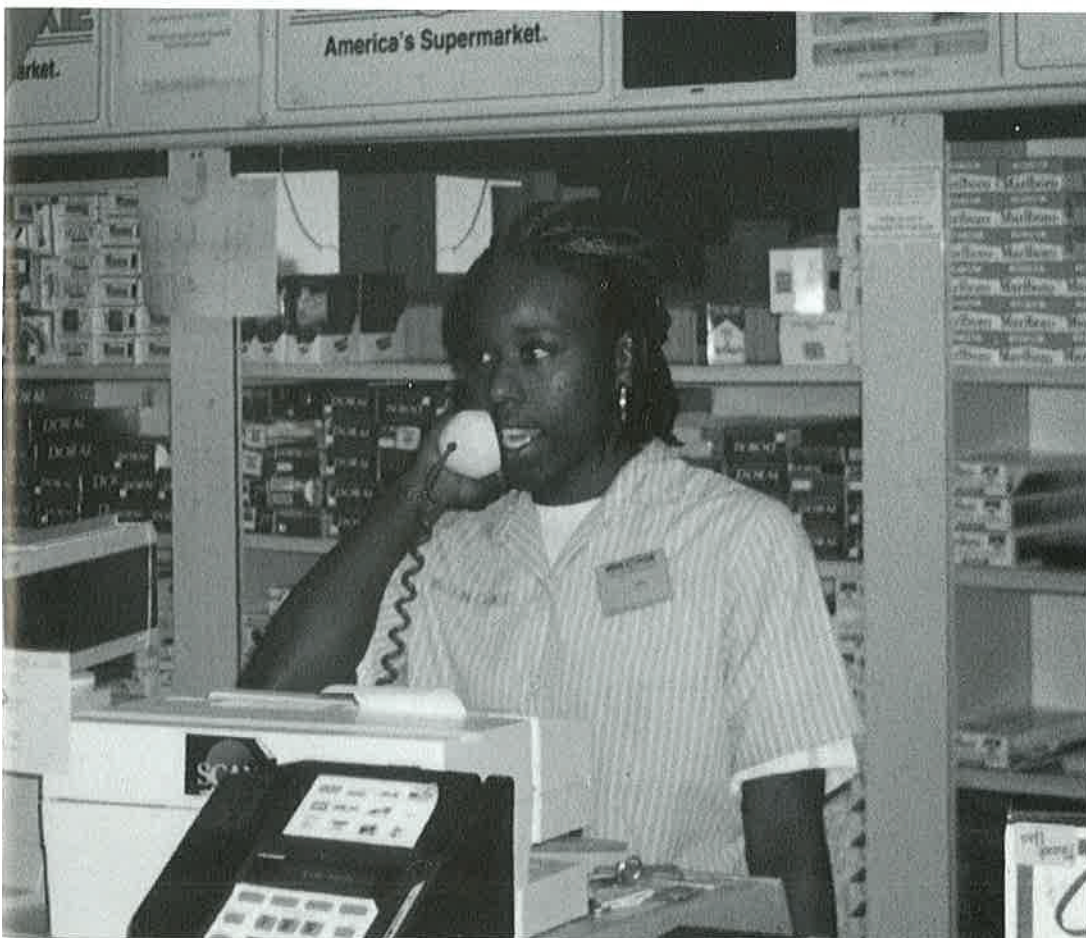

Sunday evening, junior Richard Montez is busy working at the local Winn-Dixie. "It's pretty fun, sometimes, except when it's time to go get carts," he said.

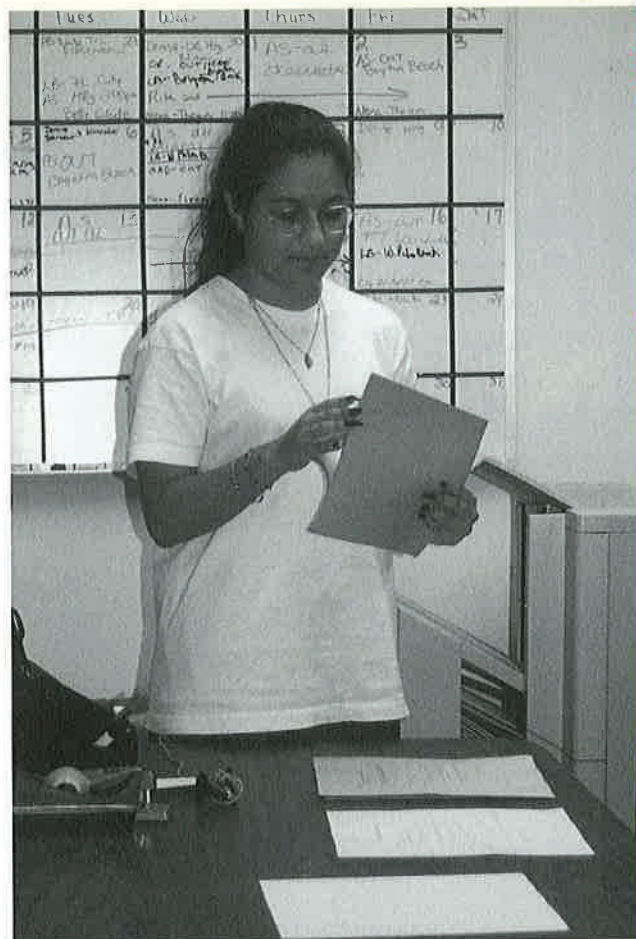

"It's fun. I get to be known around the community," senior Rigo Villa said about his job. He works at Leal's Tire Shop every day except Sunday.

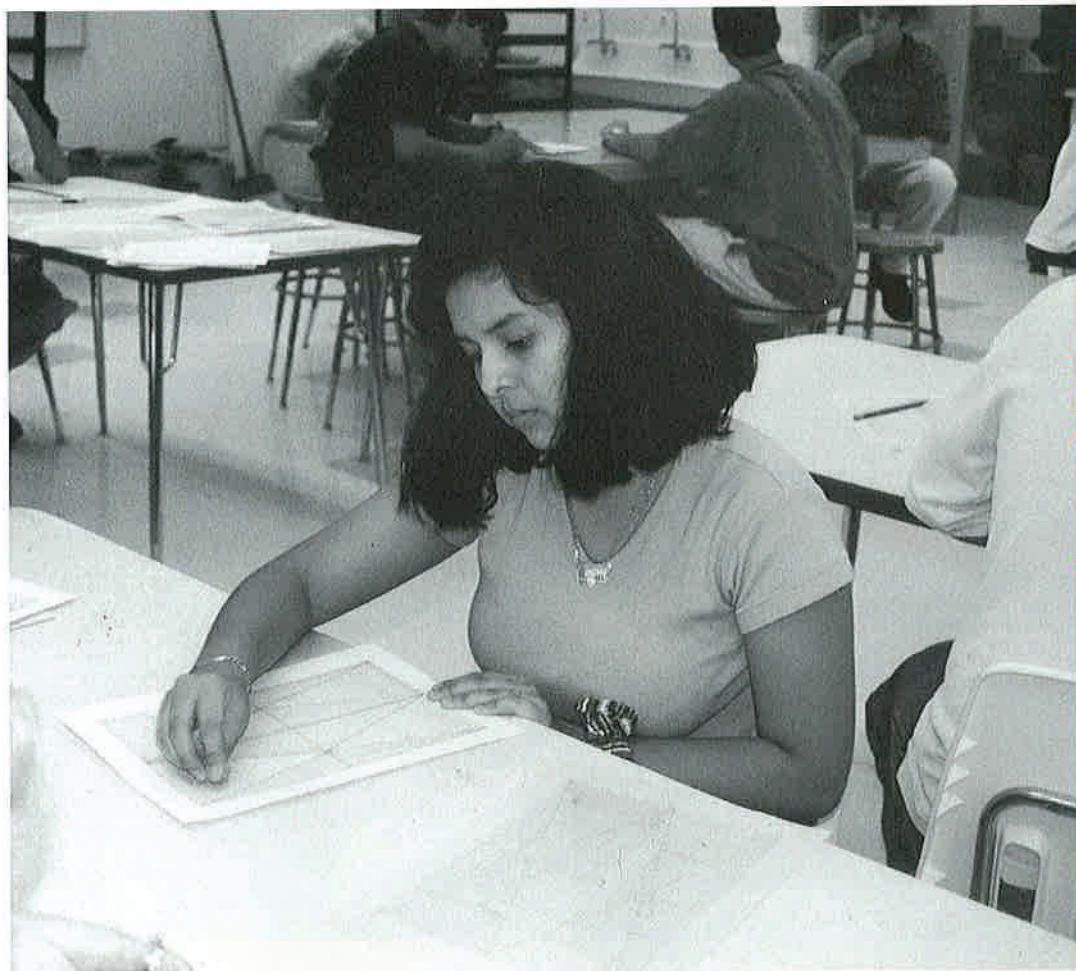

On a Saturday afternoon senior Sannestine Fortin finds herself working at the local supermarket, Winn-Dixie. Some of her duties are to attend to the phone and help the customers. Many high school students work as cashiers.

Counting papers at Florida Rural Legal Services is Vicky Ramos. This was one of the afterschool jobs provided by the migrant program to help students with financial problems.

Getting information about her attendance is senior Cristie Garcia. "I go to Virginia during the summer to help my grandma with the payroll," she said.

Erasing her drawing is sophomore Cynthia Lemos. "I travel during the summer to Georgia because I have to go to work in the fields with my parents," she said.

Not Only for the Birds

Students Migrate From Place to Place

On her way to her job is sophomore Rosa Gonzales. Transportation is given by the migrant program to take their workers to the work sites.

What is a migrant? A migrant is defined in the Webster's Dictionary as a person who is constantly moving to find work. There are many migrant students in our community, some of which are involved in the migrant program run by Mr. Juan Medina and Mrs. Sylvia Mendoza.

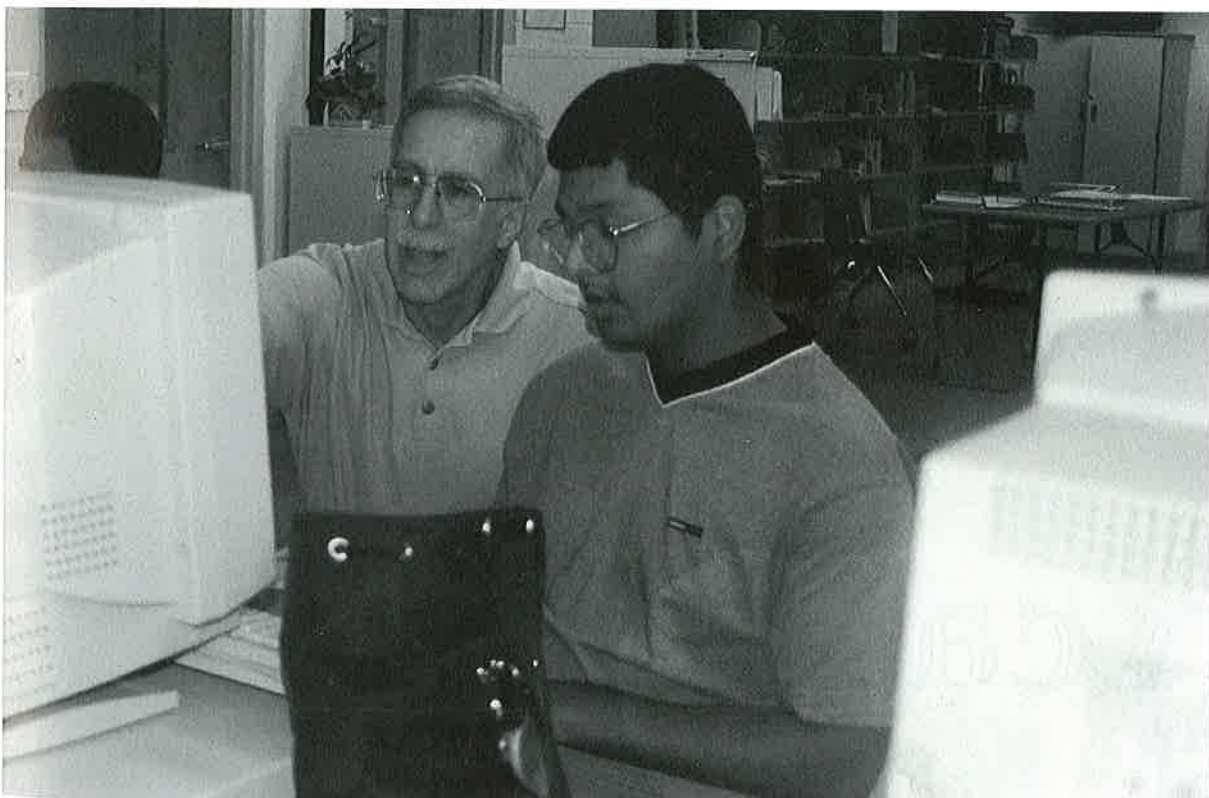

Migrant students have to move around frequently. Many families are split, because some will go up north to work while the rest of the family stays behind. Moving may affect the family tremendously, but in freshmen Jorge Esperza's family, that's not the case. He said, "It doesn't because we've got a tight family. Man, that's cool."

Many students like the traveling, moving from school to school, meeting new people, and seeing other places. Freshman Elizabeth Cortez said, "I like it, but it's weird because if it's in the first or second week [of school], the students look at you like, 'Hello, school started a week ago, you're late! Duh!'" Others such as junior Maria Salazar have a different opinion. She said, "I hate it. I'd rather stay in one place."

Being a migrant has its advantages because migrant students get a chance to see other schools and their systems. They also have a disadvantage--missing out on the start of the school year.

Helping one of his students is Mr. Jacob Lieb. "My parents are the only ones that travel during the summer to work, but I'm still considered a migrant," said senior Danny Campos.

Academics

For the LOVE of It

It's about a poetry project every year and literature books too heavy to haul around campus without falling over. It's about getting over the fear of speaking or performing for an audience and learning new words every week. Yes, it's that wonderful subject of Language Arts.

The English department covered a variety of courses from English I-IV to drama, advanced reading, journalism, and T.V. production. Some of these classes students either completely love or hate. Regardless of how students feel, everyone is required to take four years of English. The remaining English courses are optional electives.

English electives are taken for fun or for self-improvement. Many students in drama, yearbook, or T.V. production were in the class because it was fun for them. "It's fun because you can express yourself without feeling stupid," said drama student, Marisol Herrera.

Other students took English electives such as advanced reading to help raise their ACT scores. For example, many of the varsity football players found themselves in Mrs. Elaine Possell's advanced reading/ACT prep class where they were required to read four hundred pages per marking period, study and learn a list of vocabulary words every week, in addition to practicing for the ACT test.

The T.V. production class began to broadcast the daily announcements on live television. Every television set in the building tuned in to WIHS news during homeroom to support T.V. production students. Mr. Franklin Senecharles took the responsibility of running the show. "At first, it was [hard] because the students did not know and my knowledge was not so good; but, as the time passed, we got more comfortable with it," he said.

Whether you love or hate the courses, there is no way around them. English is one of the core classes students have to take to graduate; but, signing up for interesting English electives can alleviate some of the pressure.

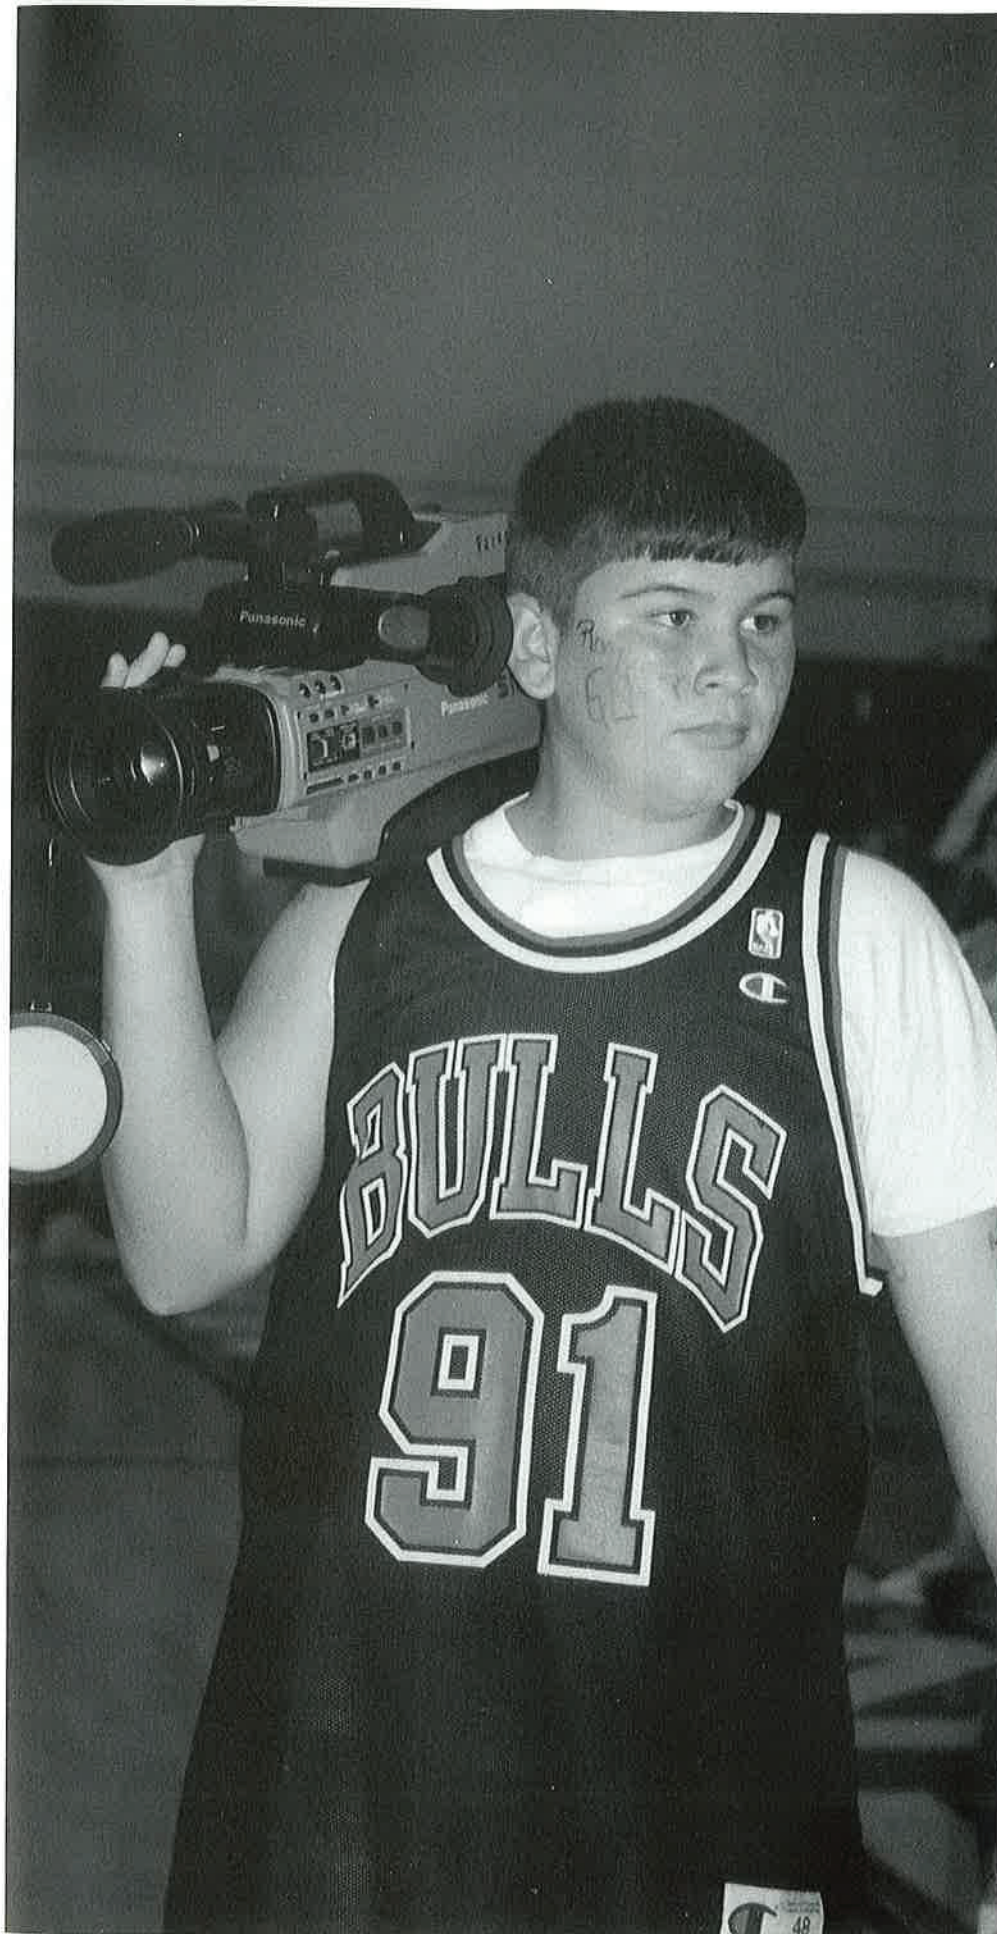

During Ms. Julie Williams' 10th grade English class, sophomore Alicia Mireles gets out the markers to prepare for the Florida Writes. Highlighting the different parts of an essay helps students learn and understand which sentence goes where.

Newcomer Lisa Ramos experiences the stressful task of being a journalism member. Journalism helps you understand the reasons for being organized and having good time management.

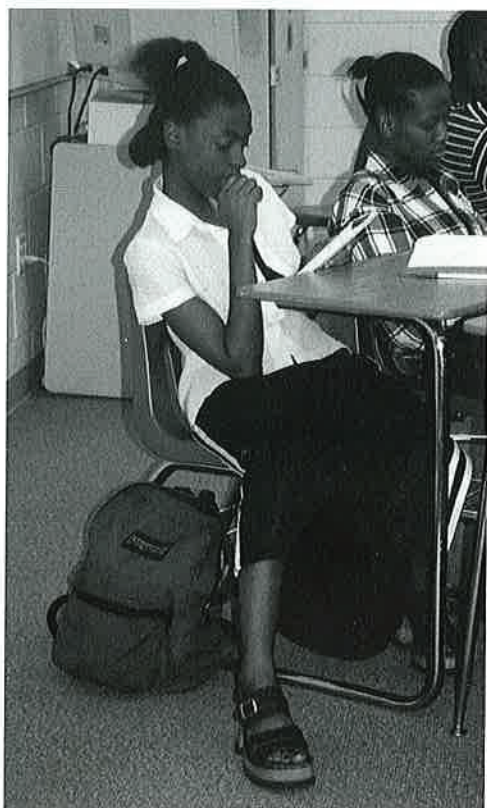

During the first pep-rally, drama student Justin Terry surveys Indian territory. "I was chillin' and watching the babes. I love America," exclaimed Justin.

Freshman Miguel Benavides anticipates video worthy events during the pep-rally. WIHS news was a new program that many students were involved in.

In Ms. Julie Williams' class, senior Yoshi Smith concentrates on reading a sports book. Reading something that is interesting helps make reading more fun.

Finding a comfortable way to sit at a desk is Monique St. Louis. Reading can give you a chance to escape all the noise throughout the school day.

Practicing for a performance is sophomore Angela Guerrero. "I like being a color guard member because it's fun, but it's hard work."

Freshman Kevin Richards is playing his part during jazz band class. "I like playing in front of an audience because it's fun," said Kevin.

The band makes a spectacular performance with the help of Maggie Delarosa and Frankie Bastien. "Being drum major is awesome. It comes with its ups and downs, but [being] in front of an audience is the best part," said Maggie.

The Other Language

Music speaks to us in a different language--not just with words, but with rhythm and soul. The band, chorus, and orchestra speak to us with their instruments or voices, and the flag line students with their moves. Behind every piece of music there is a story that wants to be told. With the help of Mr. Stephen Detjen and Mr. Franco Cevallos these students will help us hear it. "We are going to be the best we can be this year," said Mr. Detjen.

The marching band works hard every other day to sound their best and pass along great music--even if this means practicing out on the hot scorching sun or after school. "The worst thing about band is practicing out in the hot sun," said junior Devon Deloach.

Their sound and spirit is heard at every football game, pep rally, and other social events. With their new instructors the students plan to be just as great as in the years before. "Band is fun and enjoying," commented freshmen Cherilyn Vlieret. The flagline students do the dances and routines that go with the music the band is playing. They are the ones that can be forgotten sometimes, but are just as important. "It's fun to be in flagline because I dance and support the I.H.S. band," said Jeanine Charles.

Another music group is the choir. Many students get in the class because they want to relax and do what they love. "I have fun in this class everyday. I learn many new things I didn't know before," commented senior Mejjynne Pierre. The orchestra may be small, but it has a lot of rhythm to it. The students play all sorts of classical music to a nice tempo.

The other language can be heard throughout the music department. The marching band, chorus, and the orchestra are just three of the many varieties of ways to work with music. There are many other classes students can take if interested in playing music. With practice, hard work, and determination this language will not go unspoken.

During jazz band, senior Daphne Clark prepares herself to finger the keys for a new tune. "I love band and it has a positive effect on my life," said Daphne.

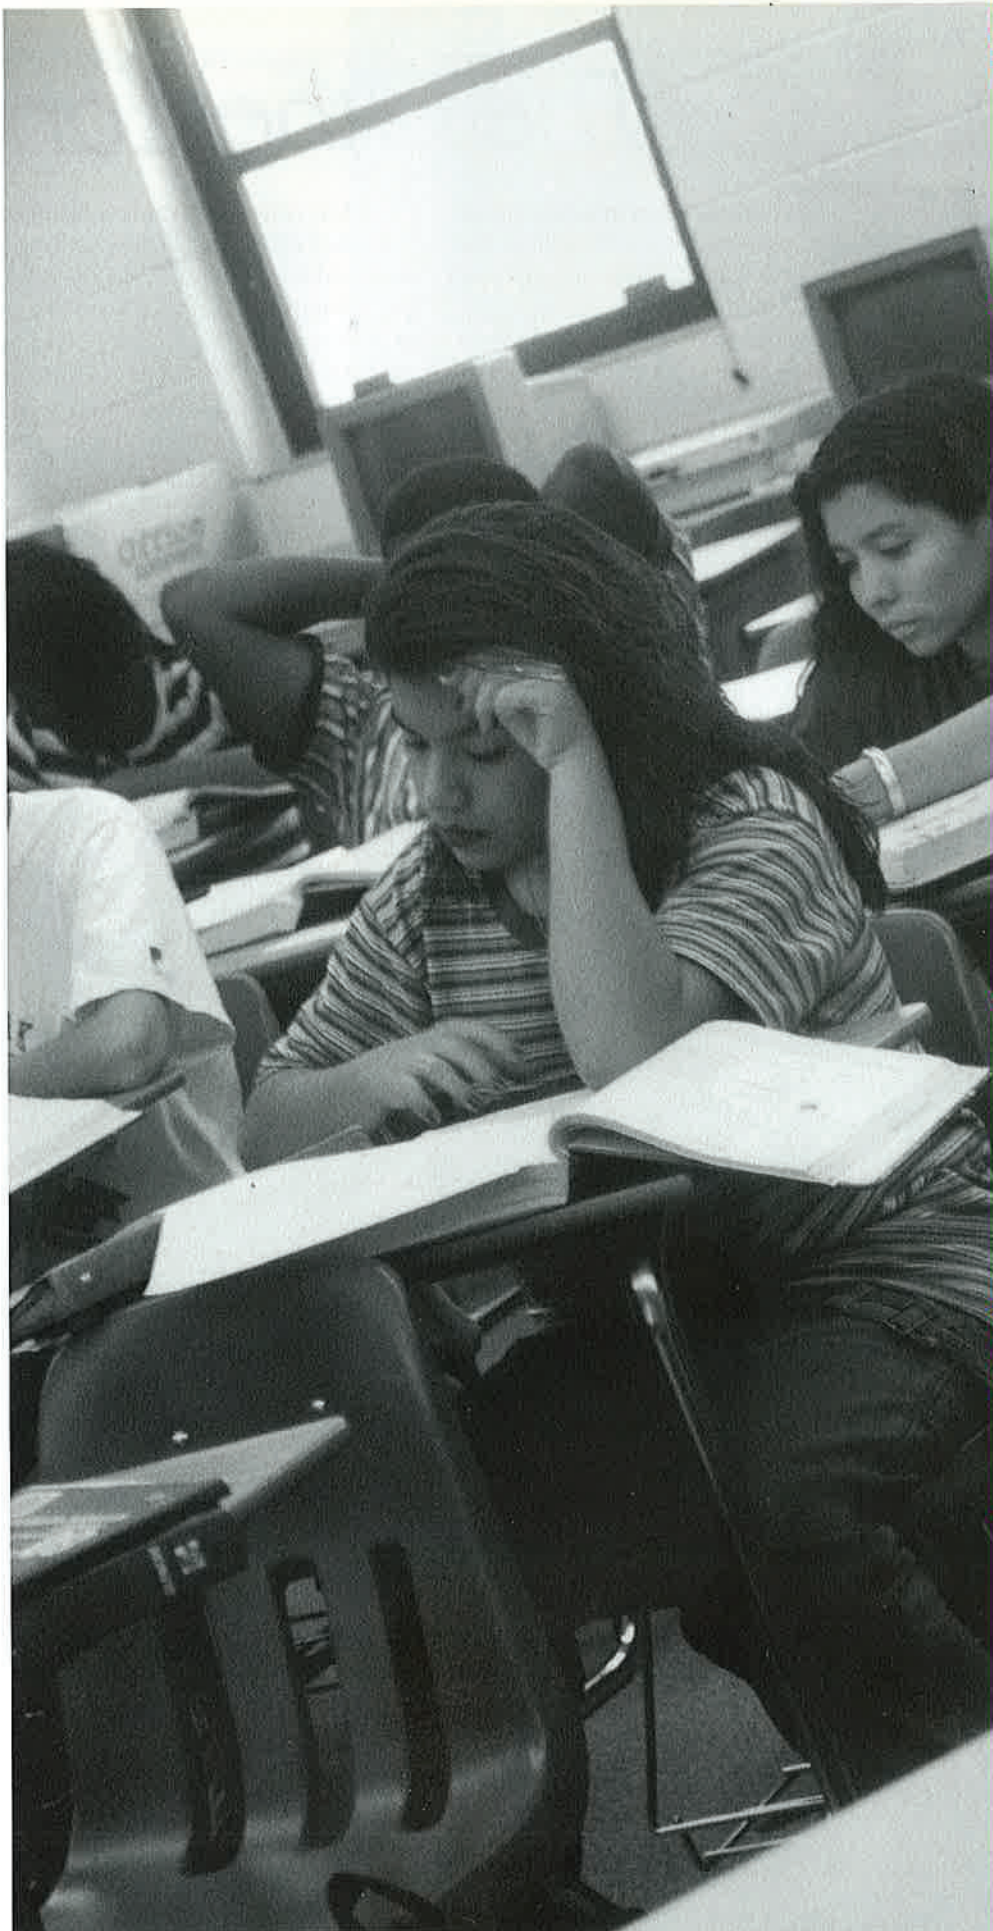

In their positions, the chorus is ready to sing a song. The theme song of Titanic is just one of the many songs that they sing.

Going over last night's Algebra II homework is Martha Jose. The class was intended to help students learn to solve real world problems. "Algebra II makes me think," said Martha.

Computers are a major factor in everyday life. Senior Julio Felipe said, "I like keyboarding class because it will help me in the future."

This senior, Sadrac Saimvilus, focuses on the computer screen. "I love to play around with the computers," he said.

Junior Joselyn Jocurin easily works out her homework problems in math class. "To succeed in math, you have to take one step at a time; for example, I'm taking it day by day--now I have SUCCEDED!"

Lifelong Skills

You are probably wondering what math and computers have in common. Much, if you can believe it. Math is the subject that you are going to have to use for the rest of your life. Yes, that long. It doesn't matter what profession you are going to get in--math is going to be there. Computers are the same way. As the year 2000 draws nearer, knowing about computers and how they work is an important skill that every student should have.

To many students, math is the hardest subject to learn. Students have to learn many formulas, equations, rules, and proofs. From Pre-Algebra to Pre-Cal, students are battling it out with the formulas and equations. "Word problems are the hardest because the words for the operations are hard to understand," said sophomore Delia Flores. Teachers try their best to teach this thing they call math. "Pre-Cal is the hardest subject of math that I teach. This is so because the concepts are difficult to get across in the student's head," commented Mr. Wayne Pringle. Many students wish they could change parts of the math curriculum. "I would change geometry. Not just parts, but the whole thing itself," said senior Becky Beauge.

In the years to come computers will be the main source of communication in many parts of the world. "Taking a business class prepares students for college and [they] gain skills to succeed in life," said Mr. Ed Forsell. Many people agree with this. The business elective is one of the most popular ones in school. "I took this class because I need it for college and I don't know anything about computers," commented senior Nicolas Rodriguez.

Senior Victoria Garcia works at Practical Keyboarding. "If you know how to type, the class is easy."

Do you want skills that will help you throughout your life? Then take the business courses and try your best in math. You will be glad you did. Let these classes help you--not haunt you.

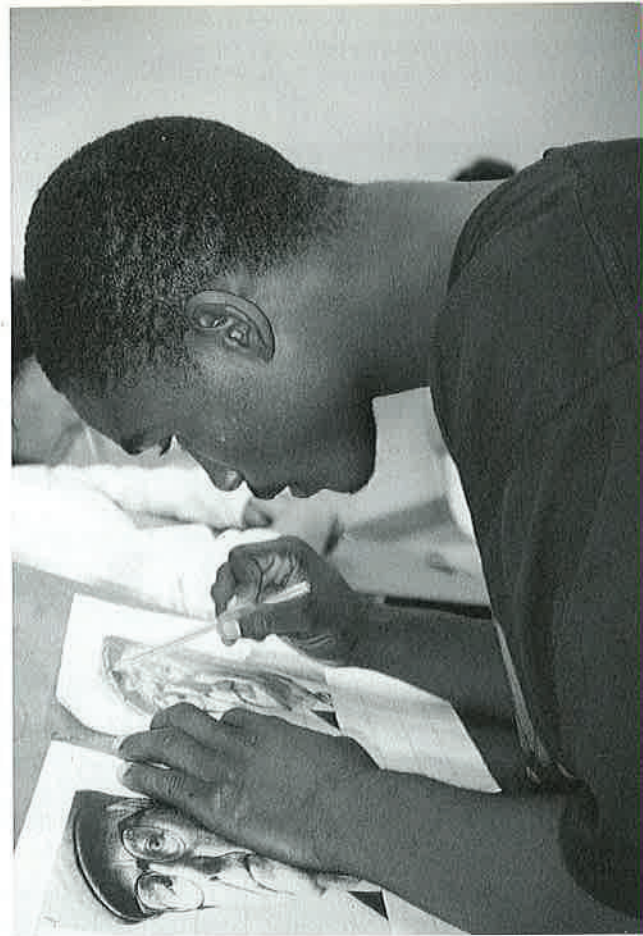

During class, junior Maria Mendoza works her problems out with a graphing calculator. "Math is my favorite subject," said Maria.

Computer knowledge came in handy for students like senior Lytrill Burgess. She works on her drafting assignment.

Freshman Cecelia Brueggen waits hungrily while she finishes her pancakes. Cooking is something she does often in Culinary Arts.

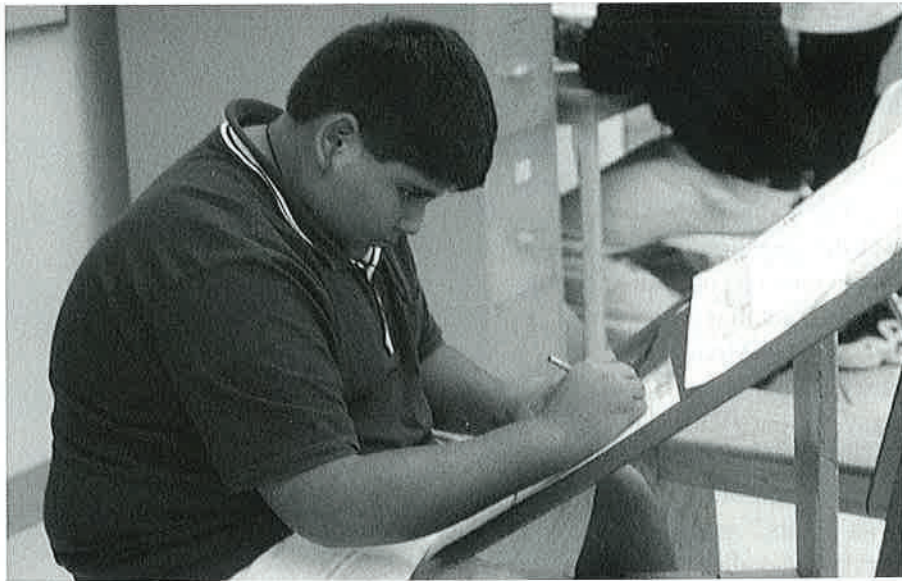

During Dr. Harris's ceramics class, Cesar Muniz works on a project. "It takes a lot of effort and patience to create a pot of clay," said Cesar.

Seniors Joanna Campbell and Ezequiel Mendoza work quietly while making ceramic pots. "Ceramics is very fun. It makes me do facial impressions" said Joanna.

For some students, like Jeanine Charles, cooking can be fun. "Being in this class will help me when I get older and have a family," said Jeanine.

Hands-on Learning

Manual labor usually brings to mind a strenuous job, such as engineering or farmworking, where the use of the hands is a must. But, have you ever associated this term with school classes? School assignments can be a handful, especially when it comes to art and home economics classes.

Art is like manual labor because students use their hands to create things. Art gives students the chance to express themselves through work and creativity. Sophomore Gilberte Bastien commented, "I learned [from art] that hands can be the most important tools that you possess."

Hands also create by baking, frying, and boiling, in the culinary arts. Learning the lessons of culinary arts can be very helpful in life. Jeanine Charles said, "I'm glad [Mr. Crabtree] taught me how to cook because in the future, I will be cooking for my family." "I think [culinary arts] will prepare me for living because it teaches me how to get the best deals when shopping..." replied Cecelia Brueggen.

Art and culinary arts are two different kinds of classes with one similarity--both require the use of hands to get the work done. Whether it be mixing, drawing, measuring, or sketching, hands are always in motion. So, put your hands into overdrive and try out one of these classes.

Freshman Juan Victoria is new to IHS, but not to art. Looks like he's working hard.

Concentrating on coloring during an art class is freshman Daisy Perez. She takes the task of coloring seriously.

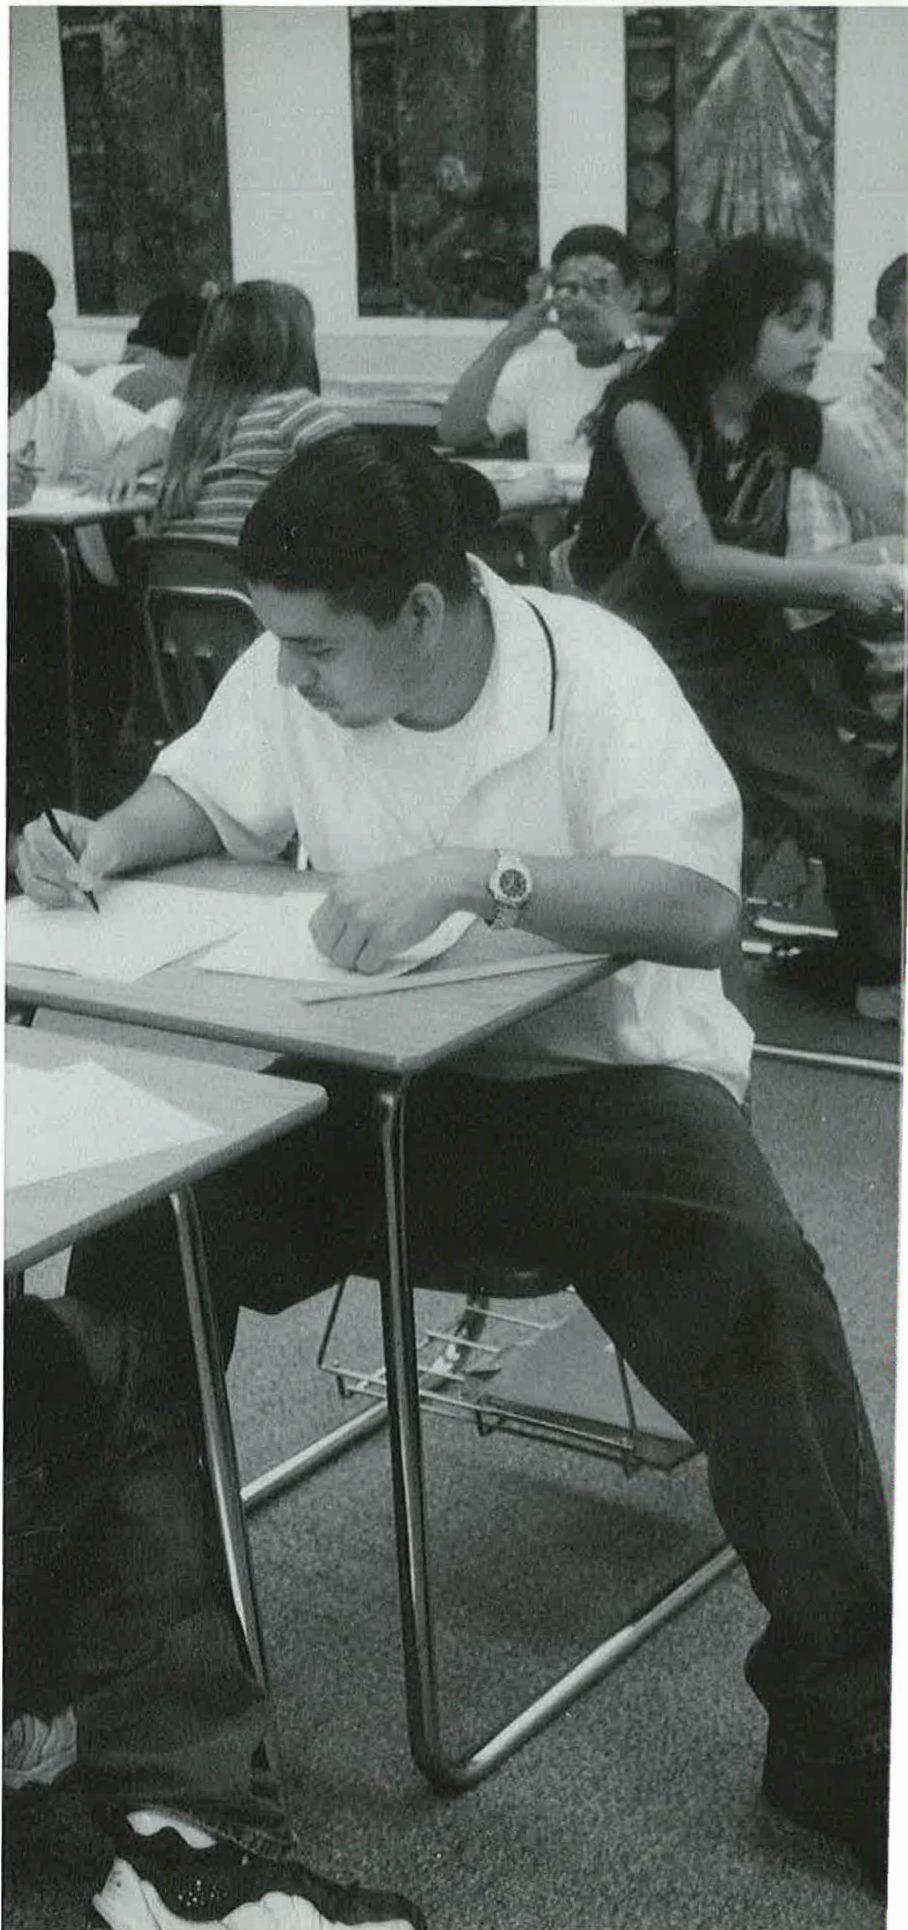

A Bit About Two Worlds

Can you think of anything more exciting than studying about atoms, cells, clouds, and electricity? Or perhaps, the cavemen, the Renaissance era, and money. Of course not. Well, maybe you can imagine, but let me tell you a bit about two worlds.

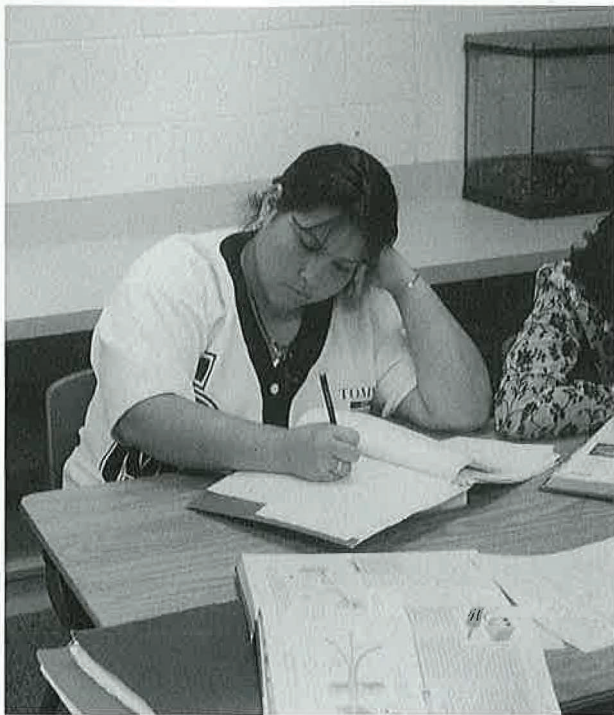

Learning science is not an easy task. From Integrated Science to Physics, students are battling it out with the different components of science world. "The hardest thing about teaching science is making students open up their imagination because [science] is not related to their direct experience," explained Mr. Bill Hilliard. An imagination, indeed, is what students must have to understand science. One can't see atoms, but they are there, if we believe. Atoms, body parts, cells, medicine, and much more is what students learn in the wonderful world of science.

Why learn about events in history, if they are in the past? This is a question many students ask. The social studies teachers try their best to answer this question in a fun and exciting way. "You have to make it come alive in order to make it interesting!" exclaimed history teacher, Mr. John Weber. Money! Money! Money! is what the students learn in Economics. How to spend it (hooray!), how to save [money], and how to make wise consumer decisions. "It's easy to learn economics because it's about how our economy is and how it will affect us as adults," said junior Fabiola Breme. Wars! Wars! that is all that happened in the past, many of you may think. But if you look deeper in the past, you will see a world of many fascinating facts that you didn't know before. From the dinosaurs to our government you can never go wrong in a social studies class.

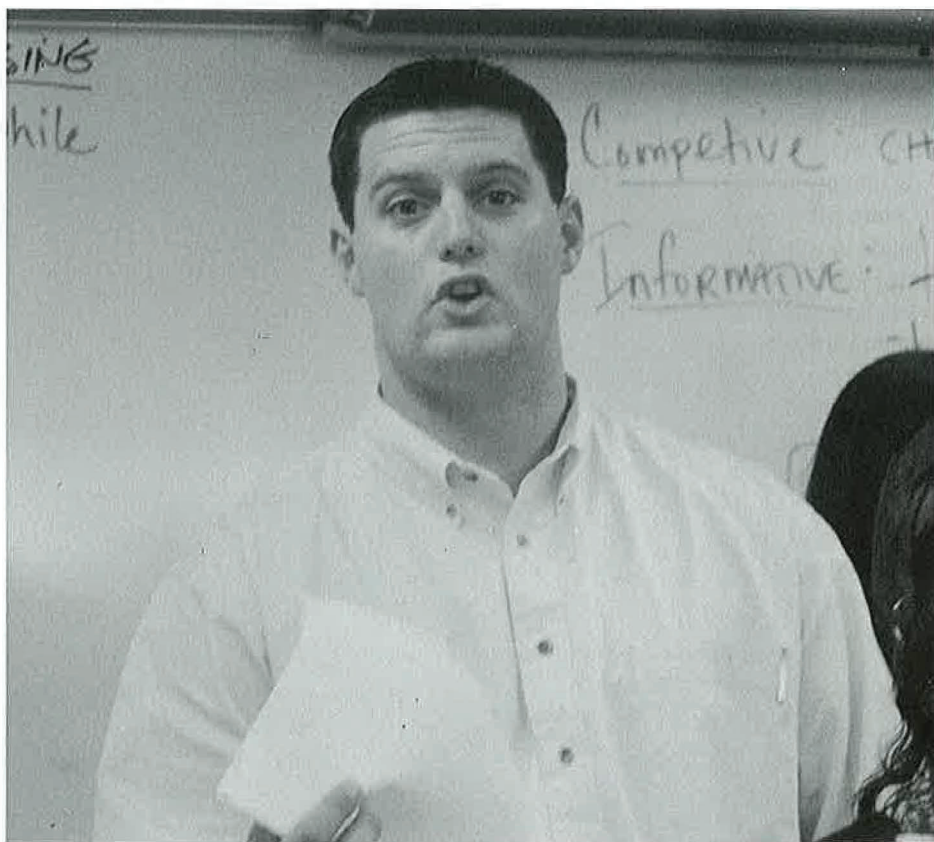

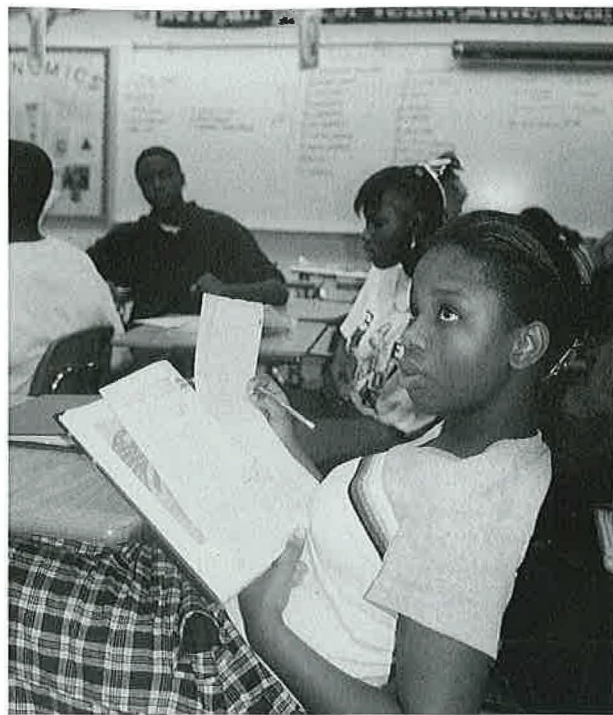

So, now can you think of anything more exciting than a science or social studies class. With an open imagination, students can see what many before them have also seen--a two separate worlds with much to offer.

During science class, Maria Cade makes sure gets all to problems completed. After words, she will take a nap.

Listening and writing notes is the best way to understand information. "Writing notes helps me keep on the info straight in my head," she said.

Caught off guard is Mr. Damon Jones. He taught a variety of social studies classes this year.

Working diligently on a class assignment is Abel Puente. Both science and social studies are required to graduate.

A Lesson in Physical Ed

Sweat, agility, tactics, strength, and power are all key factors that go into physical education, where the mind is used to learn about the capabilities and well-being of the body.

Physical education included courses such as weight training, team sports, golf, and health. Students were required to take certain courses, such as Health, in order to graduate. Other students signed up for classes simply because they enjoyed them.

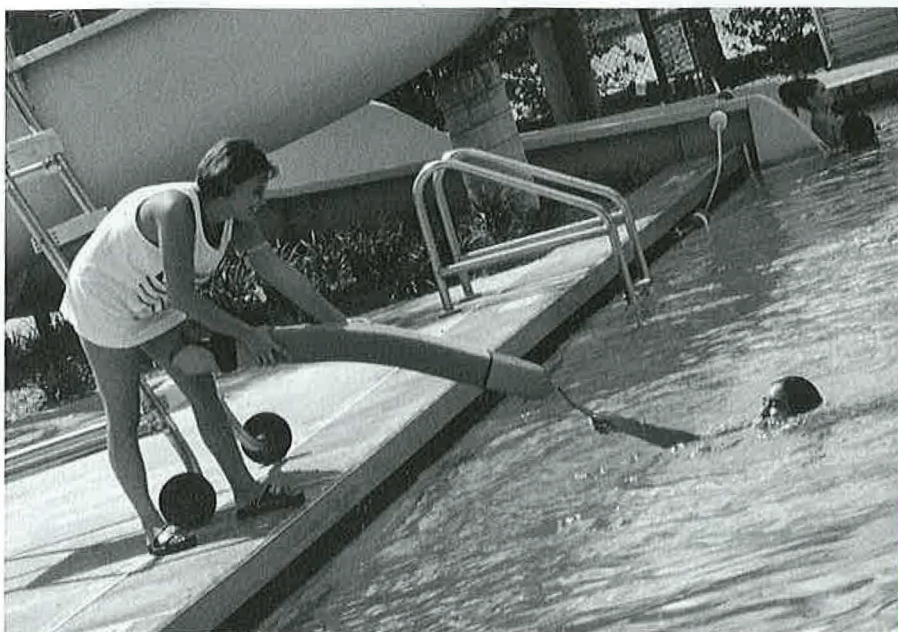

Golf was a popular new course offered. The craze for golfing was triggered by the success of the young and famous golf prodigy, Tiger Woods. Many students, such as senior Jessica Mendoza, enrolled in the class to learn about the increasingly popular sport. "I wanted to try something different, and I thought it would be fun," Mendoza said, "but it was sort of hard to hit the ball."

Not all students wanted to learn a new sport. Some joined classes to refine their skills. An example is sophomore Shelley Houston who is a swimming student. The class was held across Immokalee Drive at the Aquatic Center. "[Swimming] is even better than I expected. My swimming has improved a lot. Now I can jump off the divingboard and swim laps," said Houston.

Overall, one of the most important objectives to master in a P.E. class is the ability to work in sync with a group toward one common goal. This is a skill that can be carried off the playing field and into the classroom and real world. This skill is the focus of the course Team Sports. Joseph Suain, 10th grade, mastered this skill. He signed up to have fun while working as a team. "I work better with people now," Suain explained, then added that he liked the class so much that he would be willing to take it again.

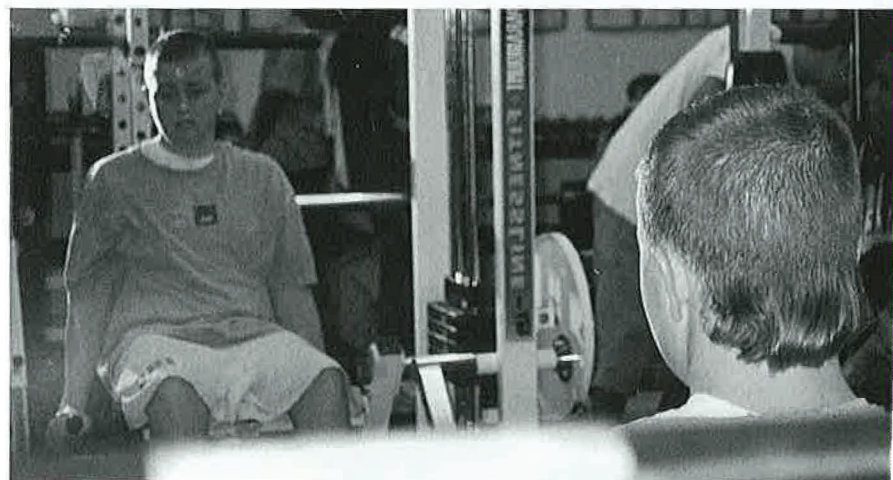

Whether students took classes to learn a new sport, refine a skill, or learn a life-long lesson about teamwork, physical education classes were very much a part of many students' schedules.

Swimming class students Casey Raley and Isabel Soliz learn the importance of class mates when learning to swim. Casey lends a helping hand to Isabel.

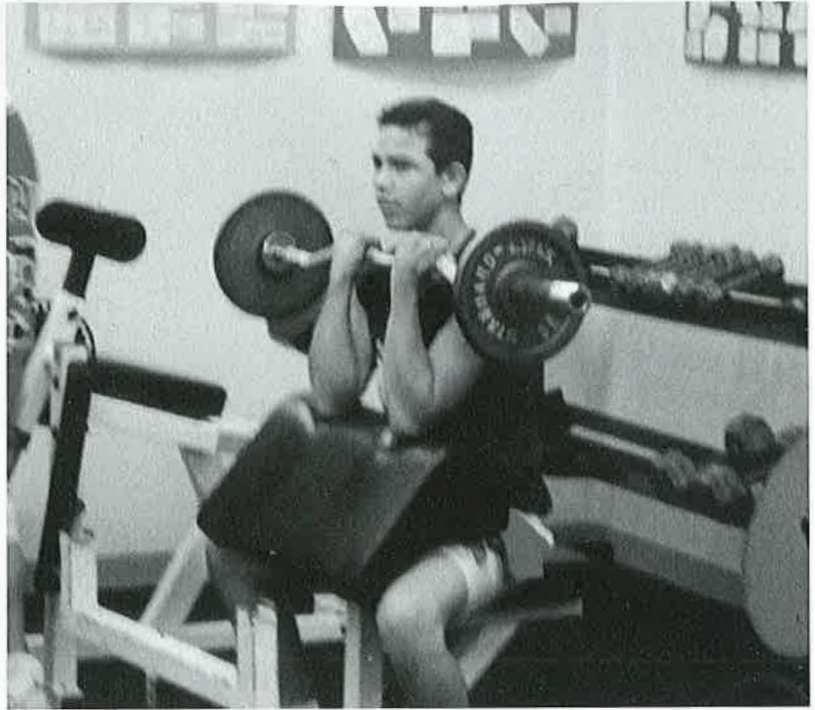

Senior Miguel Casarez gets ready to strike the golf ball in order to make his thirteenth hole. He was one of the many students eager to take the new golf class.

Working on his legs in the weight room is senior Richie O'Steen. Many students utilized the facilities available for weight training.

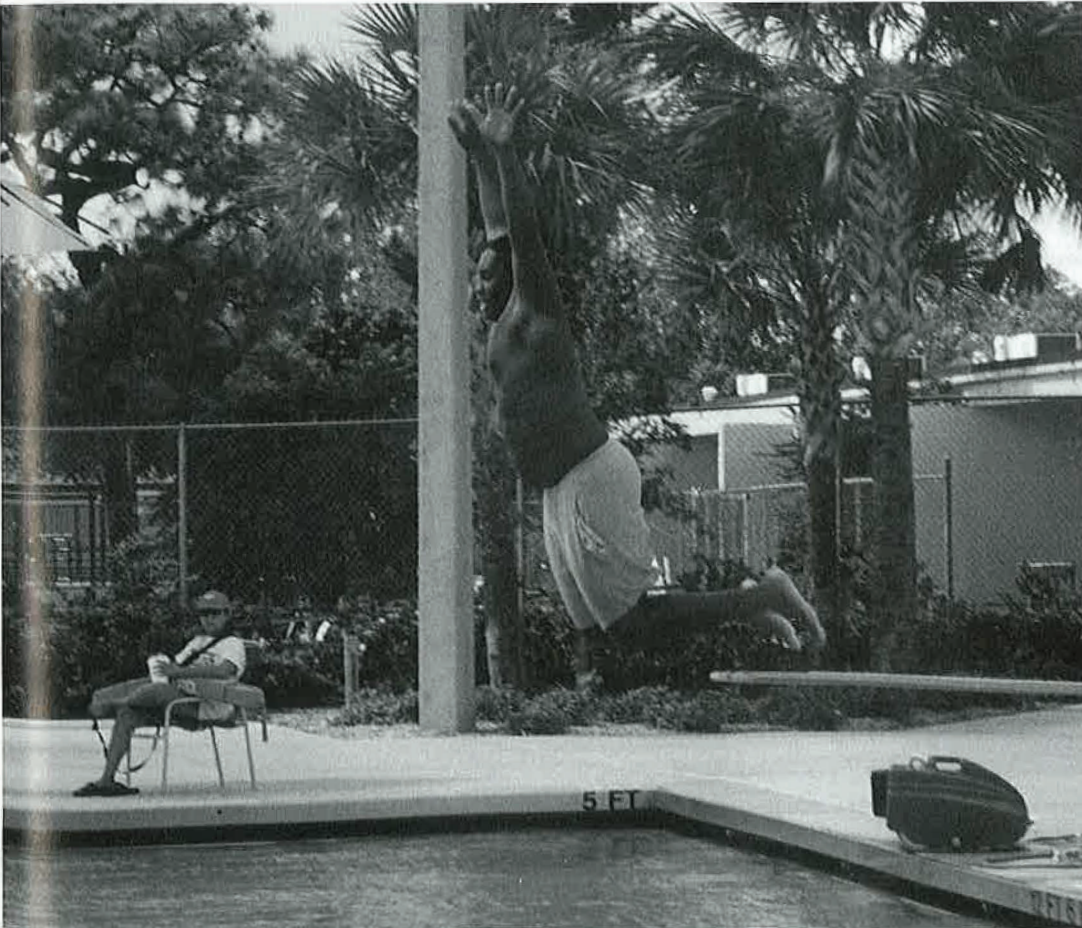

Hardly breaking a sweat while working out on the lateral machine is senior Rosa Vidaurri. Rosa said, "Lifting weights is a fun way to keep myself toned and in shape."

"I enjoy working out because it's fun and helps me maintain my manlihood," said freshman Roger Becerra. Lifting weights was a way for students to learn to set and reach goals.

Jumping off the diving board is sophomore Shelley Houston. He said, "I recommend swimming to all students."

“It takes a thousand voices to tell a single story.”

Native-American saying

“I need to learn more about things I do not know. I want to learn more about math, typing, and computers.”

Isha Dobson, 9

“The diversity here is an advantage for us because it prepares us for the real world.”

A Team that Achieves

As assistant principal of curriculum and instruction, Mr. Doug Marnocha helps to keep the school running in an orderly fashion. Mr. Marnocha has worked in various administrative positions over the past three years.

In every school there must be a strong team of leaders to orchestrate school functions and activities, and this school is no exception.

Leadership skills are a prerequisite for holding the position of an administrator. This quality, among many others, is well exemplified among the administrative staff. The administrators include: Mr. Jeremiah Primus, Mr. Doug Marnocha, Mrs. Pamela James, Mrs. Linda Ayer, and Mr. Bobby Gonzalez. Together, they work for the school by creating and enforcing conduct regulations and dress code rules, planning for the future, arranging activities, and maintaining a fun and safe environment.

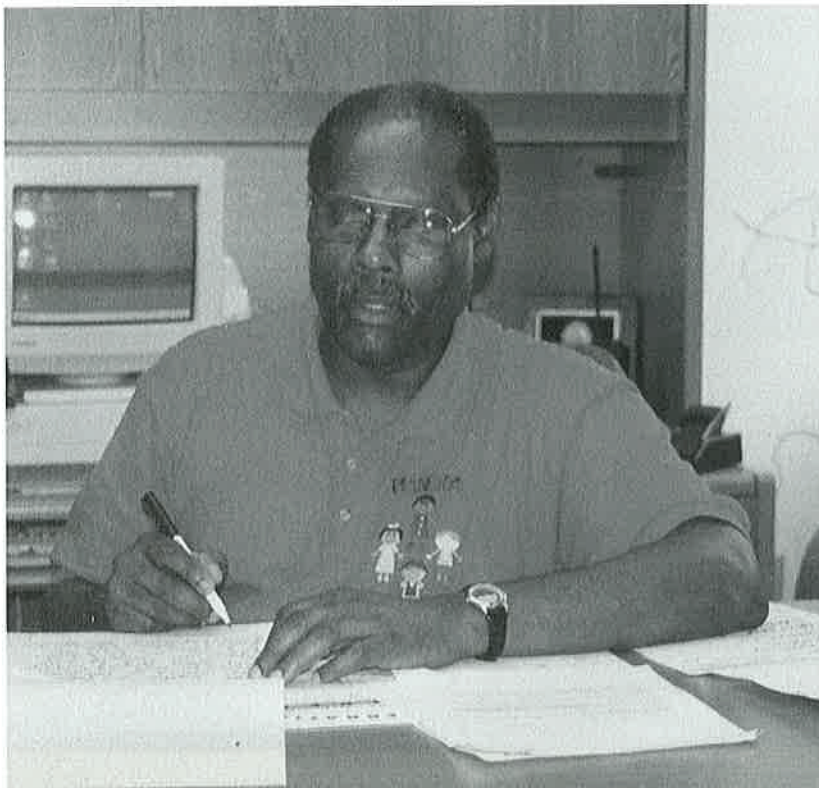

Although some students don't agree with certain actions by the administrative staff, many students respect and consider them positive role models. One example is Mrs. James who greatly enforces the dress code rules. "Mrs. James is a strong woman," explained senior Sertoute Dugazon, "who I see as my role model..."

Mr. Gonzalez, who doubles as a baseball coach, is another example. Many guys look to him because of his involvement in sports and admire him for his leadership including junior baseball player, Benjamin Ramos. "He is a good example because he checks on the team's grades and helps them in any way he can," said Ben.

Even with all the responsibility that comes with working as an administrative leader and the pressure of being a role model, Mrs. Ayer still claims she enjoys her work as the director of activities. "The thing I like most about my job is planning activities. It's fun to see kids get involve," she said.

Thanks to the administrative staff for their dedication to education, students are able to acquire an adequate education and have positive role models to emulate.

Taking notes after reviewing a proposal is principal, Mr. Jeremiah Primus. He is well known for taking notes of everything that requires his attention.

With referral in hand, Mrs. Pamela James manages to constantly keep a smile on her face. As principal of discipline, she manages to consult with disciplinary problems and dress code violations.

The Not So Few New Faces

When most people think of new faces on campus, they think of the freshmen class. People may not notice the new person behind the classroom door. If you haven't guessed by now, I'm talking about the new teachers.

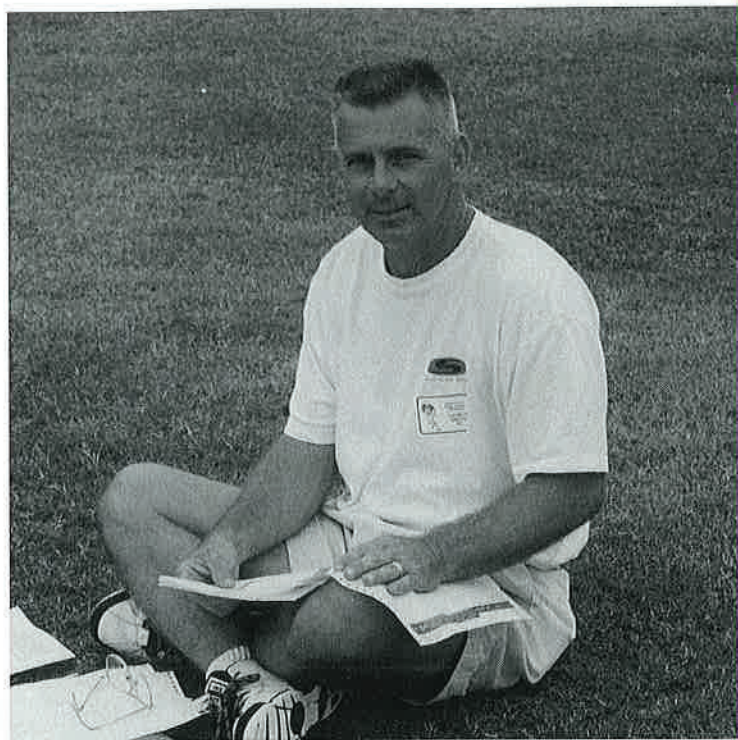

This year there are a new faces everywhere. Due to the new school, Gulf Coast High, some teachers chose to leave in order to work closer to home; therefore, new positions were vacant and available to be filled with new employees.

With all of the new additions, the school has changed a little, but not for the worse. On a positive note, new teachers bring with them fresh, new teaching strategies, ideas, and traditions which help keep things interesting. Mrs. Lofren, in the Science department told about how she will keep her students interested in learning. "I want them to do more labs, hands-on learning, such as constructing things like starch arts," she said.

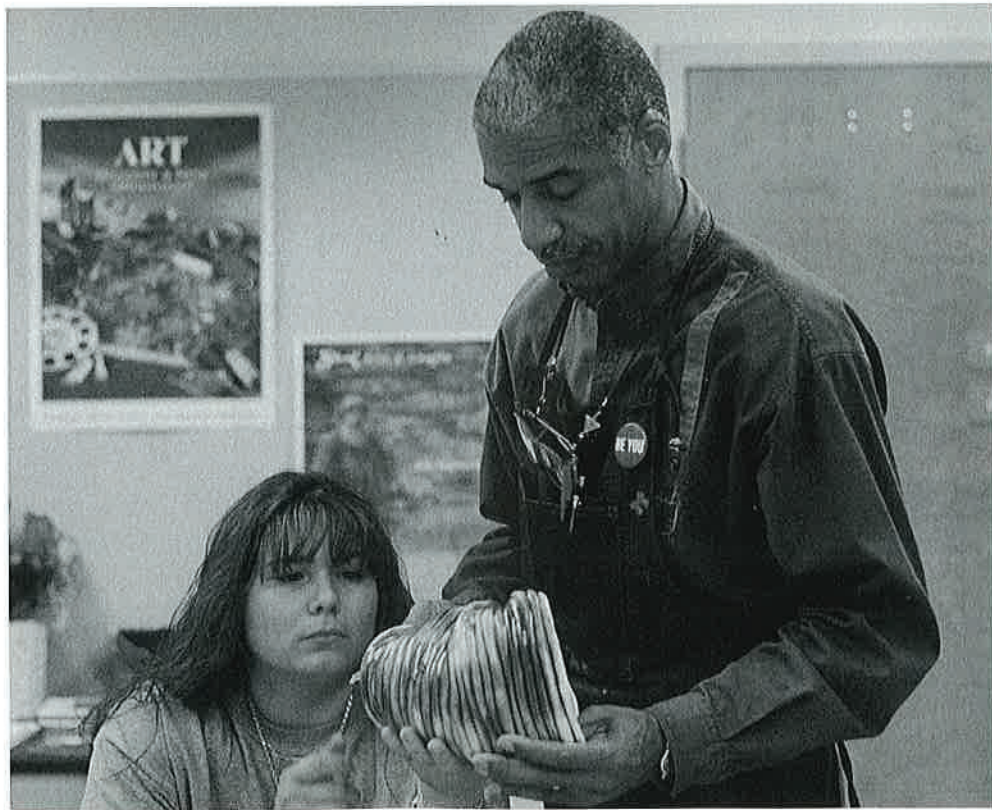

These teachers can be found in just about every department. Whether it's the math department or the vocational related classes, teachers are fulfilling their duties. One example is chef Ann White, a former college teacher who now teaches a culinary arts class in the home economics department. She said, "It was very suprising to me that the student had lots of energy."

Although there were a not so few amount of new faces, the change was a welcomed one. Last year's teachers are missed, but students can be comforted by new teachers who bring with them new ideas to teach new worlds and points of view to the students remaining here.

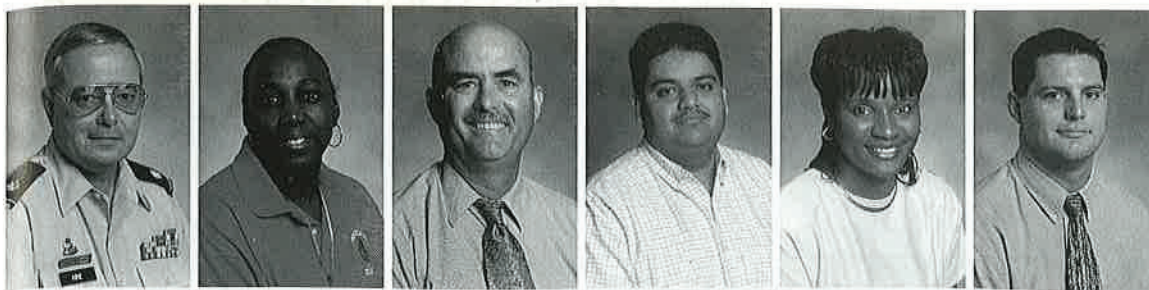

A first year teacher, Mr. Robert Massey takes time to organize himself while out on the field. Mr. Massey was a permanent substitute for Mrs. Edwardson's physical education classes this year after last year's softball injury.

A returning graduate, Mr. Timothy Rayburn is a new science teacher. "The thing I like most about being a teacher here is that this is where I grew up," said Mr. Rayburn, "and I'm glad to give back what was given to me when I was going to school here."

"I like the students here because they have lots of talent and energy that seeks direction," said Mr. William E. Harris, a new art teacher and former college art instructor. He teaches two-dimensional art and pottery.

Behind Every Great School Stands an Even Greater Staff

Answering the telephone is one of the responsibilities that Mrs. Melissa Tello has to juggle on a regular work day as the receptionist for the front office. She also has to handle all mail services of the school.

Like Hillary behind Bill, are the cafeteria ladies, bus drivers, janitors, and secretaries. They may not be noticed very much by most students, but they are definitely there and doing their part to keep the school running.

Ms. Willie Gurley, the new food service manager was very interested in learning about the student's opinions concerning the cafeteria food served daily. She took time out of her busy schedule to inquire from some of the students. When asked why she has enjoyed working here, she responded, "It's a new learning process and I'm really excited about it." And apparently, Ms. Gurley has been doing a good job. "The food this year has a better quality of taste than ever before," commented senior Michael Reyna.

Your may not realize it, but janitors and bus drivers also contribute to the student body's education. Janitors make certain that the school is sanitized and fresh so it can be a healthy and attractive structure to the students and community alike; meanwhile, bus drivers take it upon themselves to get students safely to and from school. It takes a special kind of license to drive a bus and a special kind of person to have patience, people skills, and driving skills to drive a public vehicle such as a school bus.

Last, but certainly not least, the secretaries also play an important role in education. From the receptionists to the principal's secretary, the jobs that they do could not be accomplished by anyone else. They juggle ringing phones, paper work, and visitors at once. "My secretary is so efficient," said Mr. Primus, "that I'm afraid that everything might not run as smoothly as when she is the one doing it."

Although, they are not always in students' sight, they are certainly there. And without them, the school would not be the same.

The cookies everyone loves to buy (and eat, and give, and save 'til later) are made with care by cafeteria ladies, like Olivia Gonzalez, daily. They are probably the most popular food generated from the cafeteria.

Cleaning up after Homecoming, Ms. Maria still has her smile. Her custodial duties help with our Indian pride as the campus is kept clean for students, staff, and visitors alike.

"The Friday Guys" is what we know Gadainson Nelson and Yves Dieudonne as. They entertained us many Fridays during morning announcements.

The Freshman Transition

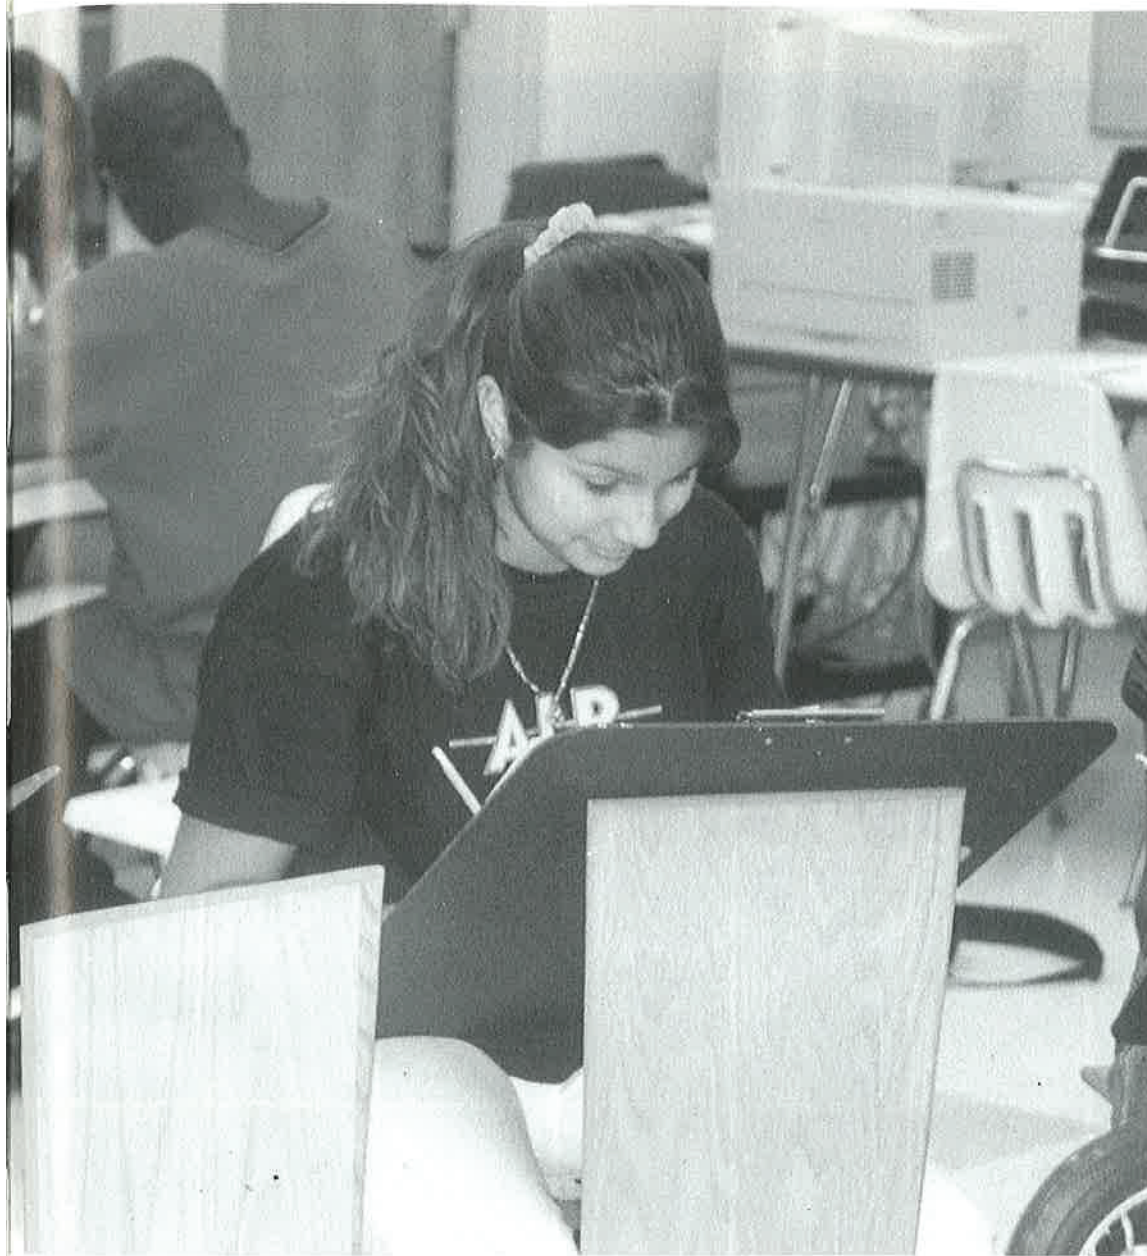

Another year means new people. The freshmen are making their presence known. Whether in band, Chess Club, Executive Board, Student Council, or even the Homecoming Court, they are not wasting any time about getting involved.

Even though high school is the same for upperclassmen, it's a total change for the freshmen. "The classes are longer, and we have harder work," said David Bermudez. So true of block scheduling, since I.M.S is still on the old, six-classes-a-day, type of schedule. Thomas Garza said, "Block scheduling is alright, but on the attendance policy, I don't like it."

What do the newcomers think of their transition? Ospicio Rodriguez said, "The school's too big, I get lost, and I can't find my classes." Viri Longoria doesn't think high school is intimidating, though. "It's exciting because of the Marching Band, and that's a big part of my life."

The first pep rally is a learning experience for the freshmen each year. The class of 2002 participates by chanting the war song.

Art is a class that freshmen are often enrolled in. "I enjoy being in this class because I get to draw lots of things," said Maggie Gonzalez.

How does high school differ from middle school?

"There are a lot more people to meet and talk to."

Viri Longoria

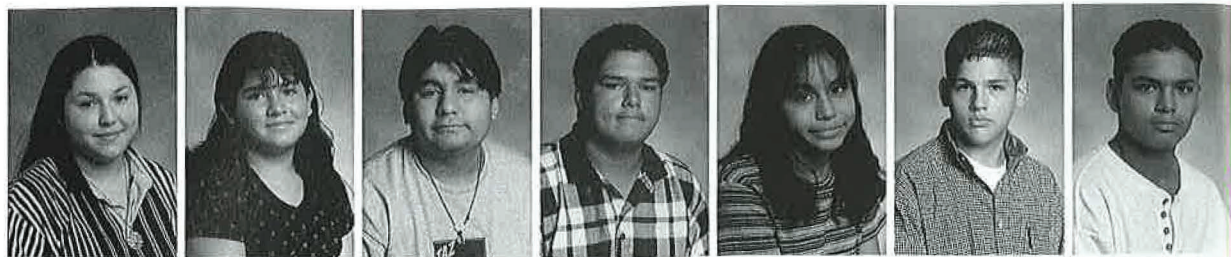

"It's easier to get in trouble for things here than it is at I.M.S."

Ospicio Rodriguez

Baritone player Marlena Clark learns from veteran band members. "I already knew how to play, but it's good to get some help from people who've been playing longer."

Junior Refugio Ramirez goes up to the teacher's desk asking for help. Is he really asking for help, or is he trying to get answers for Friday's test?

Sophomores Zanbrina Sanchez and Anthony Turrubiardez are hyped up to show their Indian spirit during the first pep rally of the year. They show their spirit with banners and signs.

How do you feel about being a sophomore?

"I feel good, and it's harder than being a freshman because the teachers expect more from you."

Eric Ponce

"I'm glad that we're out of the name 'fresh meat', and moved up to sophomores."

Regina Wells

Sophomores Jennifer Bermudez and Amy Garza show up at school in the required attire. "I was showing off my spirit in my beach attire and looking forward to the pep rally!" exclaimed Jennifer.

One Step Up

This year is very challenging for the class of 2001--more responsibilities, harder work, and better grades. Sophomores are no longer the "babies," so no more "fresh meat" cracks. Now that they are familiar with the ways of high school, sophomores are not as shy as they used to be during their freshman year.

"I feel very proud! We have a very dedicated class," exclaimed Leonard Bryant. "We're true sophomores." As dedicated sophomores, Leonard and his fellow students prepare for the FCAT which will replace the HSCT. Now students will have to pass the FCAT in order to graduate. Another test to worry about is the Writing Assessment Test, also known as Florida Writes, which examines writing skills. During academic homeroom, students can get help if they have any problems concerning the tests.

During the first pep rally of the year, sophomores were fired up to show their Indian spirit. "Pep rallies are very fun," said Leo Corona. The problem is that every year there are fewer and shorter pep rallies." "We need more of them," protested Beatrice Turribiarte.

Now that they are one step up on the high school ladder, the sophomores feel a lot better. If you were to ask a sophomore if he could go back to being a freshman, the answer would most likely be, "NO!" This shows how happy and proud sophomores are to be sophomores.

During a sophomore executive board meeting these students are attentive while listening to the daily agenda. "I always have to pay attention to understand what's going on in the meeting," said Alexia Flores.

Juniors: Full Steam Ahead

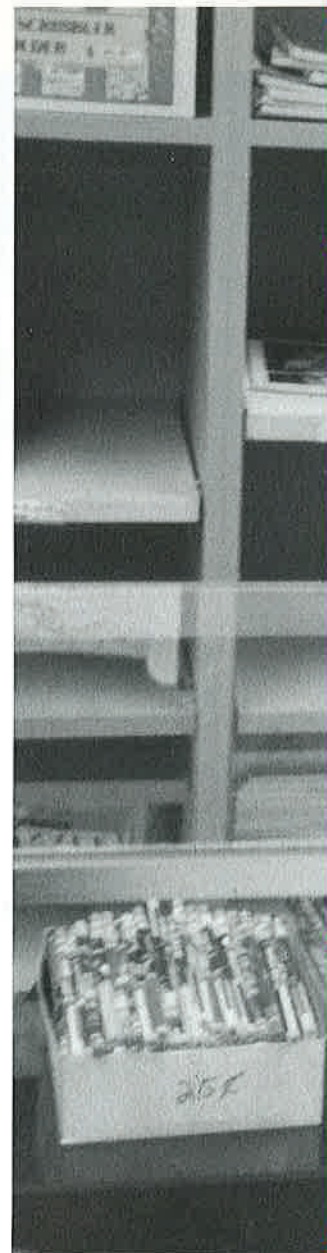

Oh no, here it comes! The big 2-0-0-0! Well, maybe not yet, but it's not too distant. Anyway, the important question is. . .what is the new millenium going to be like? Does a simple change in year really make that much of a difference? Well, there's one group of high school students who would really know the answer to that. Of course, they are the graduating class of 2000.

To some people, the year 2000 would signify the introduction of more new technology. And, junior Guadalupe Garcia also realized this. She said, "[The new millennium] will be exciting because new things will be developed." "There will be more high-tech computers and better reinforced cars," predicted Refugio Ramirez. It's true, new inventions will probably surface at the dawn of the millennium.

On the other hand, there are a few members of the junior class who believe that the year 2000 is not really that important. "It's just that instead of writing 1998 or 1999, you write 2000," commented Tony Molina. "I'm just getting older," said Maria Mendoza. These opinions may very well prove true.

It all comes down to what you want to believe. Will there be lots of new fantastic contraptions? Or will it be a year like any other? Either way, the new millennium is making its way into our lives. So, it's full steam ahead to the year 2000 and beyond.

Juniors Nicole Medenwald and Benjamin Ramos help each other in their Algebra II class. The graphing elements in this course can be challenging.

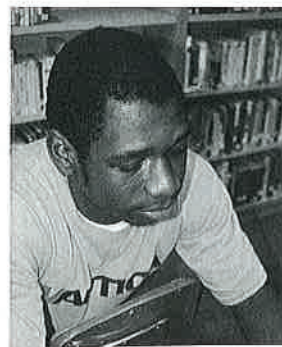

During lunch, Guadalupe Garcia organizes the bookstore merchandise. She has worked at the bookstore throughout her high school years.

What do you think about the class of 2000?

"Out with the old and in with the new."

Tanglea
Rodriguez

"Only the juniors can graduate in the year 2000 because we're the best."

Francis Prudence

Juniors Daisy Hernandez and Jennifer Rodriquez socialize during lunch. "We catch up on the gossip about everything else," said Jennifer.

Does Life End After High School?

It's the second week of June and graduation is only two days away. Up until now, your life has consisted of going to school, doing homework, maybe playing sports, working, and other extra-curricular activities. But after your diploma is in hand and you toss your tassel to the right side of your cap, what happens next? No, this isn't about all the partying you'll be doing! What will your life be like?

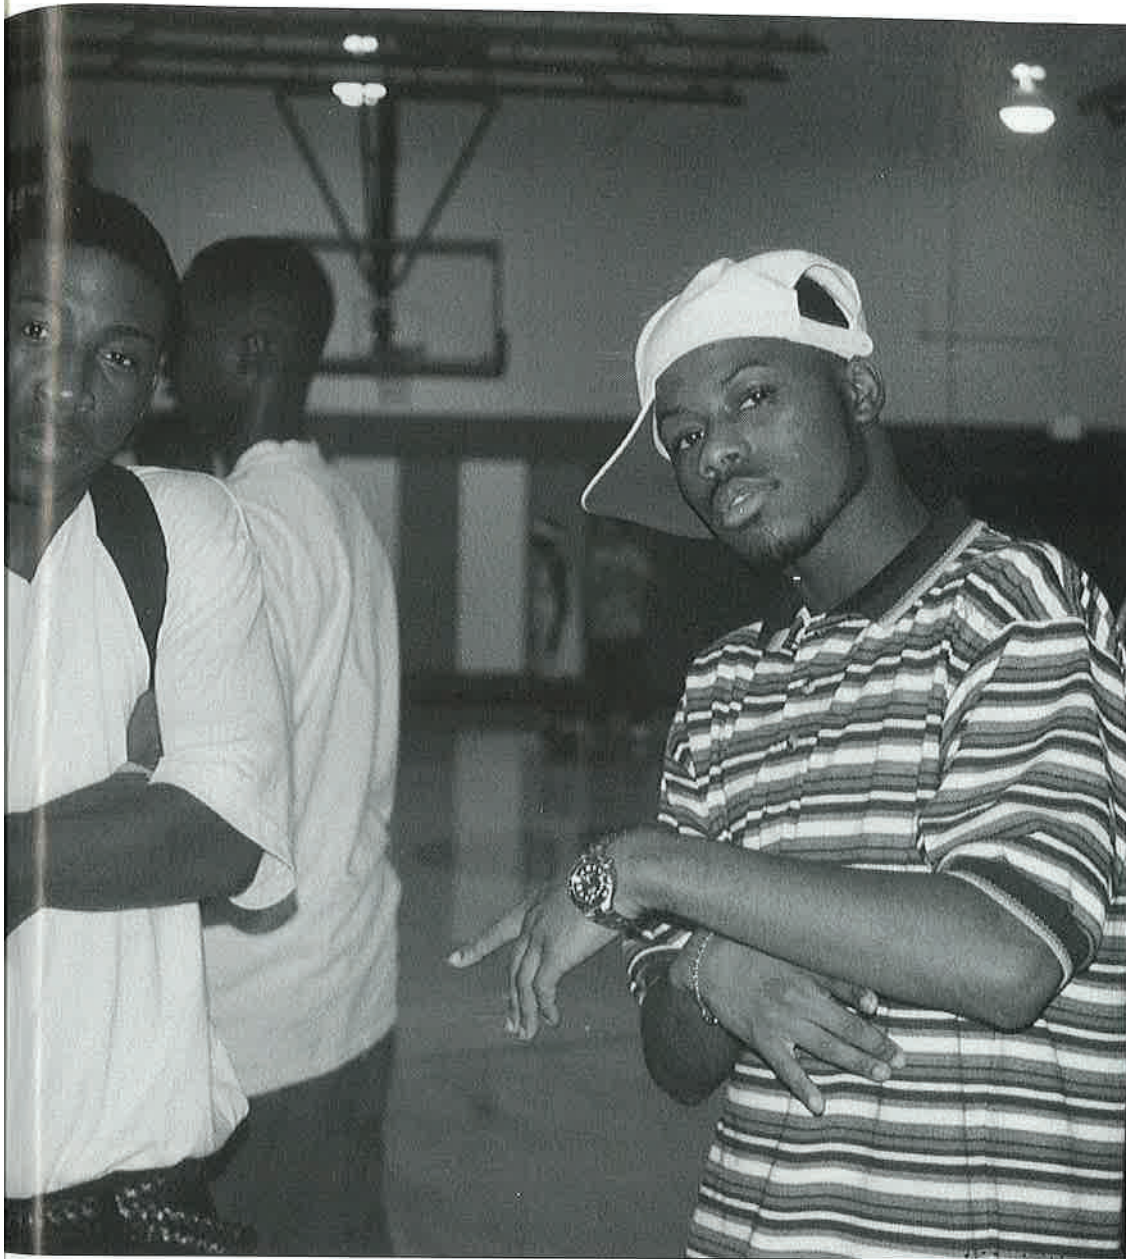

Many seniors have already planned out what they want to do and where they want to go with what they have. Even though their plans may not become reality, planning ahead can't hurt. LeShaun Green said, "I want to stay in Florida, but I want to live in a place where there is not another house for half a mile..." "I don't want any big changes right now," said Erika Cruz, "so I'm gonna stay close to home and attend Edison Community College."

Now that you know what you're going to do after graduation, where do you see yourself in 20 years? Are you going to be rich? Is a family in your future? The student body president, Harry Michel, envisioned his destiny very clearly. "I want to have a job in a firm or my own firm, a very prestigious one. Living comfortably, I might add, with a lovely wife and wonderful children in my dream house," he commented.

Whether going off to college or staying close to home, the time for change has come. The choice is yours, so do what you will and in the end, like they say, following your heart and it will lead to a start for a bright future.

As a senior, you have many things that need to be done. But, as you can see, the work doesn't ever stop the seniors from dominating the pep rallies. The spirited Joanna Campbell exclaimed, "...I'm glad I'm finally a SENIOR!"

The gym is a popular place for senior guys to be. Harry Michel and Joe Mathews hang-out on basketball sidelines one afternoon, during thier free time.

How does being a senior make you feel?

"Being a senior is stressful because they expect too much from us in one year."

Miguel Caserez

"I'm glad to know that I finally made it to the end and I get to spend my last year with my friends and the ones I love."

Rosa Vidaurri

Doesn't he look so cute? Ryan Massey stays still as his friend Dixie Rou carefully ties a ribbon in his hair. Many seniors showed their spirit during football season through the use of hats, signs and other attire.

"NO Limit"

Seniors

Get out of the way because here comes the Roaring Indian's Train. Paint on your shoe polish, tie on the balloons, honk your horn, and turn on our lights. All aboard because the engine has been started to ride down town. On pep-rally days and other selected Fridays it's a tradition for seniors to join in on a line of vehicles for a senior parade. Senior Rebecca "Jeni" Sharpe was undoubtedly a participant in all the senior parades. "They are a lot of fun, but you need to be careful; especially, of the way you're driving because the cops will give you tickets for careless driving! Oh yeah, and make sure to stay on the pavement, and away from the Winn-Dixie parking lot," advised Jeni.

While freshman watch their first senior parade they can't wait to put on a show themselves. "They look like a lot of fun because the seniors make a lot of noise," explained Margie Cabrera, "but the juniors will make even more noise next year." Still, the senior class put on a show that will be hard to follow, as they rode out in new, old, and stylin' wheels. Clowning around, jumping up and down, having fun while showing their spirit is what the parades are all about.

"No Limit Seniors" was the motto for the class of '99 and they lived up to it with enormous participation in radical parades. It's believed that the '99 seniors had the longest lasting and longest chain of vehicles ever in the school's history stretching from the community park, through highway 29, and back to the school parking lot. The senior parades were led by senior-owned vehicles including a fifty-seven Chevy, a Ford Mustang Convertible, a sixty-six Ford Bronco, and even a three wheeler.

Although the number of parades were cut short, the seniors had fun before and after the parade, setting a good example for the underclassmen. The senior experience would not be the same without the traditional senior parades. It will be a memory that will last in the minds of many as a fun and joyful time.

The seniors get a chance to come together during a parade.

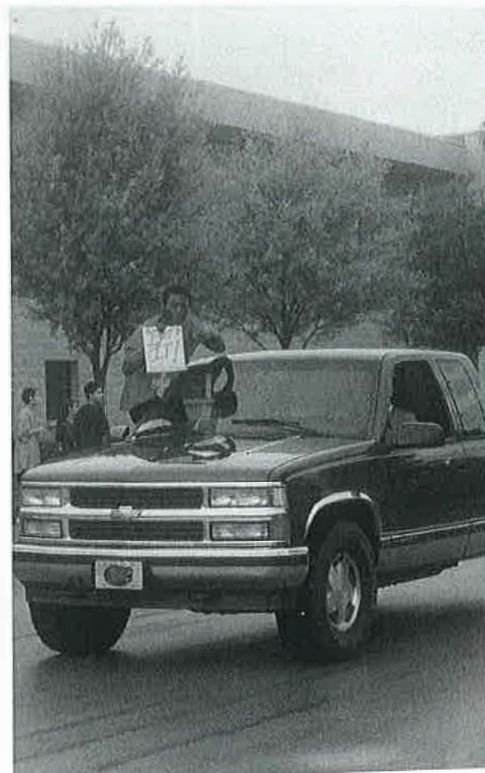

"It's also a chance to show the underclassmen what they can do when they become seniors," said the proud-to-be-a-senior, Yoshi Smith.

parades mean a chance for us to show off our senior spirit and its a lot of fun," said Danny Campos. Danny rode along with Noemi Vinton for one of the first parades of the year.

Many seniors rode in pick up trucks. Harry Michel tagged along with friend and rides on the window with a sign, "Bout It!"

Cheerleaders like Titi Fortin and Dixie Rou easily show off their school spirit with no limits. "Senior parades are one of the few times the whole senior class gets to be together," said Titi.

Finding a different use for textbooks, Charlie Polite stacks them up for a pillow. This is senioritus in its worst state!

During drafting class Edward Aguilar takes a break from chapter five. "Being a senior, I relax and take it easy because I feel privileged."

Senior Sannestine Fortin concentrates as she memorizes a song for Advanced Drama. "I find it easy to learn something with my eyes closed when there's a lot of action going around me."

During a Bryn-Alan senior photo shoot, Rigo Villa strikes a pose. "I feel like a model when the photographer is taking my pictures," said Rigo.

Senioritis:

It is contagious!

It's a disease that will affect many students before they graduate. The symptoms are drowsiness, shortness of breath, and loss of memory. What is it? Nothing but senioritus, of course!

How would one describe senioritus? "It's when you don't do anything or wait 'till the last minute," Danny Campos explained. Although this disease is innocuous, it should still be carefully observed. Around September of every school year, senioritus comes creeping up on seniors. Some shake it off while others find enjoyment in having it. "I feel like a God," Justin Terry said. Whether good or bad, senioritus will definitely affect nearly all seniors.

There's nothing to do to cure this ailment. "If there is one [cure], I don't want it," declared Jeni Sharpe. Some seniors enjoy the drowsiness (during a pop quiz), shortness of breath (laughing hard during a lecture), and loss of memory (what homework?). Senioritus can only be overcome by the infected person--it is up to each senior to get his or her act together. "It's easier to just be lazy," sighed Rachel Hendry.

Will schools ever be freed from this horrible disease? All a senior can do is sit back, observe, and be careful!

The Work Is Never Done

Planning events, showing school spirit, and helping others, all of this and much more combine to form the agenda for the executive board. Each class board has goals, such as raising money for prom, deciding on graduation details, putting together homecoming events, and finding ways to unite the class.

The Freshmen and Sophomore Executive Boards' goals included doing well in the Homecoming events and keeping the pride alive in their classes. "On executive board, our goal is to do everything we can to keep the sophomore spirit going strong," said Gadainson Nelson.

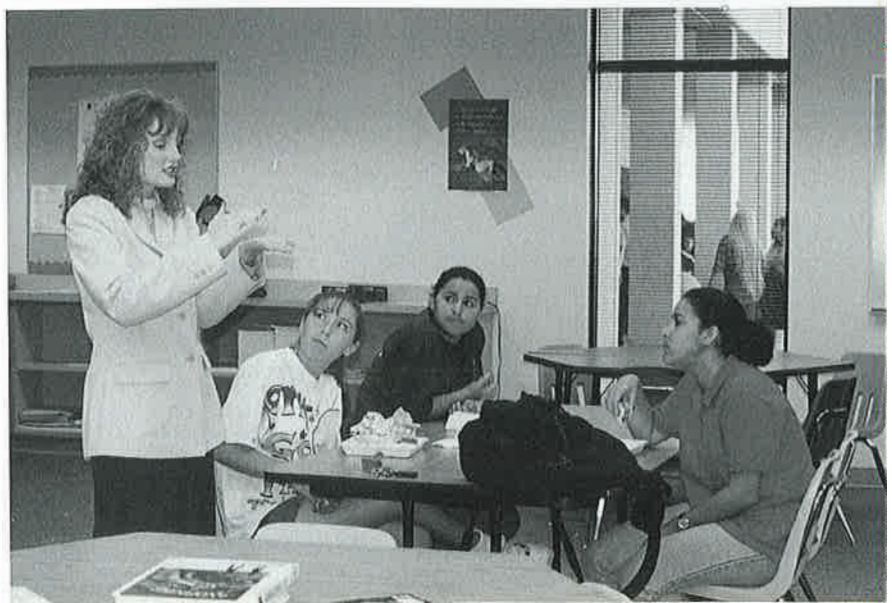

Organizing some of the most important and memorable events is the responsibility of, both, the Junior and Senior Executive Boards. The juniors have the enormous job of planning out the formal event of the year--the Junior-Senior Prom. As for the seniors, they have the all-important task of putting together the details of their graduation ceremony. Co-president of the Senior Executive Board Elida Ramirez commented, "Graduation is a very happy and emotional time all at once, and I hope that this year's executive board gets everything worked out."

At the end of the school year, all of the events and special occasions will have gone smoothly all because members of the executive boards take the time to work out the details for the student body.

Lunch time is the hour of preference for most executive boards to meet. The Sophomore Executive Board meets in the activities dining room for a discussion on how to raise money.

One of the biggest projects for the Junior Executive Board is to plan for prom. Here we have Mrs. Bloom and this group of students making decisions on the colors for the decorations.

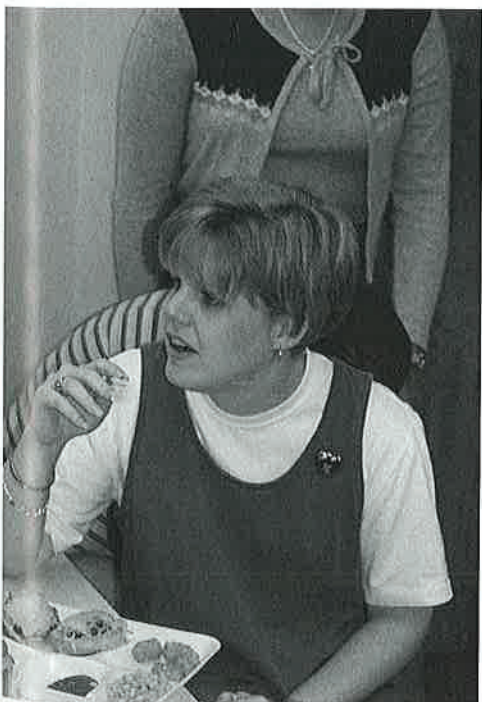

Looking very exhausted is Senior Marisol Herrera at an executive meeting. She has been part of her executive board all 4 years.

Sophomores Alexia Flores and Lora Salazar are busy making tacos for the dance. "We actually had more left overs and supplies than expected", said Lora.

Not giving up her food is Miss Williams, co-sponsor of the seniors. This is her second year working with the seniors.

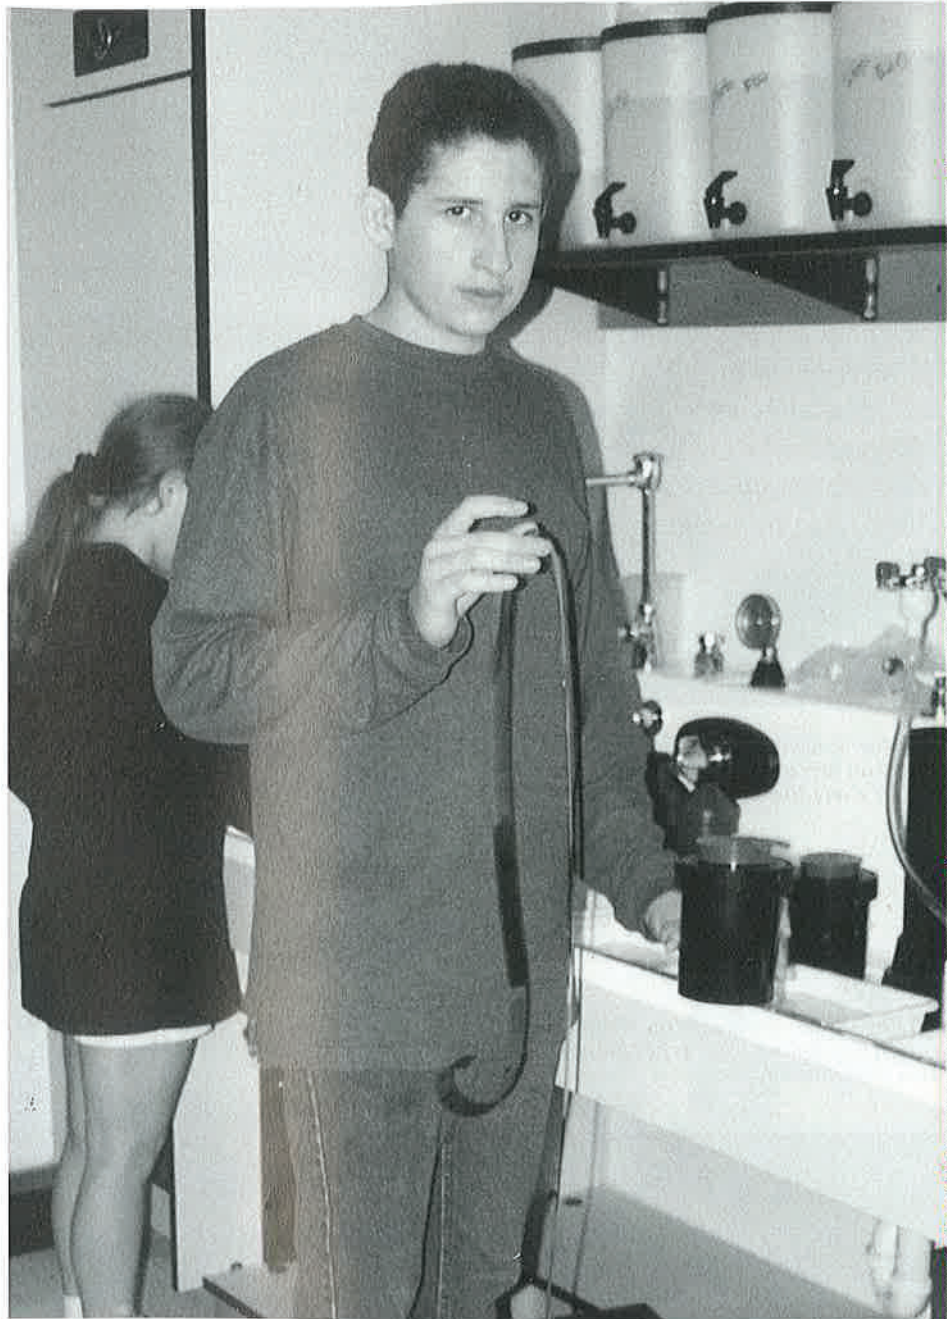

Shooting darts was the Senior Executive Board booth for the benefit dance. Every club put up a booth so the students could entertain themselves when they were not dancing.

Having a good time during lunch is Jerrod Carver and Heather Locke. They are both on the Freshman Executive Board.

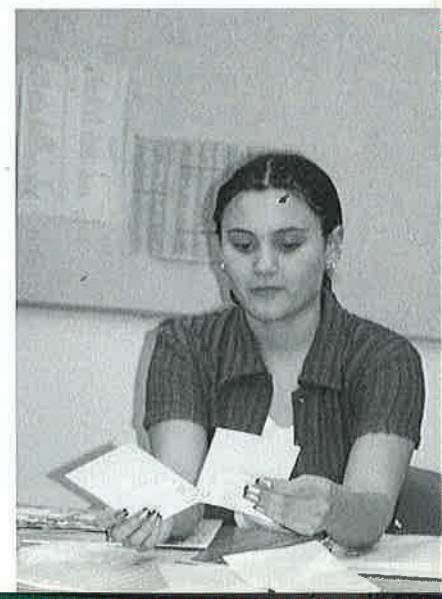

One new class offered in the art department is the photography class. Processing black and white film is junior Salvador Garcia. "It's real neat how the pictures come out on paper from the negatives," said Salvador.

"I like drawing, coloring, and sketching," said senior Maria Alvarado. She always uses a variety of colors, designs, and medias in her paintings and drawings.

"Drawing is something I enjoy very much. It gives me a way to relax," said sophomore Sadrac Sainvilus. He has been in the Art Club since his freshman year.

First year journalism student, Kristi Williams, inspects and analyzes two photos for her yearbook spread. Deciding on the most interesting pictures makes an interesting yearbook.

Creative Endeavors

The Art Club, being one of the smaller clubs of the school, is not publicized as much as the others. Despite their size, they meet more often than any other club. The Art Club meets every day at lunch, although attendance may vary at times. Usually eight students meet to work on computer graphics, illustrations, photography, paintings, or drawings. This helps prepare them for college level art classes. The Art Club isn't a place to hang out and talk to friends. It's a place to get dirty and work hard to improve artistic abilities.

T.V. Production is both a class and an organization. This year was their first year on live television and its success has escalated quickly with the help of Mr. Senecharles, the reporters, the behind the scenes crew, and especially "The Friday Guys." At first, the crew understandably made many mistakes as they learned about how to put together a good broadcast, but as the semester went on, the show improved considerably. Students improved their writing and speaking skills. They also learned how to cooperate with others in order to successfully reach the group's goal. Each student increased his or her knowledge of broadcast journalism and walked away with a new option for the future.

Deadlines, what a headache! Most people don't realize the hard work that goes into Journalism Class. This class has to work hard toward the all-important end product--the yearbook. Whether it's making a spread, attending an event for pictures, reporting, or writing a story, there's always something to keep the students busy in the journalism class. "One thing is for sure," said editor Rosabelle Campos, "we'll make sure no one is bored, and everyone has something to do."

Seniors Jessica Mendoza and Victor Adame are editing for the morning news. "T.V. production is a lot of fun and it's also an easy 'A'," said Jessica.

Yearbook co-editor, Claudia Vega, and editor-in-chief, Rosabelle Campos, take their own off-time to dedicate to the yearbook. They drove around town searching for the perfect stone to go on the opening pages of the yearbook.

"I've been in journalism for two years now and it's a lot of fun and a lot of work. I enjoy taking pictures because its like an art," said junior Amber Flint. She closely studies various similar soccer pictures for the boys' soccer spread.

One aspect of the t.v. production program is the area behind the scenes. Students like sophomore Noemi Gallegos can learn about computers, cameras, lighting, and sound affects, among many other technical skills.

Bright Stars of the Future

Have you ever wondered why the stars come out at night? Do you find yourself studying all the time? If so, you may be a prime candidate for membership in the science club or renaissance program.

In the science club students meet once a week to discuss a variety of topics. Once a month they discuss issues of science. The other three times they meet, they work on science projects or experiments. The science club not only focuses on science but focuses on community volunteer work also. During the school year the science club has volunteered at the Guadalupe Center for their annual toy drive and their Thanksgiving meal for the homeless. "We're a club that wants to impact the community in a positive way," said science club sponsor Ms. Ross. "We also like to explore the world of science. Later on this spring we are planning a night sky-watching trip." Science club members are always active whether in special trips, volunteer work, or in experiments.

Then there are those students who love Science, Math, English, and every other subject you can think of. These students study for all of their classes in order keep up their grade point average (GPA). That way they will qualify to be an official renaissance card holder.

The renaissance program issues three cards: red, gold, and platinum. They issue these cards depending on a student's GPA. The card holder receives privileges according to his/her card color. These privileges are leaving five minutes early for lunch, attending special assemblies, and attending parties. This year the renaissance program decided to have an ice-cream social for all card holders. Students with a renaissance card were allowed to get a bowl of ice-cream with all the toppings during lunch. "I love ice-cream. So you can imagine how excited I was when they said I could have some during lunch....and it was free. Studying sure paid off," said platinum card holder Maggie DeLaRosa.

Ice-cream wasn't all the renaissance program had planned for card holders. Selected students were allowed to also come to a special assembly featuring magician, John Hamilton. During the assembly Mr. Hamilton performed several magic tricks while relaying a positive message to the students. He wanted them to know that things can happen if you set your mind to it. The students left with that instilled in their mind. Card holders are often allowed to attend many different types of assemblies like this one.

The Science club and Renaissance program are two exciting organizations here at IHS. Come and join the excitement or you will miss out on a lot of fun!

The great thing about being a Renaissance cardholder is that students get to leave class five minutes early for lunch. Hot food and a favorite seat are rewards worth studying for.

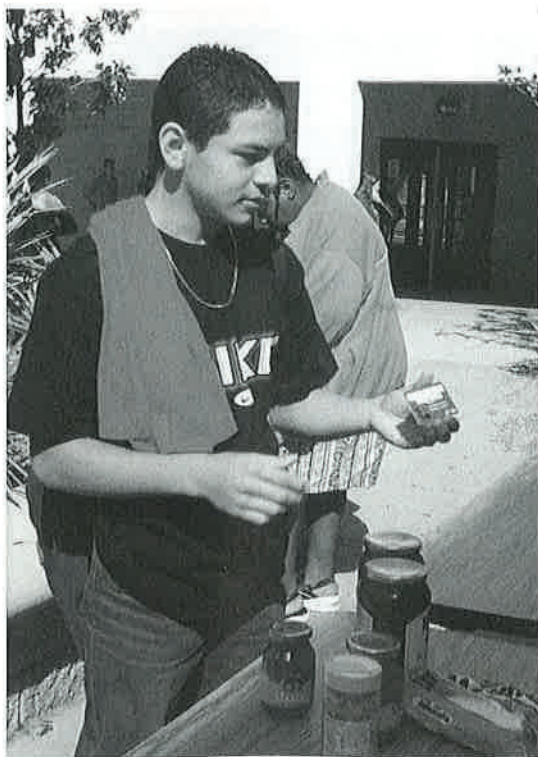

Junior, Ivan Balaez, made sure he received a bowlful of sweets while preparing his treat. The renaissance sponsors provided various toppings from cherries to sprinkles for the ice cream social.

Another fun thing about being a Renaissance card holder is that you get to see your teachers do crazy stuff during special assemblies.

He's got the whole . . . dove in his hands? Mr. Hamilton truly believed in the element of surprise while performing his magic.

Here a proud Renaissance cardholder flashes his red card in order to get his ice cream. He knows the rules--no card, no ice cream.

Mrs. Marks and a friend helped to prepare for the students' arrival to the ice cream social. Thanks to them, students were served promptly and with a smile.

The Renaissance club sponsored our guest magician, Mr. Hamilton. He not only had magic to share, but he also had words of wisdom: "Never give up."

Learning to Lead

What is the most essential quality of a leader? (a) good communication/speaking skills (b) the ability to make good decisions and get along well with others (c) a ravishing smile and good taste in clothes (d) all of the above. If you picked (a), (b), (c), or (d), you picked wrong. The correct answer is having followers. A leader cannot effectively lead without followers.

There are numerous kinds of leaders and many of them can be found in campus organizations like student government, the Beta Club, and the Leadership Tech. class.

"Being a leader isn't about a title. It's about what you do and never about just who you are," said Student Government vice president and Beta Club president, Rosabelle Campos. Student Government met every Monday to discuss and plan school and community-related activities including a food can drive for the local soup kitchen, a George Smith benefit dance, teacher appreciation day, Homecoming week activities, and a balloon sales fundraising project.

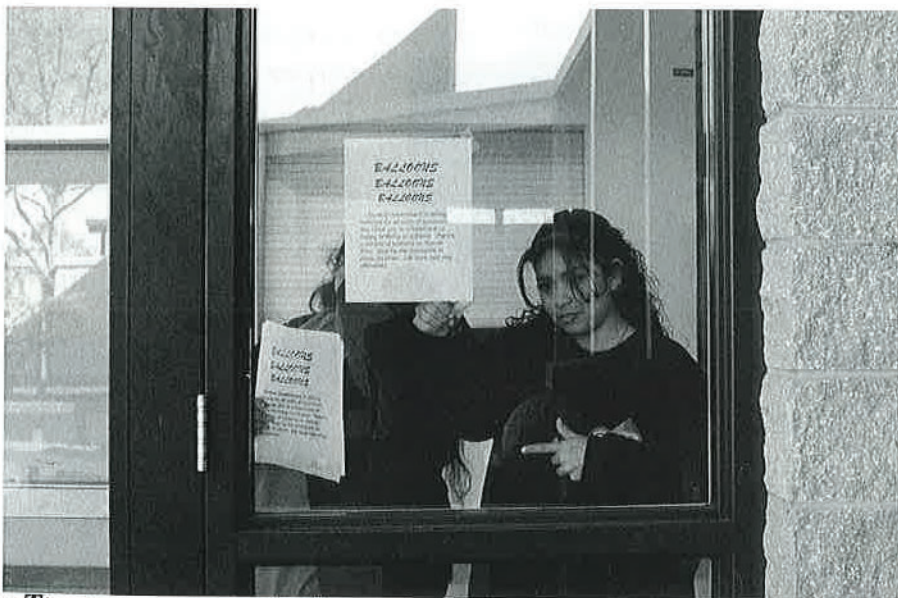

Meanwhile, the Beta Club was equally as busy living up to their motto, "Let us lead by serving others". The club volunteered during Thanksgiving at the Park, participated in the Christmas Toy Store, worked in the school's concession stand, and held a luminary service to benefit the American Cancer Society, among other community and school services. This year the club had an outing to the woods for swamp buggy riding and a cookout.

A large percentage of the students participating in the above organizations were also a part of the new leadership class, Leadership Tech, where students learned how not to make excuses, to be a good leader, the different types of leaders, good communication, stress management, good self-esteem, and speech. Most of the skills they learned in class were directly applied to the groups in which the students were actively involved.

A ravishing smile and a nice wardrobe alone do not constitute a good leader, but having the right skills, a desire to serve, and concern for others do. Remember two things when thinking of leaders; they are made, not born, but cannot lead without YOU.

During the Beta dinner meeting, Chevas Marshall chows down on a great meal. He has been in Beta for the past three years.

"Thanks to the class leadership, I enjoyed being able to help out and being involved in school," said senior Marisol Herrera.

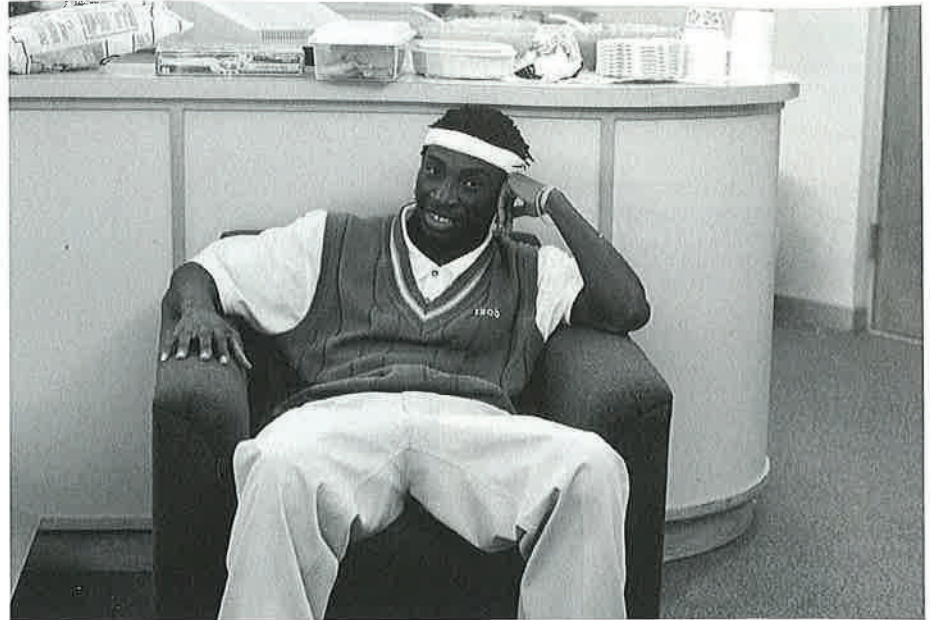

Senior Rosabelle Campos sits at the Talento Dance waiting for customers to buy drinks from student government.

"I think all students should take the leadership class because it helps you with time management and study skills. I've really enjoyed this class," said Larry Motlow, who did many projects for the class.

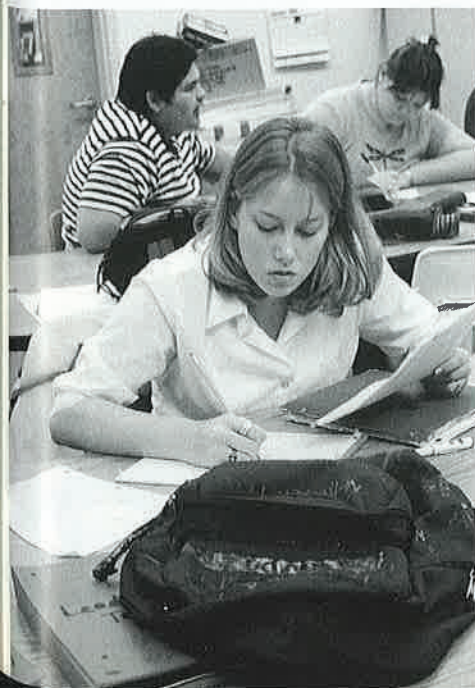

Senior Yerania Lopez and junior Claudia Vega are very involved in what they do. They sit patiently at a booth at the dance, where Talento performed.

Being involved in Leadership, Beta and being president of the Student Government, is Harry Michel. This can be very tiring.

Freshman Heather Locke said, "The thing I like best about Leadership was being able to be more involved with the school, without being in a club."

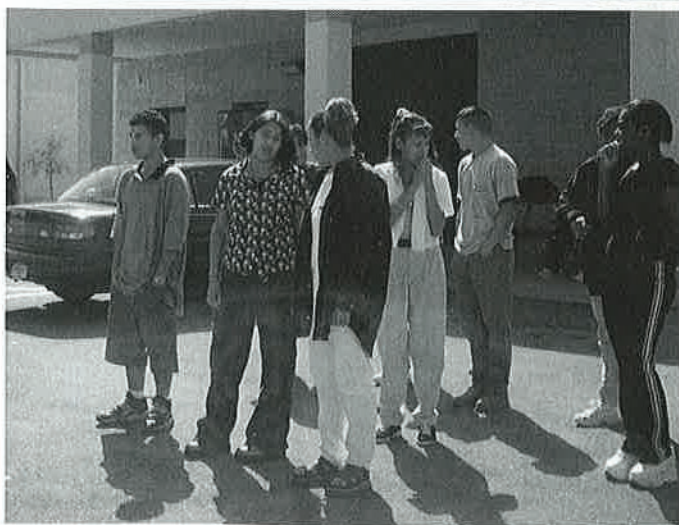

"Student Government is a good way to see how to organize and run a program," said junior Richard Gallegos. Putting a branch on the office Christmas tree.

There's only three people left in the whole platoon, but junior Alberto Romero will keep track of them and watch for any mistakes.

This is what the tutoring program is all about. Freshmen Kenneth Handley gets help from Junior Mirella Villa and Senior Wanchy Michel.

Shh! It's silent reading time. Senior Marco Noel said, "The tutoring program has helped me out a lot, because it gives me a quiet place to read."

Be All That You Can Be.....

Be all that you can be. No, we are not trying to recruit people to the Army. You can be all that you can be in JROTC. A program where it takes guts and courage to be your very best. This program requires the students to be leaders, be respectful, and be hard-working. "The purpose of JROTC is to get the younger people to learn about citizen ship, history of the country, and learn leadership," said Sgt. Esquilin. Another program that can help you be all that you can be is The "Go For The Gold" Tutoring Program. Many students go to the program to get tutored or help students with their classwork.

The Junior Reserve Army Training Corps is a program where the students get a feel for how the army really is. The students are trained in many areas of the army. They are in a platoon, they learn how to shoot rifles, and they learn how to be as one. "I love going to competitions and parades!" exclaimed John Arevalo. Many of the students involved are seen at football games, assemblies, and other functions at school. Once a student shows and proves to others that they are trying their best, they can move up in rank. "I am a cadet major. I earned this rank by hard work and being dedicated to the system," said Jamie Frederick. From cadets to sergeants these students are moving on up.

Being all that you can be... can get pretty difficult at times. Between schoolwork, jobs, sports, and other activities a person can get crazed out. The "Go For The Gold" Tutoring Program is here to help anybody in need. There are many qualified tutors that are willing to help others. "I tutor because it comes naturally to me and I love to help," said Eliza Jimenez. Tutoring is not all that happens, many new friendships are formed, and everybody has a good time. Quote So, when you are feeling stressed out or just can't get the answer to the math problem go to the program. There will always be a tutor on hand.

Left. Left. Left, right, left. One, two, three no matter what drum you are marching to, there will always be JROTC and the tutoring program. Being involved in any of these two programs can help you accomplish much in life. Whether on the battle field or the classroom; be a hard worker, be a fighter, be all that you can be....

The Go for the Gold Tutoring Program also offers dinner to everyone there. Mr. Tuttle, the sponsor, says that it teaches good manners.

Sgt. Esquilin enjoys teaching JROTC. He said, "It's fun, constructive, and it helps kids have a way to go, like I did. I didn't have a way to go until I went to the army."

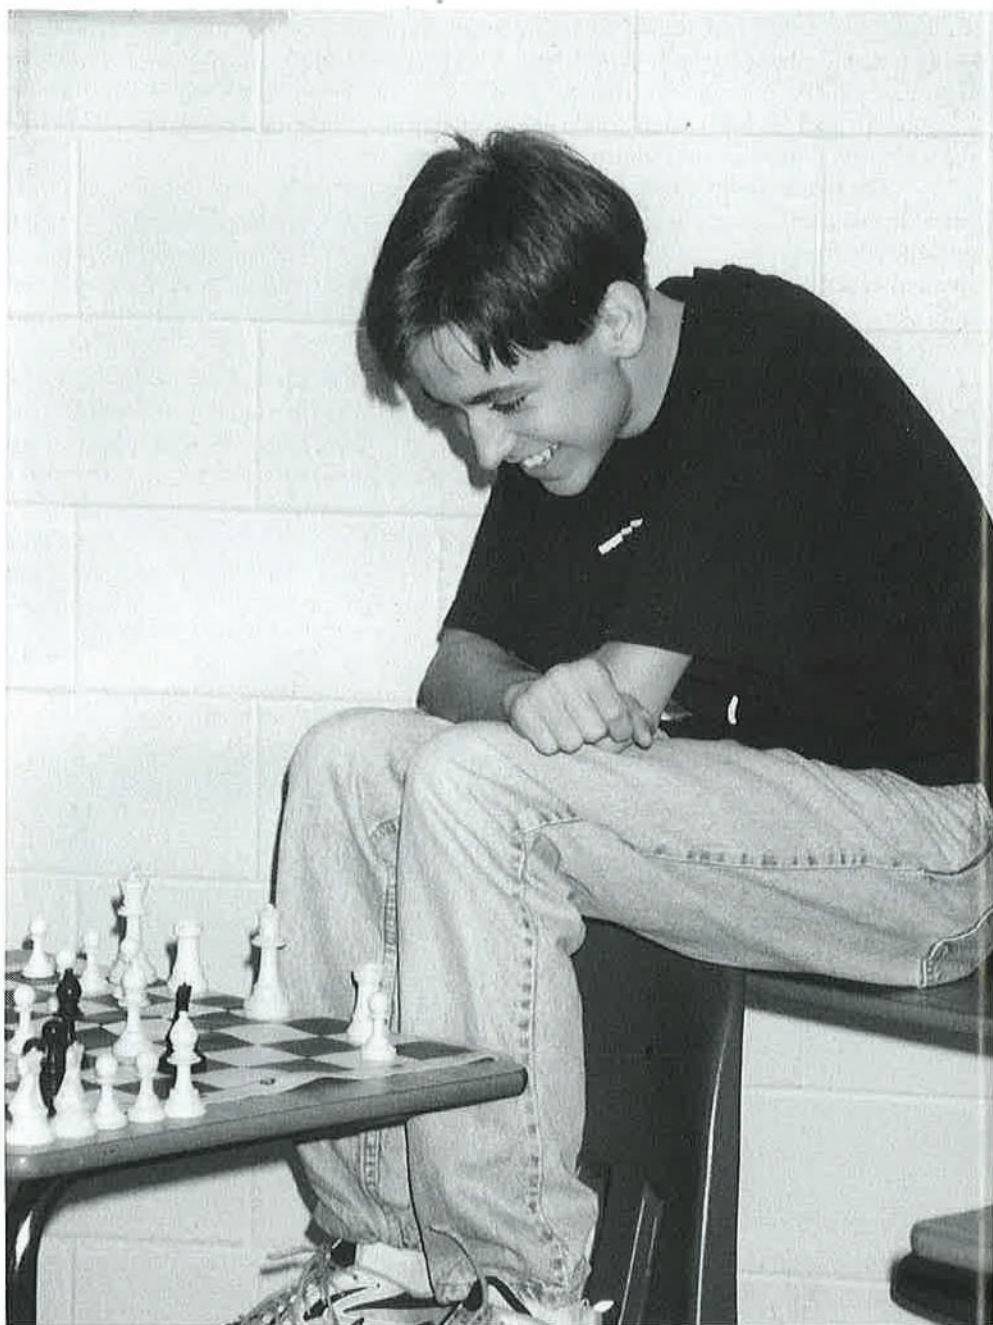

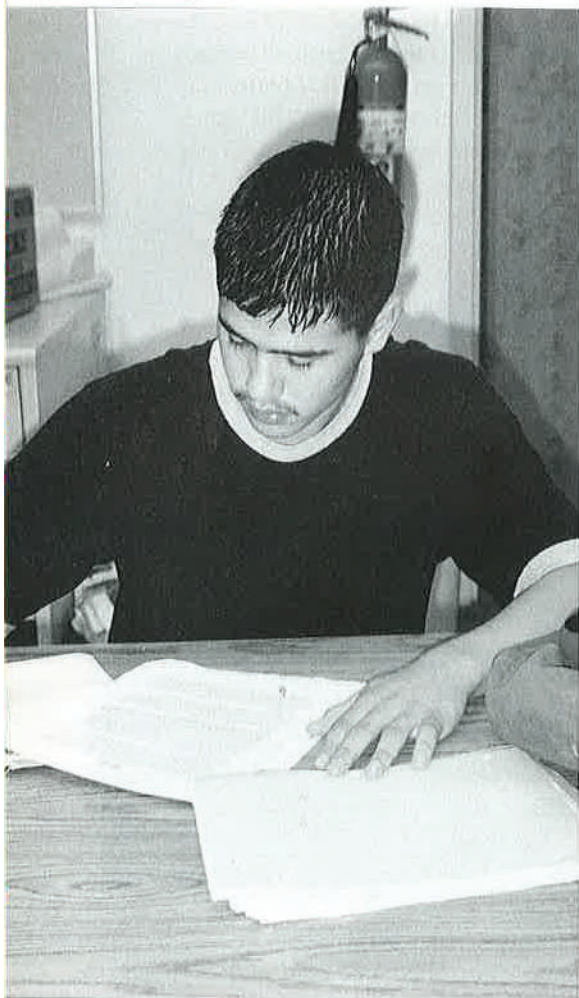

Junior Janice Charles prepares the salad for dinner. She said, "The tutoring program is a very good organization that the class of 2000 made. We can help our fellow classmates and I enjoy being there."

Caught taking a break is this set of students. Who's at attention in this platoon?

Nick Gutierrez enjoys his time playing chess during lunch, as he makes a hard decision for his next move. Nick says "If you don't work ahead you are going to get burned real quick."

Sophomore J.D. Norman makes every effort to learn the case. "Mock Trial is interesting, it gives you a chance to experience a career as a lawyer."

Mock Trial members Ludy Lopez and Sindy Salines work together to help understand the Mock Trial case a little better. Mock Trial takes a lot of time and effort to make everything come together at the end.

Challenges of I.H.S

The challenges of high school are already sky high. So what's with all these clubs that are made to challenge you even more? There's the I.H.S. Academic Team, the Chess Club, and Mock Trial. What do the members of these clubs think about the extra challenge?

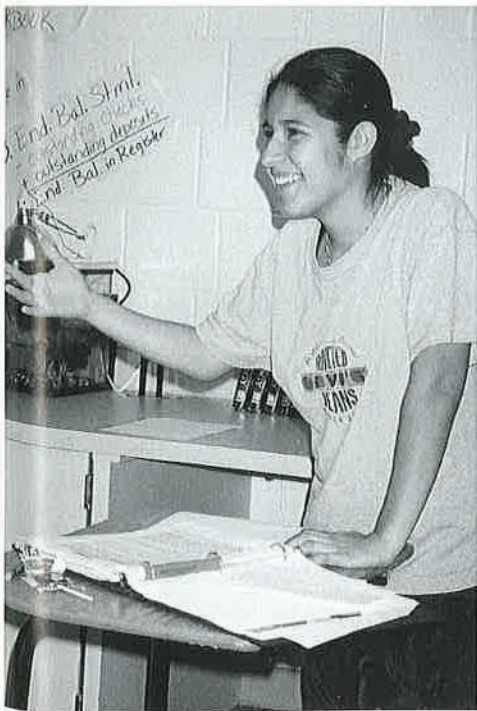

Freshman Marquetta Dobson, from the I.H.S. Academic Team, said, "It's very challenging, but it's a lot of fun at the same time. Mr. Lieb is the coach of the team. His feelings about the club are very educationally oriented. This team is good because it helps students, not only experience competition academically against other high schools, but, it also tests their knowledge. The competitions are on how much you know and how fast you can answer the questions," said Mr. Lieb.

Challenging clubs also come in the game form. Freshman Nick Gutierrez joined the chess club when he got into high school. "It's challenging, fun, and it helps me out with my problem solving skills," he said when asked how he liked the club. Their coach, Mr. Abel Jaimes, is an alumni of this school. He says that chess can help kids a lot nowadays, especially in high school. "It helps kids make strategies on how to play the game. You also need strategies in life," said Mr. Jaimes.

The Mock Trial Team is a new club and is run by Mrs. Mann. Not only does this teach the kids on how it is in the real world, but they also get to get first hand knowledge about the laws of the country. Junior Richard Gallegos said, "I love it. I have a lot more respect for lawyers now than I ever did. It's not just all fun and games, though. The team goes to competitions and they grade on how good a school handled the case. The hardest part is to learn the parts, like learning your part as a witness, lawyer, defense attorney. It's challenging," said sophomore J.D. Norman.

It seems that the kids of these challenging clubs enjoy what they're doing and even enjoy the challenge. "It's good, though, to have challenges. Without them, your life would be pretty much the same thing over and over."

Junior Maggie DelaRosa explains her point of view to the team. "It's like an extra class that you don't receive credit for. You have to concentrate on what you're doing but at the same time enjoying yourself," she said.

Just as all the students, Mr. Abel Jaimes must concentrate hard to make the right move. Things get confusing after awhile so everyone must relax and figure out their next move.

Mr. Abel Jaimes plays chess with his club during lunch. Many teachers take their own time to sponsor clubs such as the chess club.

Unique Clubs That Teach Lessons

What do Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA), Fellowship Christian Athletes (FCA), and Special Olympics have in common? Perhaps not much in what the clubs' activities and goals are, but there's one thing all members will agree on, and that is they enjoy being part of the club. If they didn't then they wouldn't be part of it, would they?

Being in any organization or club can be very rewarding. For one thing, you'll be with students that are interested in the same things you like. Besides, clubs can give you knowledge, faith, and pride. And that's exactly what FBLA, FCA and Special Olympics do respectively.

FBLA is a club that emphasizes what running a business is all about. That is why they were given the responsibility of maintaining the school's book store which is located in the cafeteria. FBLA members are responsible for keeping the store open before school and during lunch. According to junior, Guadalupe Garcia, "FBLA has helped us in many ways. One way is by teaching us what products we should buy and at what prices to sell them to make a profit."

"FCA is a club for students who want to keep their relationship open with God." This is senior, Gean Gilot's, definition of what FCA means to him. FCA members meet every Friday after school. When they come together they sing songs, pray, and read scriptures from the Bible.

Special Olympics is a year round program for athletic training and it involves olympic type sports. The students travel to different parts of the state to compete with other students. This year they've done extremely well. For example, junior Kevin McCullum won in a county basket ball competition. Another outstanding competitor was junior, Valeria Guerra, who won a gold, silver and a bronze medal in the swimming relay. When asked how she thought special olympics helps her students, Mrs. Anne Marks responded, "It keeps them physically fit and they improve in school as well."

FBLA, FCA and Special Olympics are three of the various clubs that exist at I.H.S. They are very helpful because not only do they entertain us, but teach us valuable lessons.

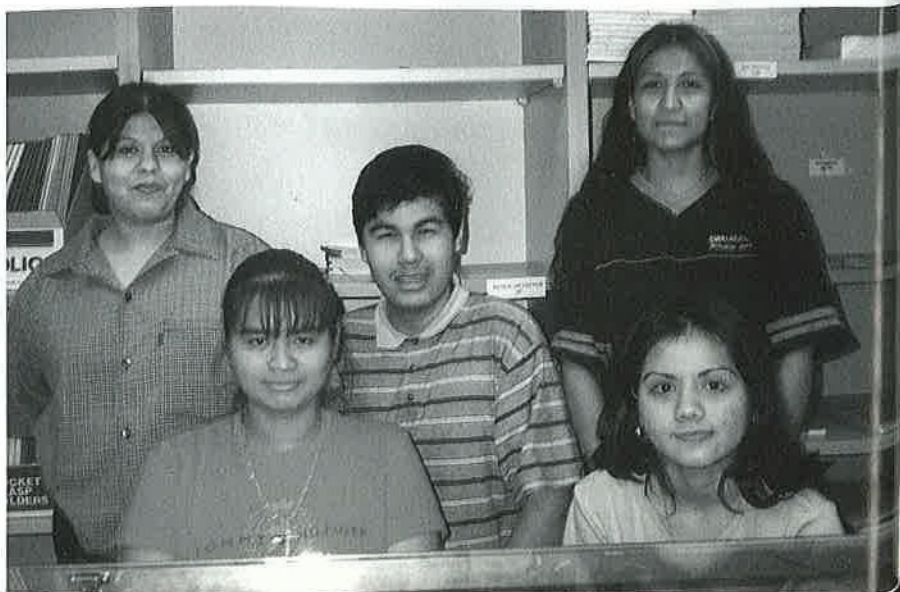

"I had lots of fun, said Valeria Guerra after winning her silver medal, right. "It felt good winning a silver medal for I.H.S.," said Sandra Estrada, left.

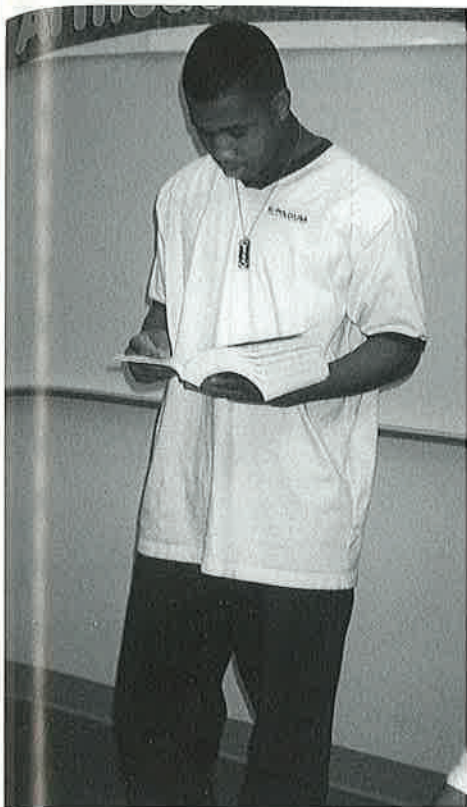

These are some of the medal winners of the swimming events of the Special Olympics. "I worked hard for my two Gold medals, but also had a great time," said Mayel Jaimes, far left.

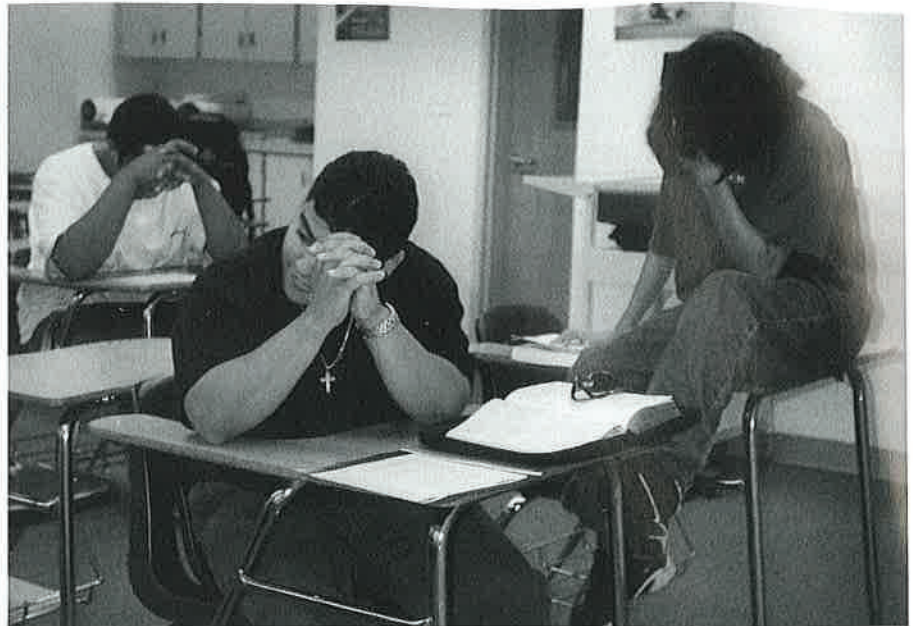

These are the members of F.B.L.A. Front Row: Rosamaria Hernander, and Guadalupe Garcia. Back Row: Marta Bustamante, Tony Molina, Vanissa Hernandez. Theses five students run the bookstore with the help of their sponser Mr. Forsell, sponzor.

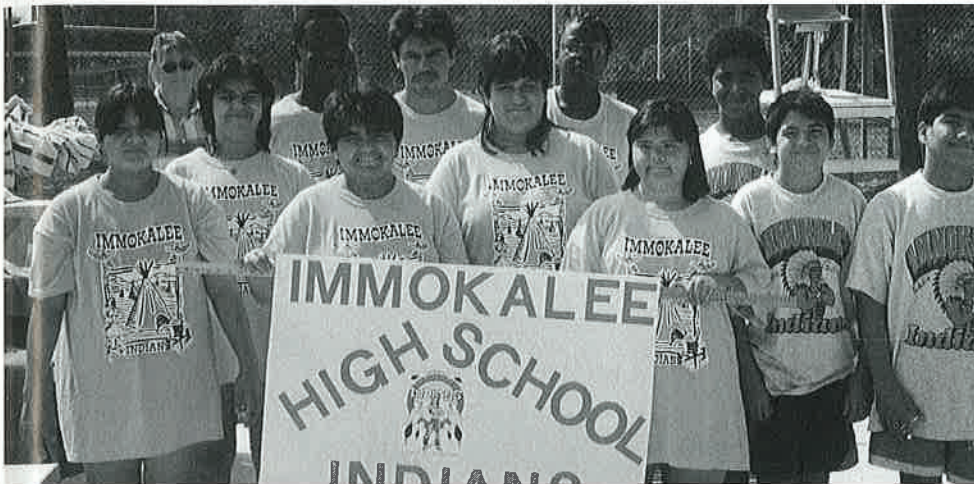

Reading the daily lesson is senior Gean Gilot, president of F.C.A. He reads aloud to the other members to inspire them. "You need Jesus," said Gilot.

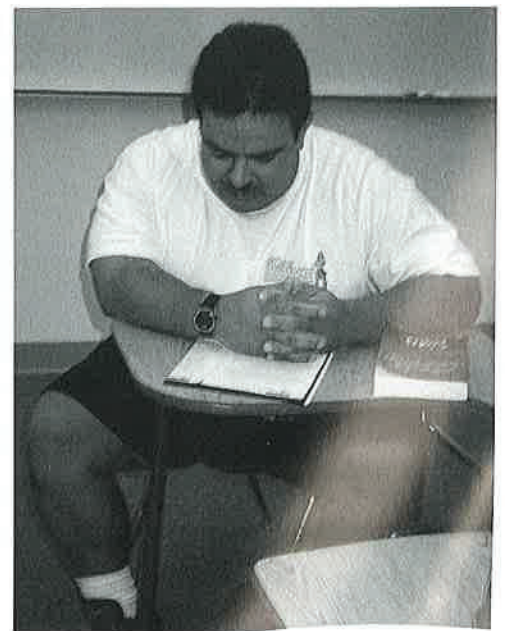

During the moment of silence we give thanks for everything. Giving thanks for all the good things that have happened in his life is Hilario Perez.

These were all the participants in the Special Olympics for I.H.S. Mrs. Marks is very proud of them for their hard work.

Arranging the pencils accordingly is Tony Molina. He works hard to keep the book-store in tip top condition.

Giving thanks for all that we have recieved is Mr Gallegos, sponsor of F.C.A. As sponsor he has devoted a lot of his time to F.C.A.

SPORTS

The Big Chiefs

"Go big red!" is the cheer you would hear at varsity football games. Varsity football is the most popular sport at many high schools, and it is no exception here. We kick off the games with pep rallies and other activities that pick up the players' spirits. People throughout the community come to see the football team in action. They come to see hard hits and sweet touchdowns made by fast running backs.

The majority of the team are seniors. This gave the team a great advantage going into the season, because of the experience the seniors had from the previous years of playing. Senior Larry Motlow, outside linebacker, said, "I like playing football because it is the only time you can hit somebody and not get in trouble." Lafayette Howard is also a senior who agrees with Larry. "I like being quick at making tackles when the guy comes my way," said Lafayette about his position as defensive tackle.

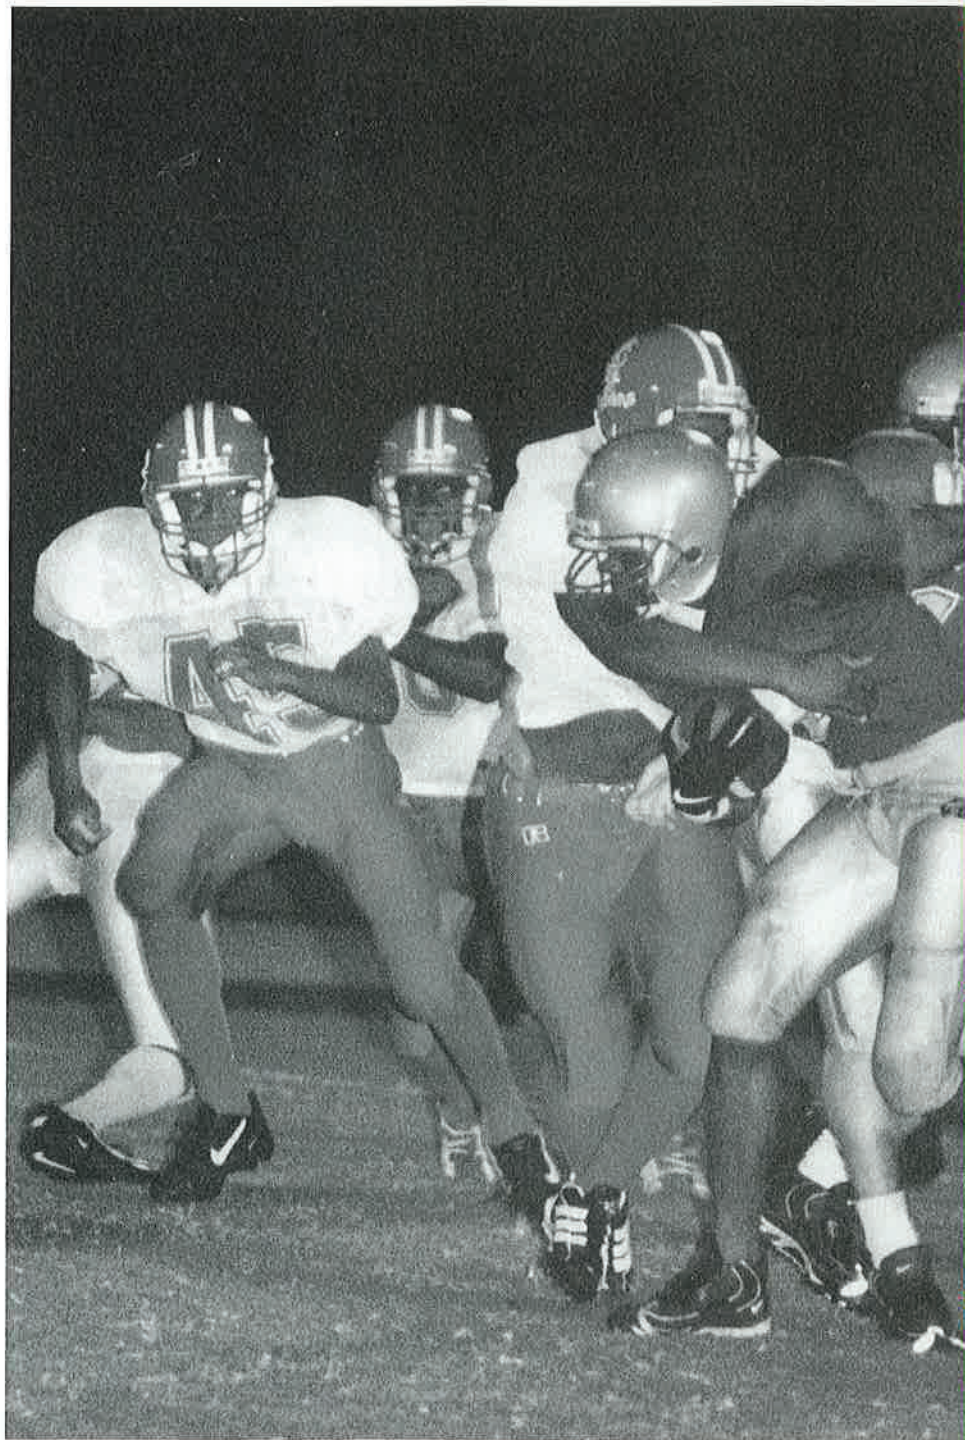

We couldn't have a great team without great coaches. "For several years I was fascinated with the ability of the Indians. When the job was opened, I applied," said head coach John Weber. He also expects next year's team to understand more of what he wants and expects out of them. When asked how he feels about the coaches, Julian Marquez replied, "I think they're real good coaches and they know what they're talking about."

So when you're thinking about wearing red and white or participating in pep rallies, remember you are supporting our varsity football Indians. Go team!

Seniors Wilson Exantus and David Hernandez read a play while Coach Israel Gallegos tells them where to block their opponent. Blocking their opponents helps our Mighty Indians become a successful team.

Ready for battle, the Fighting Indians take the field. All of them are waiting for the moment to bang heads.

Running toward the ball, the Indians battle through the Riverdale Raiders. They must always make sure the opponent is down.

Ready to make a long pass is Ronald Dehane. "I love putting the ball on the money for my receivers."

At Riverdale High School our Mighty Indians plot their next play. "This is the intensity of the game," said Coach Weber.

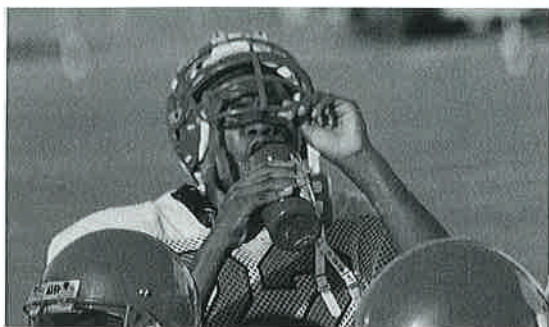

Fighting a tackle to make a touchdown is full-back, Francis Prudence. "I love running the ball and scoring touchdowns to help my team."

Football

Pride

Sitting in the stands watching the people go by and by. Watching the players move up and down the field. Running, catching and throwing the ball is just the beginning. The referees throw their flags to the spot of the play, as the players have no say. The air is cool and the mist is out. Oh, what a perfect football night, and what a beautiful sight.

The freshmen were outstanding this year. They helped keep the tradition alive. A tradition which started last year with the freshmen going undefeated. The 7-0 freshmen team closed out their season with a big bang, by defeating the Clewiston J.V. team. The freshmen played together with a group of talented running backs and a great offensive line. Their defense was also a group of outstanding players. "I feel very excited, like a winner," said Freshman Margarito Edejesus. The three things that made the freshmen winners great playing a team, fact that were disciplined.

Many players from last year's freshmen team were good enough to make the varsity team. So, the j.v. team lacked some of the players that they needed. The j.v. team was tough in all their games. In some games they were only a few points from bringing the victory home. They were even able to hang in with the varsity players in practice.

Both teams did well and will do better next season. As they come together as one, they will learn to live and play as brothers. They will learn to cry, play, win and lose as a team. They will keep that Indian Pride alive and become true champions.

"I love carrying the ball cause I'm bout it, bout it," said sophomore Madoche Jean. As he runs the rock [the ball] trying to make a hole to get yardage.

WHAT IT TAKES TO BE A CHEERLEADER

CHEERLEADERS LEAD TO CHEER
AND CHEER TO LEAD

Cheerleading is the all-American way of showing spirit. Chanting, dancing, yelling, and clapping--all of this and much more is involved. But, not just anyone can become a cheerleader and no, you don't have to be a girl. Hold on, your questions will be answered, not by just anyone, but by the cheerleaders themselves.

First of all, what qualities should a cheerleader possess? There are many good qualities that a person could have, but there are some specific ones that cheerleaders think are most important. Freshman cheerleader Toni Sanchez said, "[Cheerleaders] shouldn't be shy or softspoken. They should be loud, energetic, and let everybody know it." Isn't that a mouthful? Do you have these qualities? Calm down, you're not there yet. There are more things that potential cheerleaders need to have or to know.

Next, there are the cheerleading basics. These are the most simple things that every cheerleader needs to know how to do. Kristi Williams believes that there are three basic cheerleading skills that one should know. She said, "[You need to know] how to be loud..., how to be a leader, and how to bring people together to show their spirit for the school."

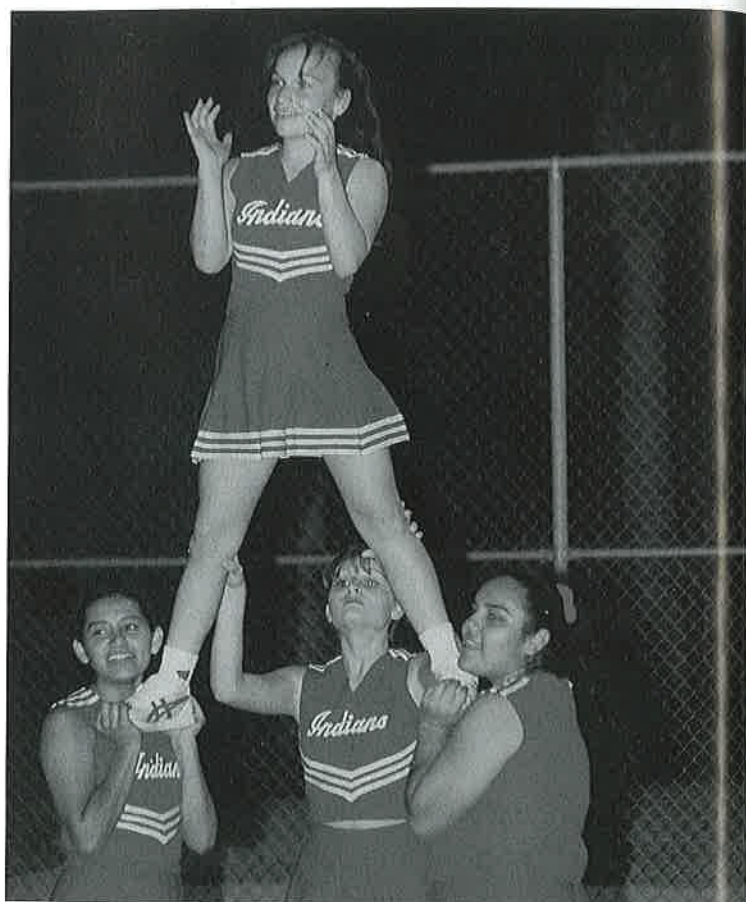

Lastly, do you have to be a girl to be a cheerleader? Absolutely not! Senior Danny Campos shows his spirit by being a cheerleader. "I think it's great--having boys as cheerleaders--because not many schools have them and other schools recognize it. They think it's cool," Danny commented.

So, get out there and show your Indian pride. The cheerleaders have let you know what characteristics you need to possess. All you need to do is give it a shot. Do you have what it takes?

After school, junior Elizabeth Leal practices the cheers for an upcoming football game. "Practice is fun because we joke around and practice at the same time," she said.

To grab the attention of the audience the cheerleaders do a variety of stunts. The stunts take lots of practice and lots of falls before they are mastered and performed for the crowd.

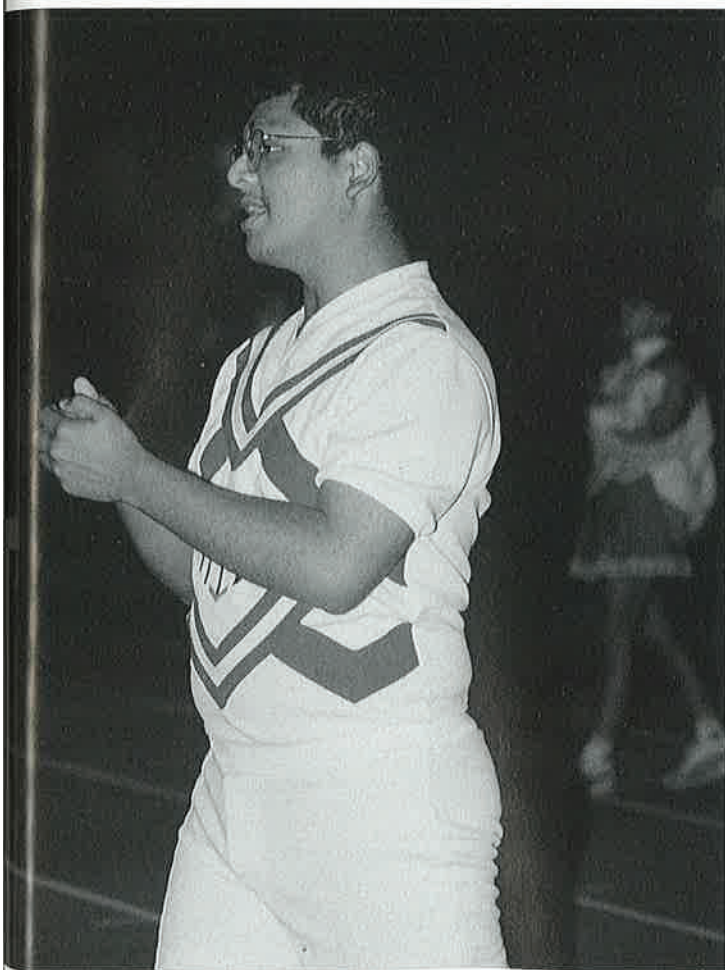

Senior Jessica Mendoza cheers at the Homecoming game against the Lemon Bay Manta Rays. A cheerleader's spirit is never down.

During a game, juniors Toni Jones and Fabiola Breme take a moment to dance with the mascot. "I've been a cheerleader for a long time and I enjoy it very much," said Toni.

During halftime, the j.v. cheerleaders sit on the bench and watch the Gulf Coast H.S. halftime show. "Cheerleading is fun to be in the spirit and it represents our school," said Diana Cody.

The only male cheerleader on the squad, senior Danny Campos cheers with pride. "Cheerleading is not only for girls," he explained.

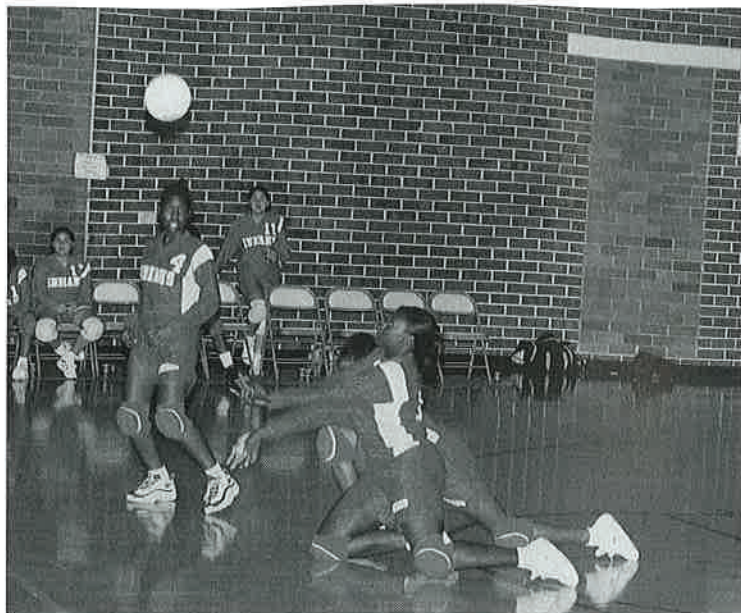

At an away game, the freshmen cheerleaders stand at the sideline to pump up the boys. They must have done a good job, because the football team ended with an awesome record.

During a break, these freshmen cheerleaders pose for the camera. Starting to cheer as a freshman improves chances of making the varsity squad.

Sophomore Mislin Bazil strikes the ball during the game. This takes a lot of strength and concentration in order for it to get over the net.

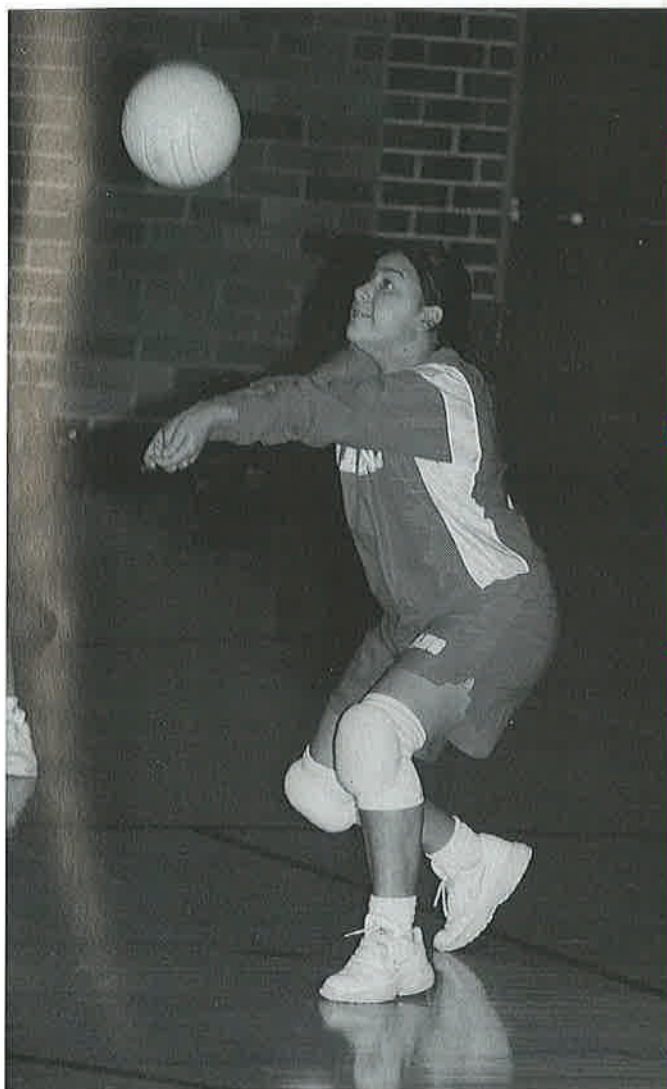

The team takes advantage of all three touches allowed before hitting the ball over the net. One! Two! Three! it's over the net.

After a long ride, it's good to get warmed up. Nancie Predelus shows her enthusiasm by putting forth a lot of effort during pre-game practice.

Senior Marisol Herrera stretches to set the ball during a varsity game. "I concentrate on trying to set the ball at a certain spot," she said.

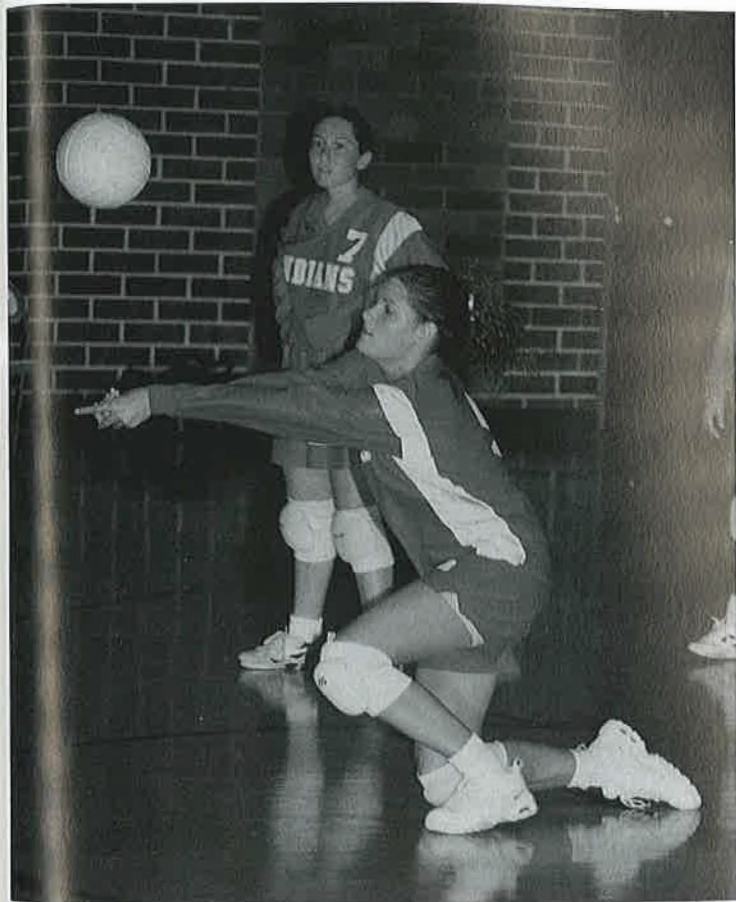

"I love to play and I work hard to show it," said junior Anna Herrera. Always keep your eye on the ball.

VOLLEYBALL:

RESTRUCTURED AND REFINED

Senior Jeni Sharpe falls to her knees to save the ball from hitting the ground! Knee pads help a lot during a game.

The lady indians worked very hard this year to spike down their opponents. Although they weren't victorious in every game, they had a great year and a fun time. This year, not only did they have to concentrate on the games and practices, but they had to adapt to two new coaches, coach Kimberly Fields and Lynn Bartlett, for this season.

Varsity coach Kimberly Fields formerly trained junior varsity volleyball. She helped the team put in extra effort to make this year the best. "It was difficult to coach because we lost almost the entire starting team to graduating students. We had to rebuild the team," commented coach Fields. Coach Fields is a hard working person who seeks to get the best out of the athletes and the players certainly could feel the burn of her expectations. "When coach Fields gets down to business she's really tough," said varsity player

Maude Richards.

Meanwhile, coach Lynn Bartlett, who was totally new to Immokalee High, made a positive impact on the team. "[Coach Fields] is more concerned about making the team play their best than winning," said sophomore Gilberte Bastien.

Without a doubt it was a rough season in one aspect, but a good season in another. The hardest thing about volleyball and probably any sport for that matter, according to j.v. player Natasha Cave is, "attending every practice on time and trying to play your best." On the other hand, varsity player Jenni Sharpe believes it was a good season because the team worked better together. Jeni said, "We seem to get along with each other and as a team."

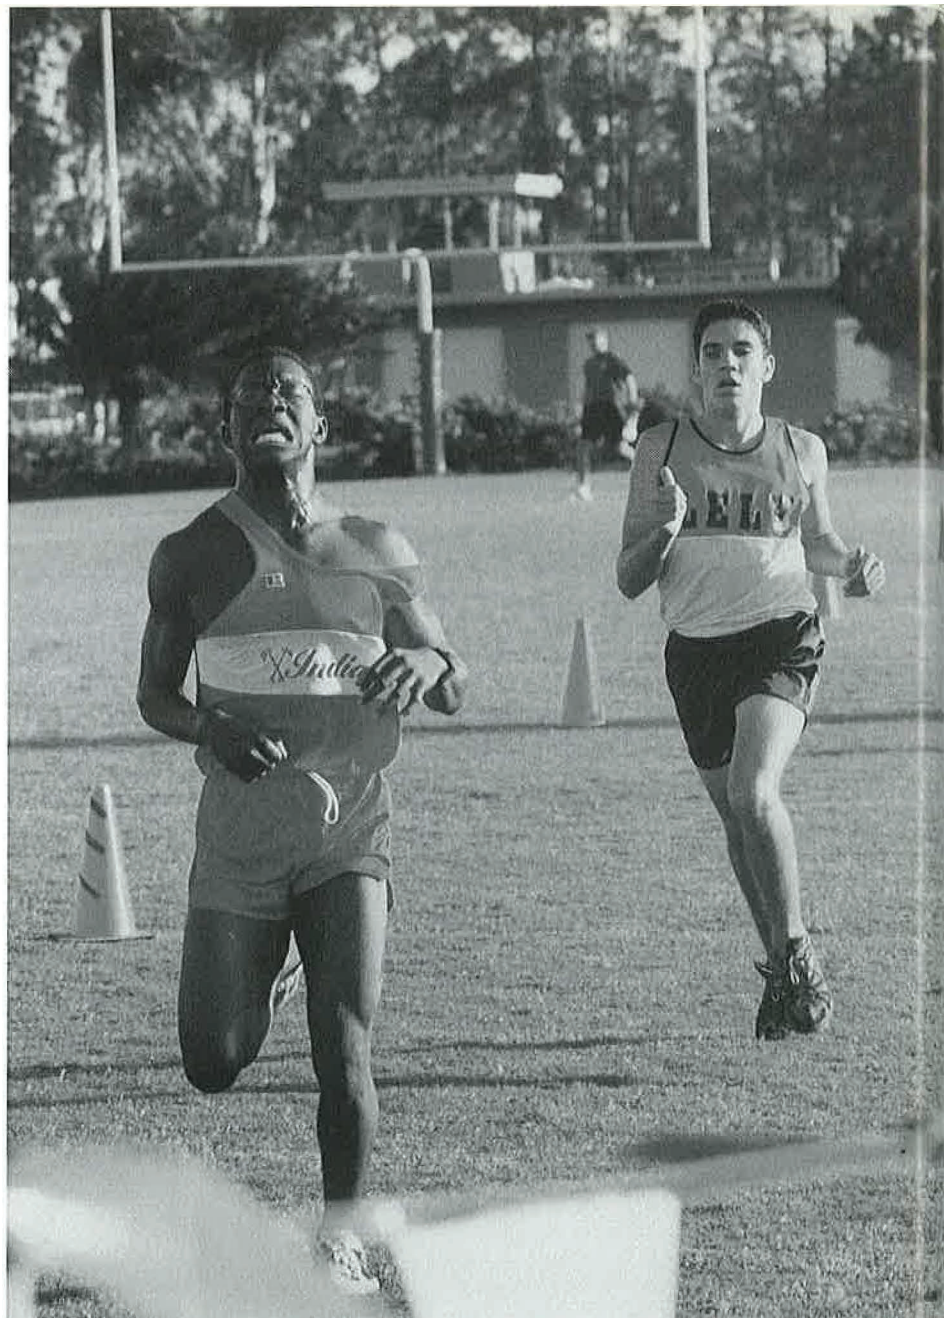

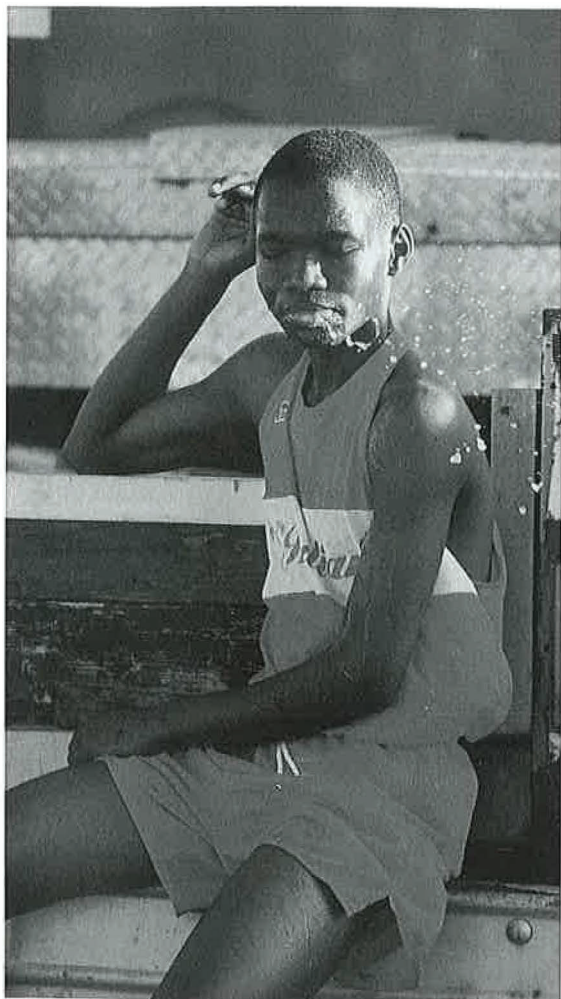

Overall, the rewards of playing volleyball outweighed the difficulties and obstacles the team faced. There's no better reward than the memories made on the court. "It's funny to see your team mates collide with each other trying to hit the ball!" exclaimed varsity player Brinta Pharisen. These are the things any team player will keep with them long after the scoreboards have been erased.

The varsity volleyball team comes to peace with their opponents after a game. The Indians show their good sportsmanship and Indian pride.

Senior Frantz-Pierre Louis finds some extra energy, somewhere in his body to finish strong. He has been on the cross country team for four years.

"I was too tired to even take a drink of water," said Mark Henry. Too exhausted to carry on, he was asked by his coach to sit out.

After a long and tiring race, junior Araceli Ramirez, finally gets to take a breather. "It was hard and a very hot day to run, but [I] stuck through it and finished," commented a tired Araceli Ramirez.

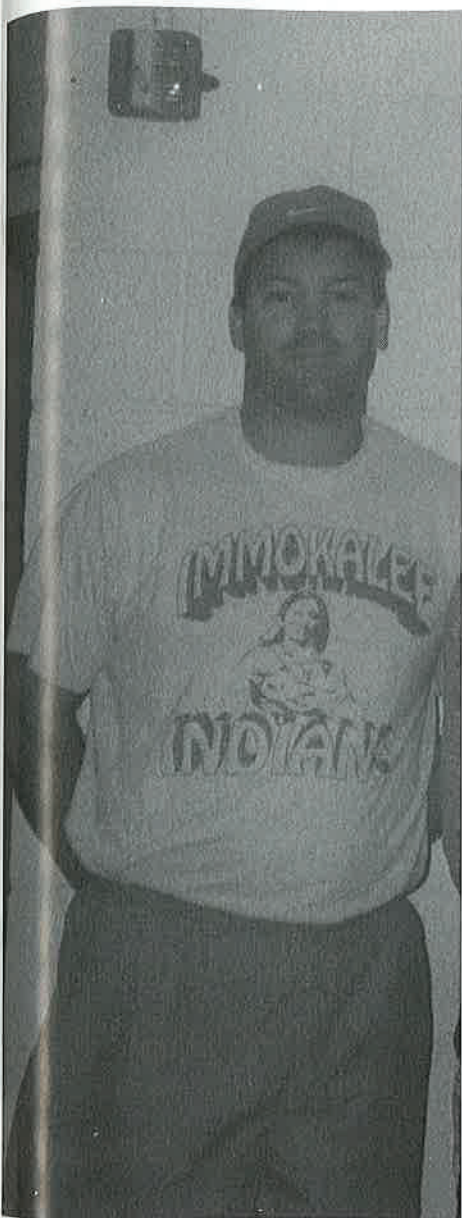

Determined to get to the finish line, senior Hughes Villate pushes himself to keep going. He was one of the many that finished in the top ten this season.

Coach Steve Grimes has helped the boys understand that they have the potential to win another championship. With this advice the boys have become as dedicated as ever to win.

This year's cross country team consists of more energetic and spirited runners. These guys have enough potential to make it far.

GONE WITH THE WIND

The boy's cross-country team has had a very good year. The boys team consists of seven boys. Mr. DelaRosa said that the greatest achievement made by the cross-country team is that, "Coach Grimes and the boys have managed to maintain the standards of management that has standardized the capabilities of the runners and can expect them to win another championship." Coach DelaRosa is referring to the district win gained by our team.

The girls cross-country has had difficulties, though. A cross-country team must consist of five girls, while ours consisted of only three. This made it impossible to win group championships, but they were able to win individual championships. Their star girl runner was junior Araceli Ramirez. "Since we can't win trophies for team competition, I try to run a lot of individual competitions. I've placed between first and tenth place," said Araceli. About the lack of teammates, junior Maggie DelaRosa had to say, "We need more committed girls. You have to have pride in running."

The cross-country team is trying harder and harder each year. They are all looking forward to the beginning of the track season so they can say that cross-country is "Gone With The Wind."

"I wasn't about to let anyone beat me to the finish line," said senior Frantz Pierre-Louis.

With the clock ticking and the time running, senior Louis Crispain gives it his all to get a first place finish. "I was feeling very strong at the end, but I didn't cut it out like I wanted to because I ran out of time," he said.

UNITED TRIBE! 11 MIGHTY INDIANS

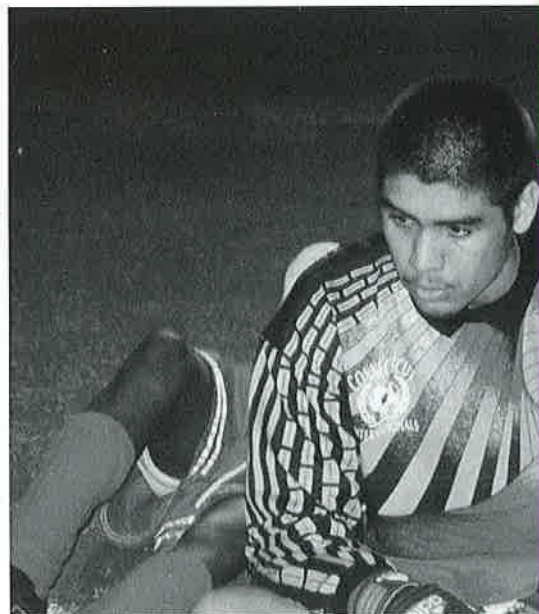

United means coming together and forming one. You'll think that as you see the soccer team go out on the field to take an Indian victory. They come out together as one. When asked how do you feel about being apart of the soccer team, Schmid Belleus replied, "I feel pretty good about of soccer team." Eleven of our Indians go and give one-hundred and ten percent to win the game as the rest of the team cheers them on. As they trade off, eleven others go and try to accomplish the same thing. Eleven at a time, our mighty Indians give a superior effort to win a game for our school and for the team. "It's the best thing that can happen to you in a day, said junior, Greg Pierre, when asked how does he feel after winning a game.

Running from post to post switching from offense to defense in a split second, you will see red and white all over the field. As they make a goal, the team congratulates themselves. It just doesn't take one person to make a goal. It take the whole team. They show hard teamwork as they work to beat their opponent. As they win the game, all that hard work at practice finally payed off. When asked how do you feel about the effort you give toward the game, junior, Lucsene Relavie said, "I feel proud of myself." As they walk off the field with a victorious win, they still walk together forming one. That's what you call a united tribe.

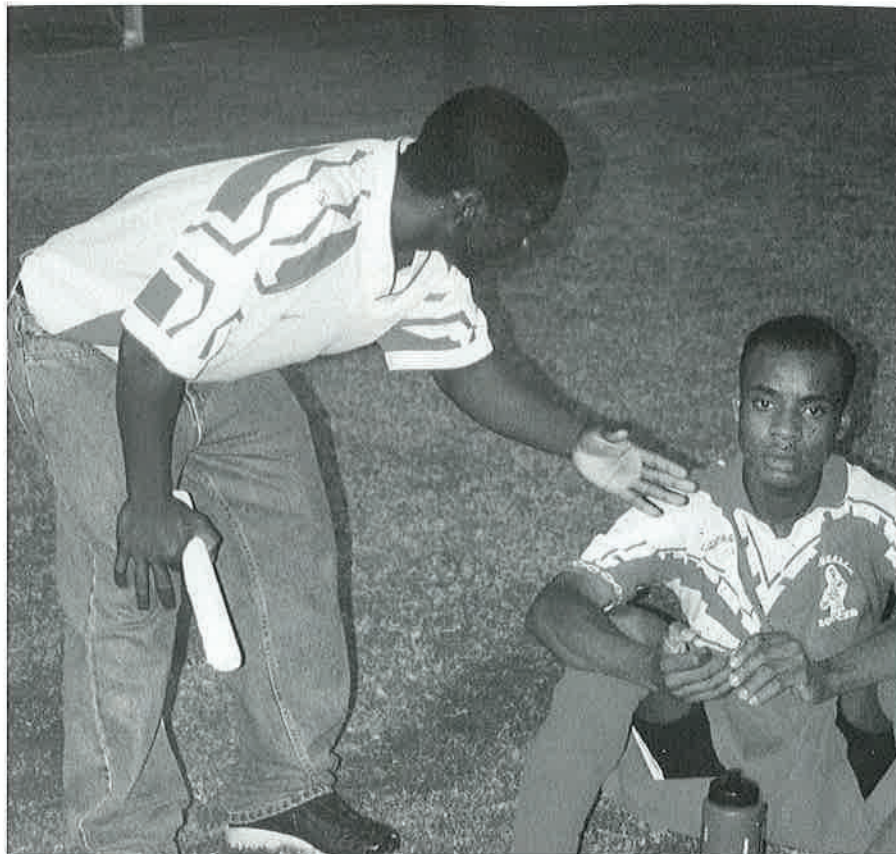

Heel to heel competition is what soccer is all about. Junior, Moses Grimaldo dodges a Lemon Bay player to keep the ball in his possession.

Sophomore, Chris Rosas, sits and thinks about the goals that were scored in the first half of the game. As goalie, it is his responsibility to block the opponent from making a goal.

Varsity player senior, Gabriel Jimenez swings his leg to get the ball away from his opponent. "I really like to play soccer it's one of my favorite sports " said Gabriel.

The j.v. coach Andre Dorce gives instructions to his player Erick Berrette. A coach's instruction is Still keeping an eye on the game, while taking time out for a drink is junior Abed Boyer. Soon after, he joined in the game once again.

Varsity player Kendy Beague rushes to get to the ball before his opponent gets to it. "I feel that this year has been the best," said Kendy.

Move it to the right! No, move it to the left! Freshmen, Jorge Trefo, concentrates to keep control of the ball and score a goal for his team.

"Me, well I've been playing soccer for a long time now--three years. It's exiting and I play just for the fun of it," said Helena Tumball. Concentrating and running is the key to keeping the ball.

"This was my first year playing soccer. Although I don't plan to play it next year, it's been fun," said Maggie Delarosa. She makes a run for the goal, and her teammates provide great defense so she can go untouched.

"I've been playing soccer for two years now and I still like it. I wanted to play soccer because the other games seemed to girlish to me," said Stephanie Pierre-Fils. Here she's kicking the ball away from the net and taking it to the other side to make a goal for the Indians.

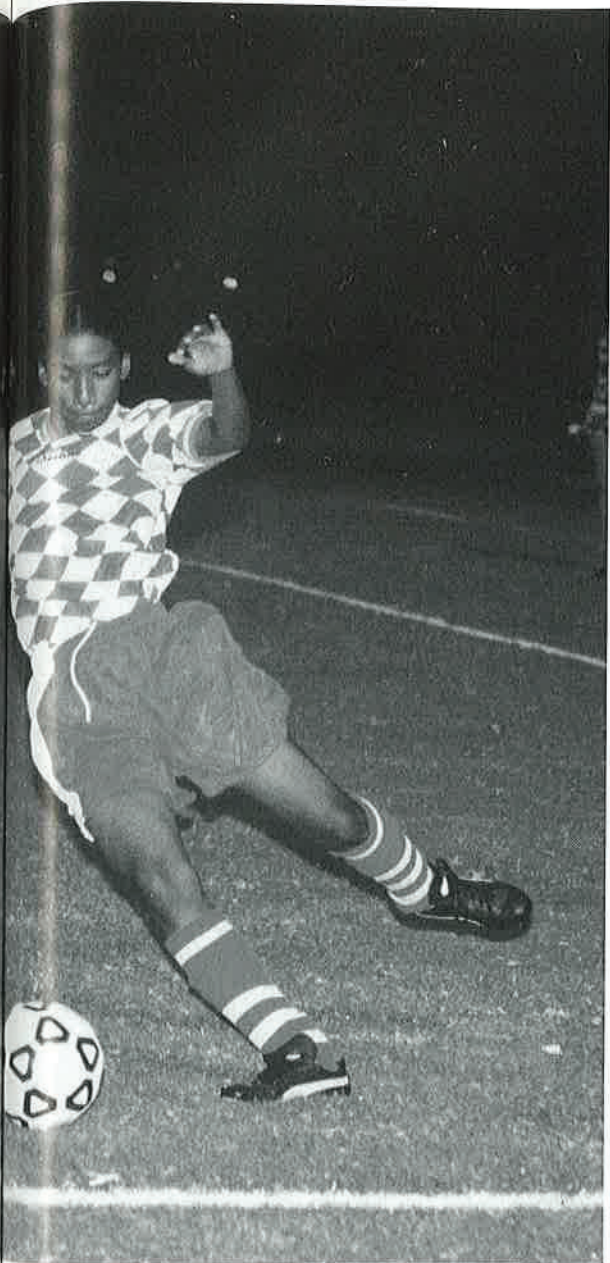

Senior Joane Narcisse makes an interesting facial expression while ensuring her opponent doesn't go near the net. Defense, defense is the way to keep them away.

"It's a team game and a good workout," said Maude Richard. Bouncing the ball with your knees is the a great way to distract the other team. They can't see where the ball is going.

STRONG SPIRITS!

GO LADY INDIANS!

The girl's varsity soccer team had a slow start at the beginning of the season. The problem was that there weren't enough girls to form a team. Fortunately, they formed a team and excitedly ran to the soccer field. Through it all, their spirits never died.

This year Coach Julio De La Rosa took over the team. Coach De La Rosa said, "I like coaching a lot. My goal is to teach them enough about the game so that they have a good time playing." Defense! Offense! these girls are learning it all.

Playing soccer has its advantages and disadvantages. For one thing, you can either get hit with the ball or fall while running, but one thing is for sure, the lady Indians completely enjoy it. With its ups and downs, girls love the challenge. "Soccer is a very fun and active sport," commented sophomore Sindy Salinas.

New coach, new season--these girls are going all the way. Kicking, running, bumping heads, and much more comes with the wonderful sport we call soccer. They may have had a slow start, but they will make sure they have a big finish!!

Two is better than one. While Anita Delarosa blocks the other player, Charlie Polite makes a run for the ball.

"Soccer is very exiting and enjoyable. I like it a lot," said senior Kerlynn Zetrenne. Here she's working to keep the ball in her possession.

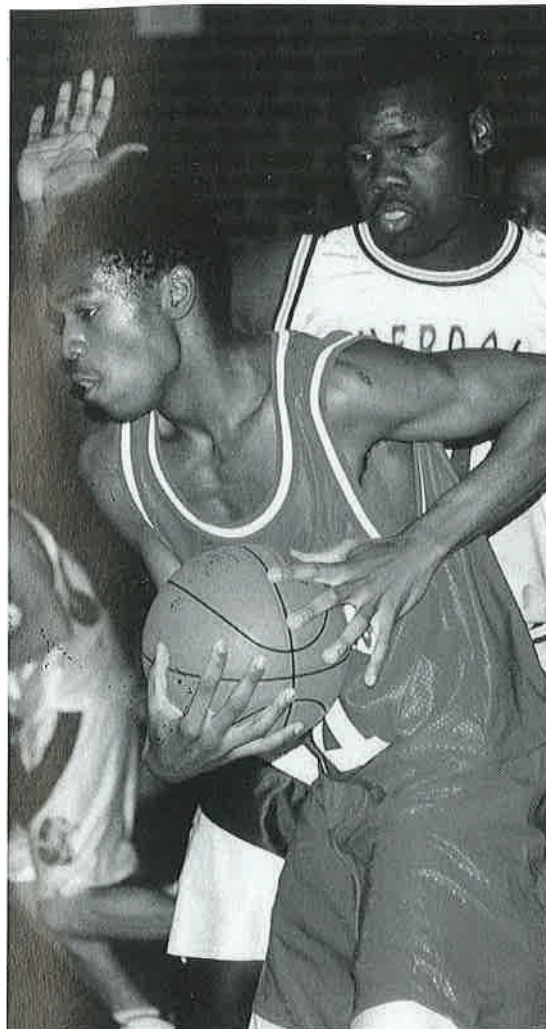

Making a lay-up is Brinton Williams. He's adding another two points for his team. This was crucial in their win against Riverdale.

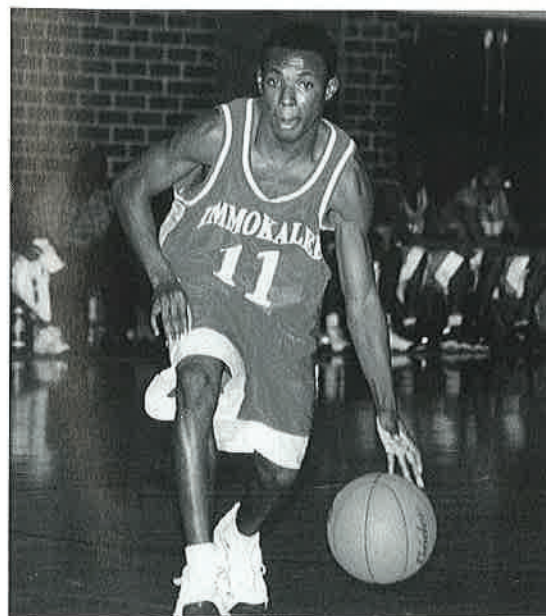

Varsity player Jean Pieere is going up for a shot. He is looking for a clear shot to the basket.

Four-year player, Jermaine Holloway, gets a rebound and gets ready to pass it to the point guard.

Junior Ronald Dehaney dribbles down the court looking for an open player. Being ready to pass the ball is a big part of teamwork that leads to winning a game.

Dribbling around his opponent is junior Eric Dobson. This is the only way to get to the basket to make a lay-up.

HOW TO FLY

VARSITY BASKETBALL

Listen! Do you hear that sound? The forever sound of squeaking shoes, a ball bouncing on the floor, the swishing of the net, and the cheering of the crowd. Welcome to the Immokalee Indians' Gymnasium.

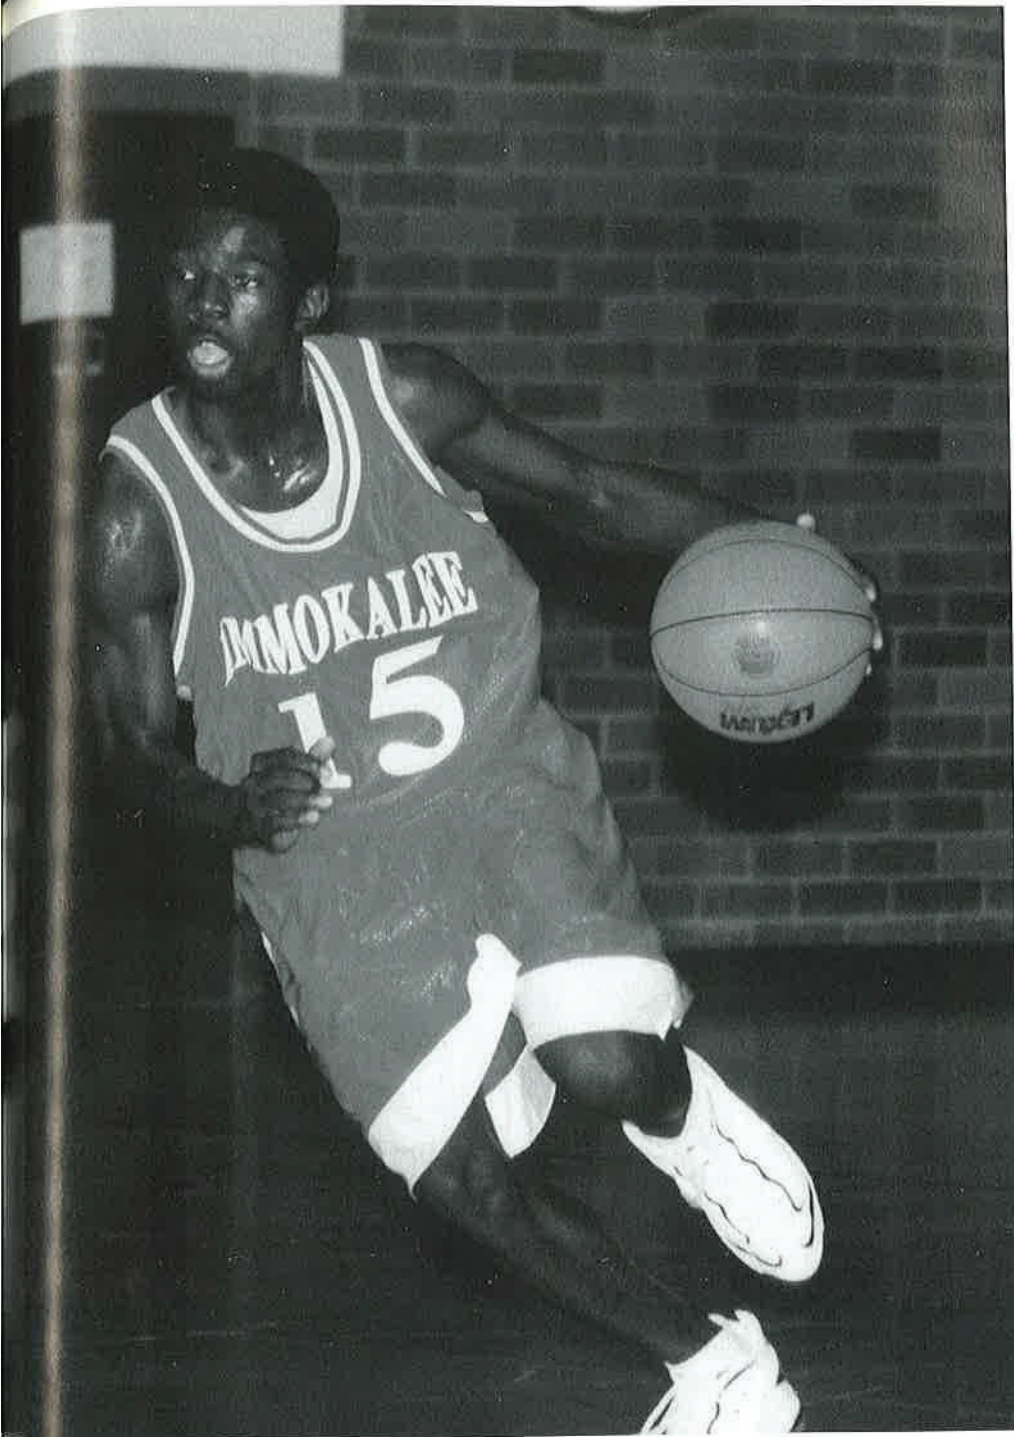

This year, the varsity basketball team had an uncertain beginning. Coming off of a great season last year, they lost last year's head coach, a great group of seniors, and two dominant underclassmen players. With only two returning lettermen from last year's squad, some unexpected help, and a new coach the Indians started off on the right foot.

The varsity team is young, meaning that there are a lot of first-year players. Their goals are to first, grow as a team and become better basketball players. Next, they want to win some games, allowing them to clench the district title and enter the state play-offs like last year's team.

Despite its uncertain beginning, the players and the coaching staff pulled together to focus on its goals which involved making a solid foundation of teamwork that would lead to personal motivation and team wins. IHS is very proud of Coach Damon Jones and the varsity team. Not only did their hard work bring home the district championship and enter us into the state play-offs, but they also revived our Indian spirit. This "young" team really did learn how to fly!

Senior Brinton Williams attempts to block his opponent from making a lay-up, but instead he gets a foul. Many times this non-contact sport gets very physical.

In a game against Riverdale, senior Yoshi Smith takes the ball into play after our opponent scored. Now it's our turn to score.

SHOOTING HOOPS

B-ball, hoops, ballin', and ball. Those are all slang terms for the great sport here at IHS called basketball. What makes it so great? The members of the JV and Freshmen team of course!

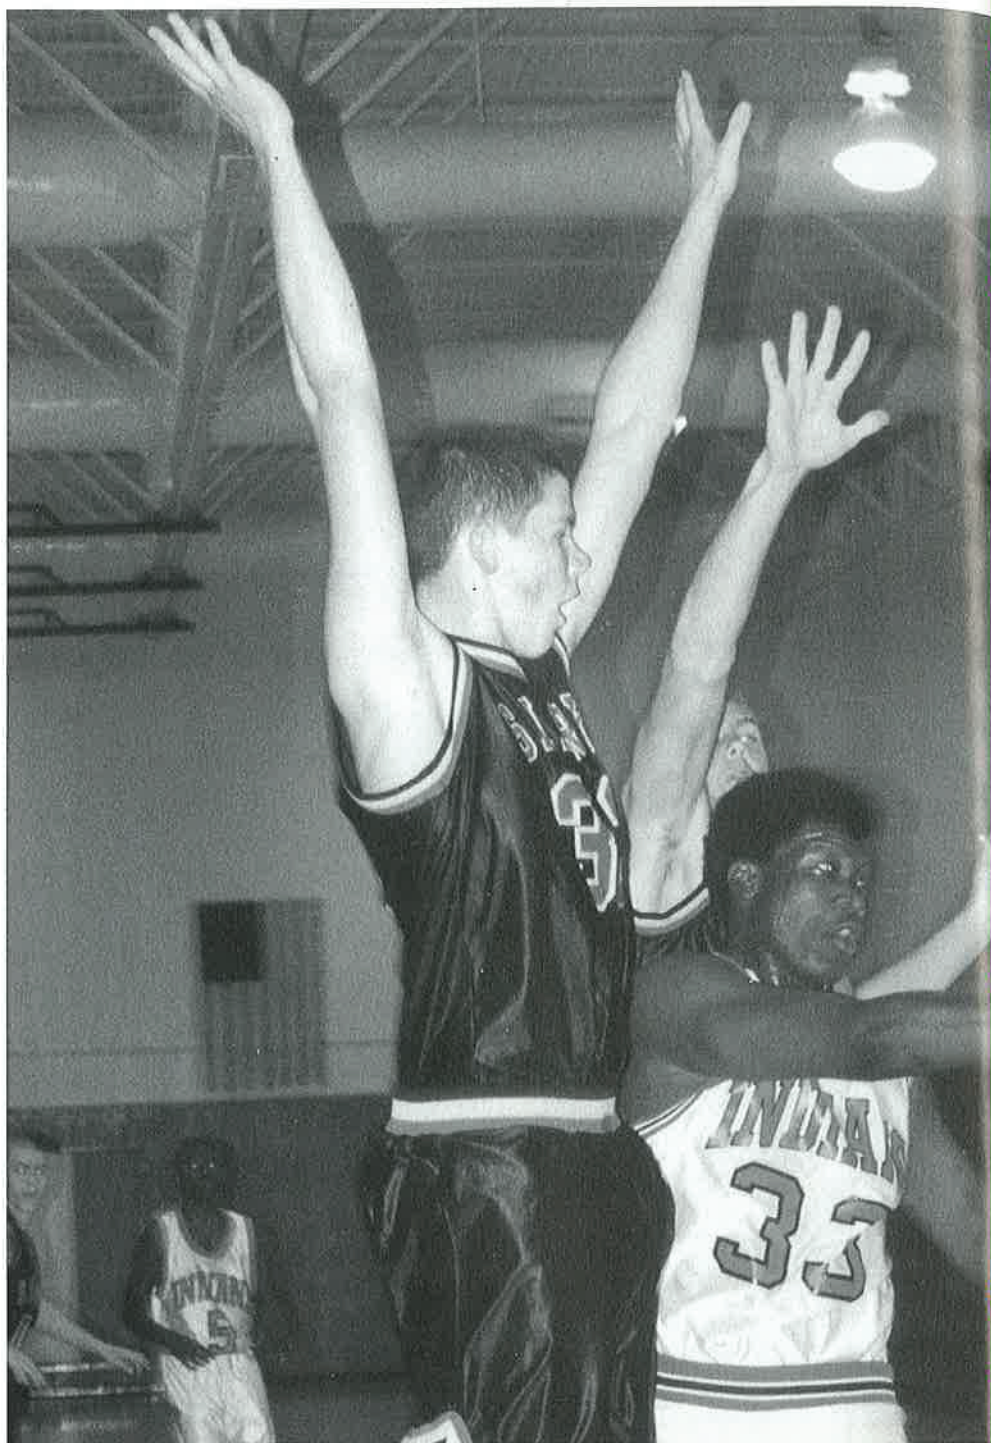

Coach Tony Allen, JV coach, and Coach Nate Houston, Freshmen coach, have been leading the boys to victory many times during this season. Freshmen team member, Zachery Holloway, proudly boasted, "We're undefeated and we'll stay that way!"

The Freshmen team is not the only team with success. The JV team is also bringing home wins, although they have had a few losses. "We're just as good as any other school. We have better athletes. We just need to work more as a team," said JV player Robbie Lee. With that strategy in mind I'm sure the JV team has more successes in store for their future.

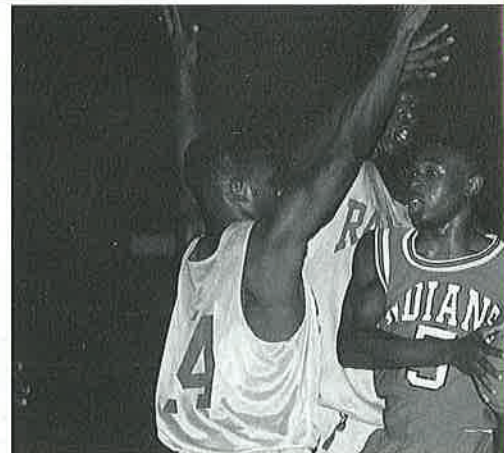

Besides the sweat, victories, practices, and competition what else do the players enjoy about the sport? "I like dunking," JV player Jenula Louis, offers gladly. Zachery Holloway followed by saying, "Game day is my favorite part. It's exciting!"

Wow! It looks like basketball is really lighting up the gym this year.

"I get very excited about driving a hole and I try to make our team win as much as possible," said Richard Burgess.

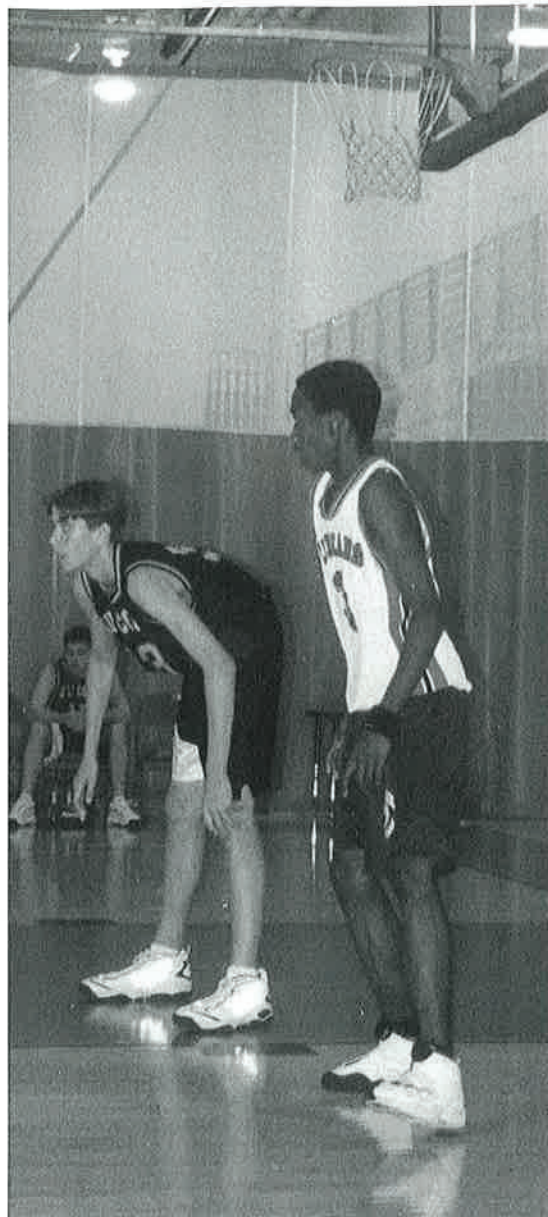

"When I make a shot, it gives me confidence, and I get the team motivated," said J.V. Basketball player Lagarian Houston.

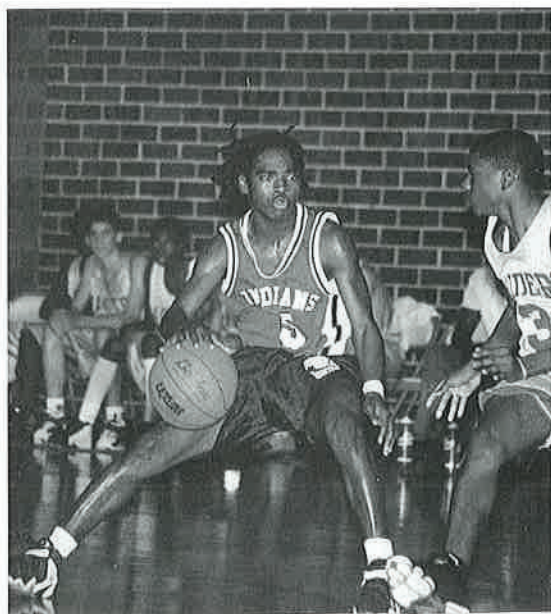

"I've played basketball for five years because it's fun and it keeps me in shape," said Walter Campbell.

J.V.
Basketball player Zack Holloway said, "I enjoy playing basketball because it's fun and it's a good athletic sport and it keeps me in shape."

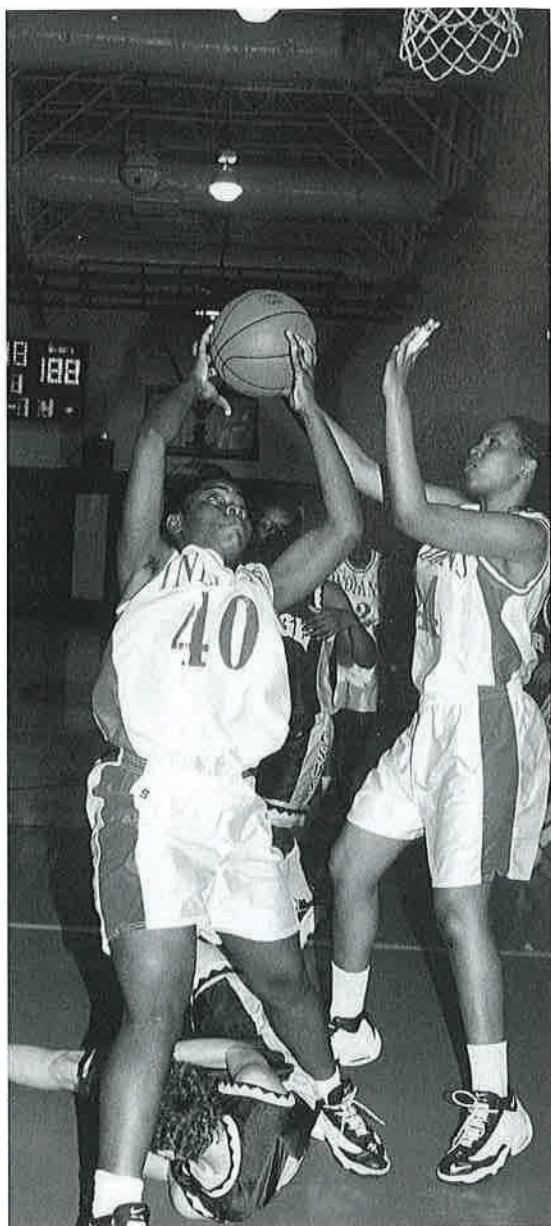

Freshman basketball player Yves Dieudonne posts up at a home game to score points for his team.

During the freshmen basketball game Johnathan Jackson strives to pull his team ahead of the Raiders. "My favorite part about playing basketball is scoring points," said Johnathan.

In an away game, Walner Belleus is playing an intense game against the Raiders. "I play because it's fun and I like playing basketball," he said.

Katiana Louis gets a rebound. She puts it back up before falling over a Lehigh player.

Freshman Florance Parker gets a rebound. She must decide to either put it up or pass it out.

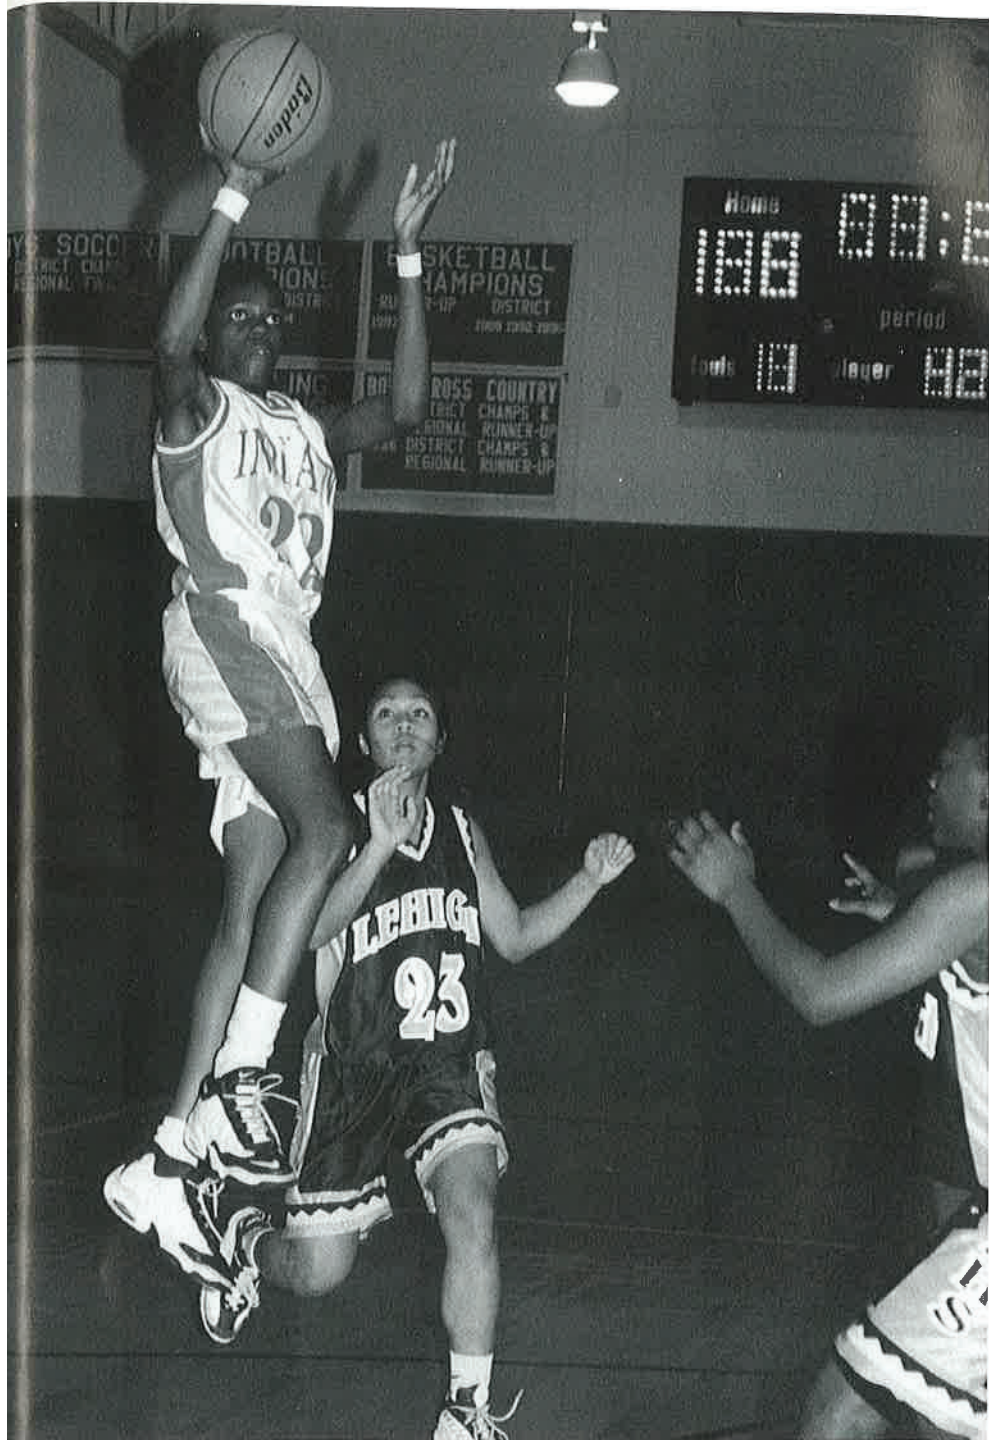

Nothing but net as Joseline Jocurin shoots a jump shot. It rolled around the rim and it went in!

Senior Sannestine (TiTi) Fortin shoots for 2. Lehigh tries to stop her, but too late.

As Sophomore Porcha Shaw dribbles around her opponite, she tries to go up for an easy lay up.

NEW COACH, NEW ATTITUDE

This year the girls basketball team got a new coach. His name is Mr. John Thomas and he may be one of the best coaches that the girls team has ever had. "This year is better than last year. This will probably be our best season yet," said junior Joceline Jocurin. "Coach Thomas is a good coach. He's hard and I like hard coaches. Everytime he yells, we do better. He's very encouraging," she added.

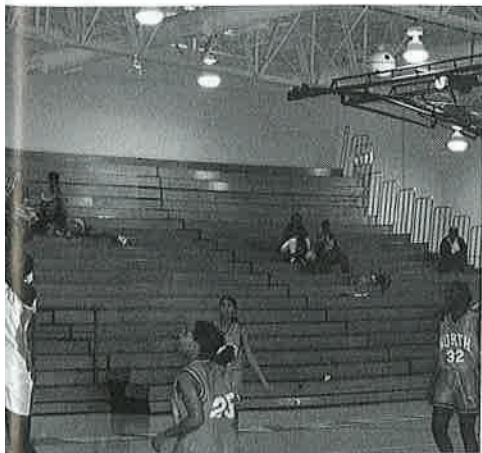

When asked about his expectations of the team, Coach Thomas answered, "I just desire that these girls be all they can be. I want them to do their best." Apparently, they are. Some fans have gone to Coach Thomas and said the girls' attitudes have changed dramatically on the court and in the classroom. "I heard that their attitudes changed, and in the public's eye, that must be successful. But I won't be successful in my eyes until we win a championship," he replied.

The goal this year for the girls basketball team is to be District Champions. Coach Thomas believes in the girls' abilities and have affected them in a positive manner. With a coach like Coach Thomas, we probably will win.

Nadage Dumel is adds 2 points for the team. She made 13

CATCH IT!

It seems the school caught a case of serious "wrestlemania". This year, the team had a great increase in new members (see team picture). It was as if a wave of interest had flooded the male population and induced them to join the team.

Among the new members was freshman Juan Esparza. He stated, "What I liked most about this sport is the moves, and I think a did pretty good for a freshman." Sophomore Youwus Vilpre said, "What I liked was the competition," and Jesus Barnhart had to say his favorite part was "winning and the girls at the tournaments."

Three senior captains were Jesus Barnhart (28-4), Pedro Santiago (29-8), and Larry Motlow (27-6) who were experienced strong points for the team. However, the whole team practiced discipline, the importance of thinking before moving and the pride of wrestling well. "The key to being a good wrestler is thinking before you make a move. That's it," explained Youwus. "Also, you have to be aggressive, devoted, and dedicated," Pedro added.

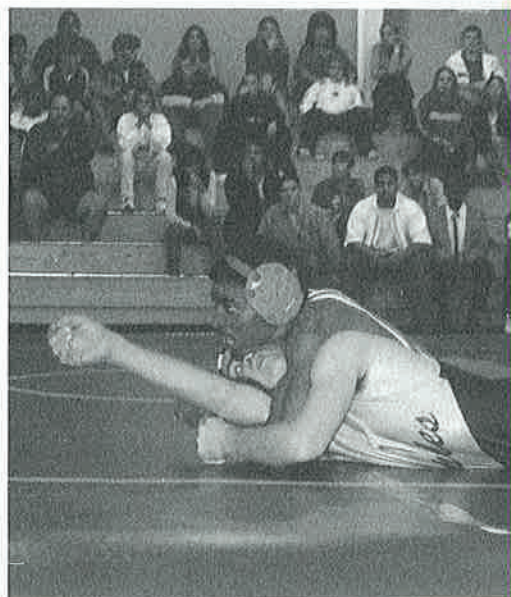

Coach Ed Munn summed up the season, "It was a successful season. We were district runner-ups, won the Sebring tournaments, and placed second in the Lemon Bay and Jacksonville tournaments. We also took four wrestlers to states and all won at least one match."

"We really recommend wrestling because it gets you in shape and teaches you about life," said Larry Motlow. Getting in shape, learning about pride, discipline, and hard work is what wrestling is about. Not just anyone will get caught up in the wave and be a part of the team that has succeeded nearly every year at districts, regionals, and states. "It just feels good to be a champion," said Youwus.

At the start of a tournament, the wrestling team lines up on the mat. Before matches, each team member's name and weight class is announced.

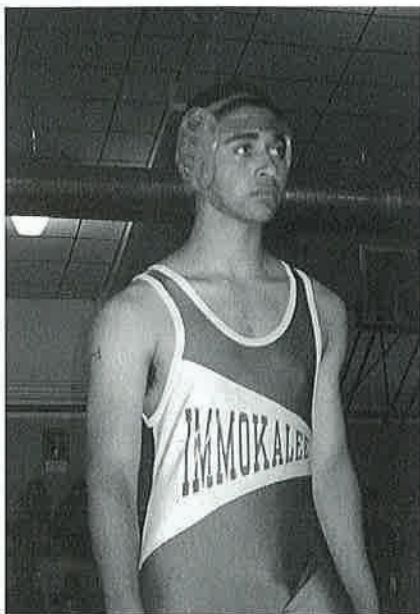

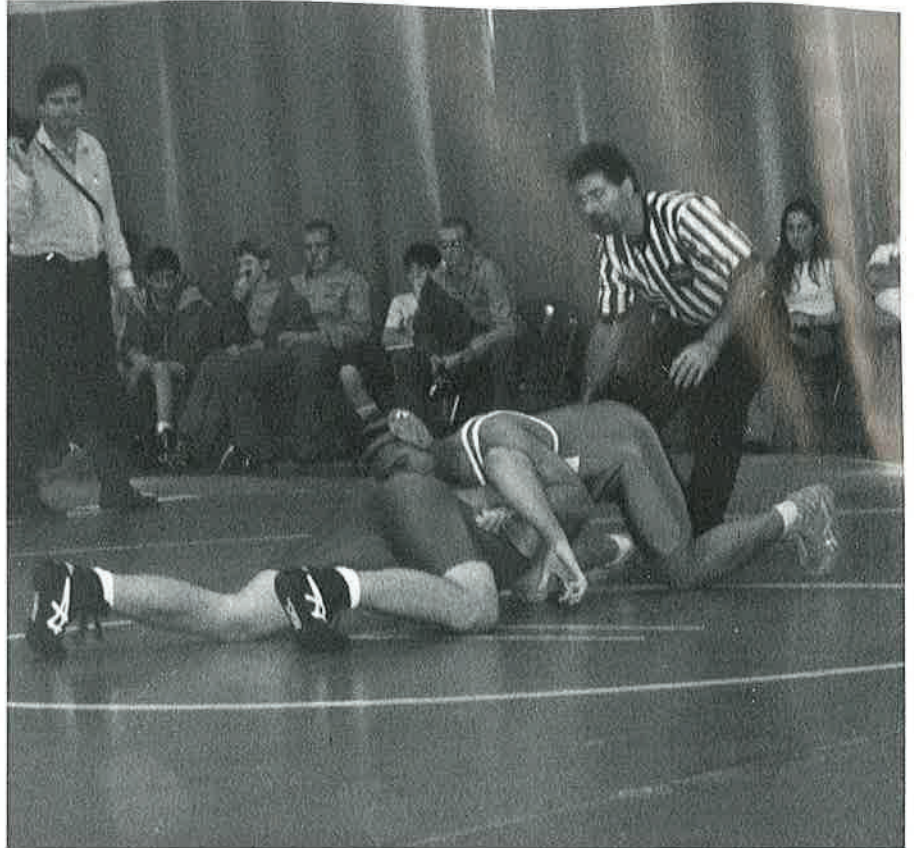

Dominating another wrestler is Melvin Moore. He was a returning member with much experience.

The wrestling team were district runners-up and did well at various tournaments. They will go on to have a wrestling clinic during the summer with a top wrestler.

Struggling to pin the opponent, Jesus Barnhart has the advantage. He was one of four wrestlers who went to state competitions.

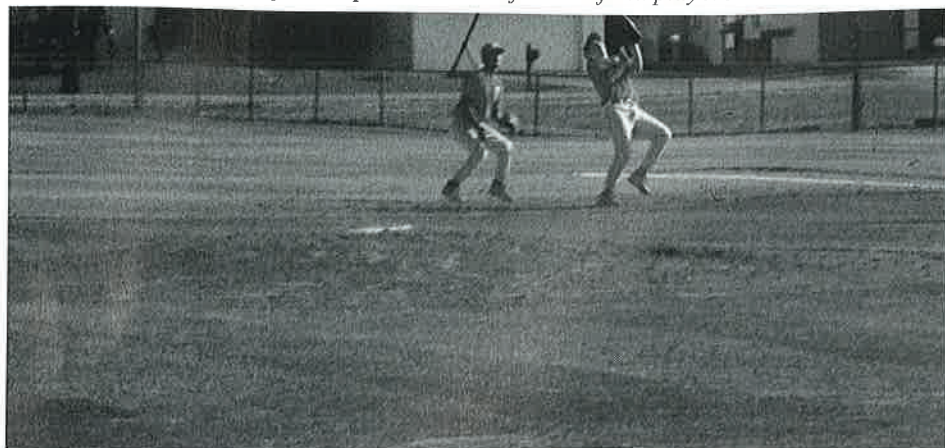

Sitting on the sidelines while waiting for their turn to wrestle and watching teammates on the mat is the easiest part of being on the team.

New to the team was David Salazar. Unfortunately, he was unable to stay.

Third baseman, Robbie Lee, watches intensely as the pitch is made. Keeping the eye on the ball was not only for the batters; it was for every player on the field.

Positioning to catch a pop-fly, two players in left field back each other up. Backing up other players was one of the important roles of the outfield players

FAMILY ON THE FIELD

What is so special about being part of the varsity baseball team? Ben Ramos says, "Being apart of the team, to me, feels like a second family. They get along with me, respect me, and we back each other up when needed." Baseball is such an exciting sport. You never know what is going to come up next. It could be an in-your-face homerun by the batter, or it could be a sweet double play made by first and second basemen. "I like the adrenaling pumping when I'm out in the field, not knowing if the ball is going to be hit towards you or not. instinct," Ben Ramos he likes about baseball. question, Victor baseball because it's it's fun when the team and sticks together losses."

"I like the adrenaline pumping when I'm out on the field, not knowing if the ball is gonna be hit towards me or not. Then it's pure gut."

Another team closer are the team members how coaches. Common responses were, "The are good coaches, "They explain play by play and they help us out when we're having trouble, "The coaches are like the parents. They show guidance and also teach new stratagies about the game." Not only do they help the players during the season, but they also push the players to work hard in school. They are there when it comes to keeping their players straight in school.

You see when you watch the Indians play, remember they are not just a team, they are a family that respects, sticks up, and helps each other.

Then it's pure gut in-said when asked, what When asked the same Adame replied, "I like what I love to do, and keeps their heads up through wins and getting ready and hoping for a sweet homerun hit is Ben Ramos. He has been on the varsity team since his freshman year.

After a minor accident on the field, a group gathers to see if Ryan Massey is okay. Luckily, he only suffered a black eye from the impact of the ball.

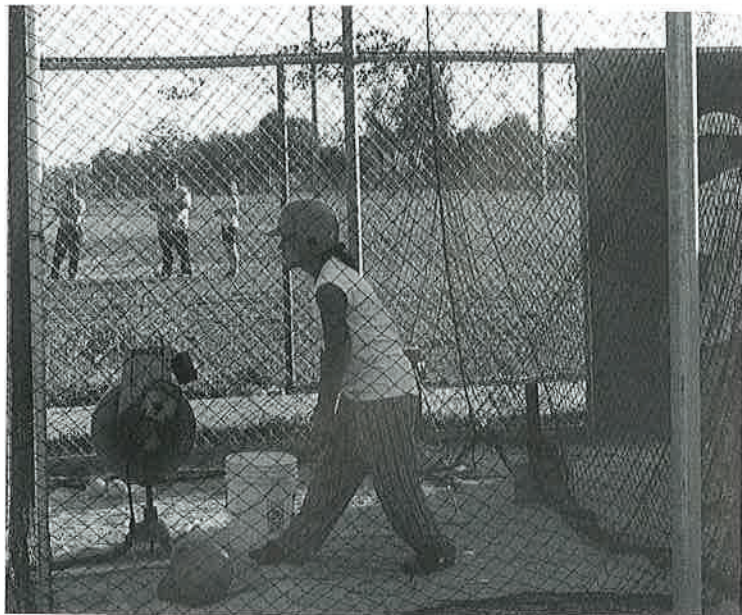

Swinging through is Victor Adame. He watches the ball has gone before taking off for the run.

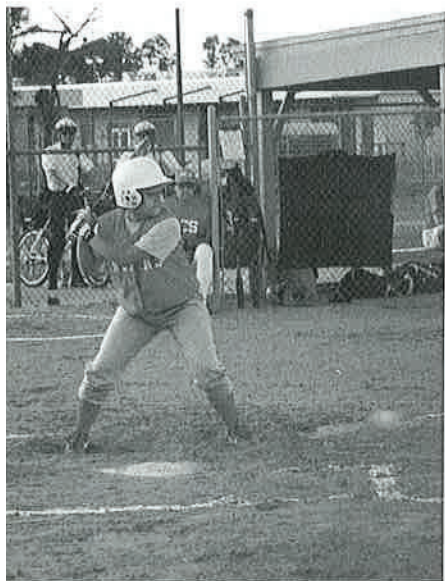

During practice, one of the drills Ryan Massey practices is a catch step and through drill. They practiced for at least four days a week.

On the pitchers' mound is senior Victor Adame, Jr. Pitching for the team is what Victor is best known for doing. "...it's fun when the team sticks together through wins and losses," said Victor.

J.V. captain Maggie DeLaRosa, j.v. captain practices in the batting cage. "I love softball, it's a sport that we can excel in. We learn how to click together as a team."

Junior Tabitha Turrubiardez pitches to the Evangelical team. A pitcher pitches for a strike to get the opponent out.

Junior Anna Herrera aims for a homerun, but instead she gets a ball. According to game rules you can get 4 balls to walk to first base.

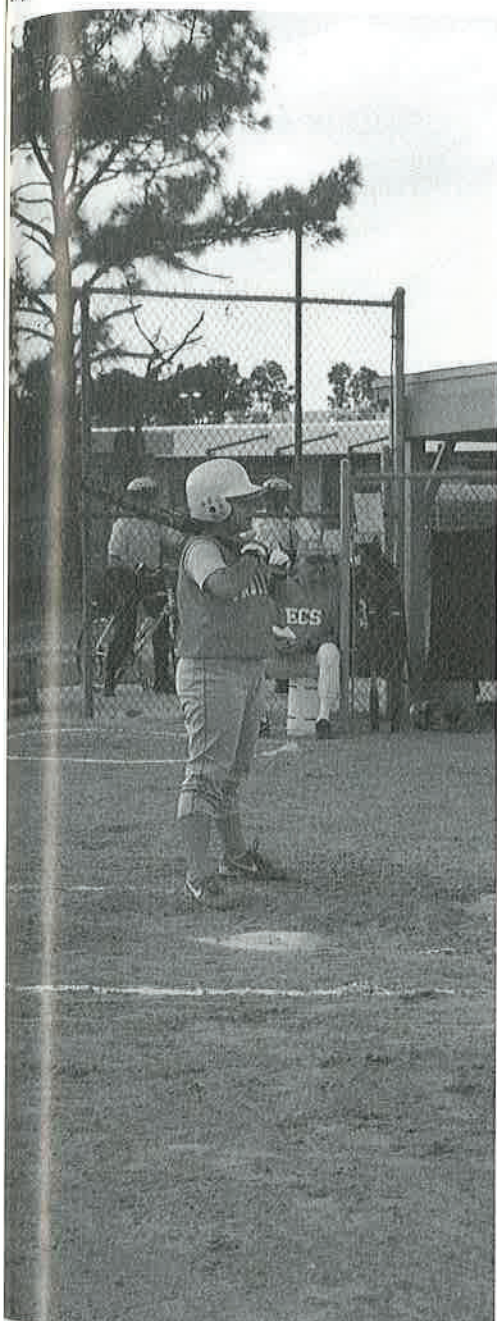

Sitting on the bench, Sabrina Polk watches from the dug out. Only 9 players are allowed out on the field while the rest of the team gets a dug out view.

"My outfield coach, Joe Valdez, has a way of explaining the outfielders positions". Basically we couldn't ask for any better coaches then Doria and Valdez," commented Joanna Campbell.

Preparing to bat, Marianna Herrera steps up to the plate ready to hit for the team. Softball is about getting the player to home plate to receive a point.

Senior Marisol Herrera catches the hard balls thrown from Tabitha Turrubiardez. Hand signals are used between both catcher and pitcher for communication.

SOFTBALL NOT SO SOFT

Why did they name the girls baseball team, softball? Was it because its a team formed by girls? Well, the girls are determined to show how hard and fierce they can be when it comes to playing ball. In order to prove this, they have to play hard in all their games and win every game possible. "I think we will have a great season if we work hard and hustle every time. If we give softball 100% we will win many more games," remarked Tabitha Turrubiardez.

The j.v. team was glad to start the season. They are anxious to see this seasons' outcome, for which they have practiced very hard. When the j.v. girls go onto the field they know what they're doing. The Indian girls show they could do it when they played against Clewiston and won. Having a victorious game brightens up their seasonal spirit.

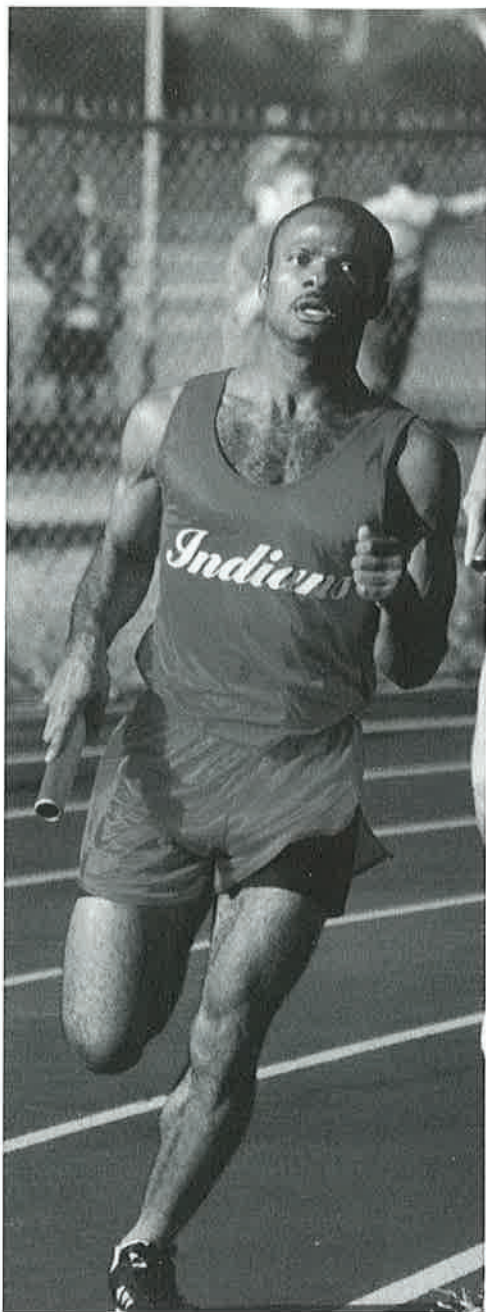

The varsity team started off with a loss, but they are not worried about it. They expect this year to be the best. "I think this season is going to be better because this summer we had a Summer Softball League and each game we played in we got better," commented Sabrina Polk. These girls have all the experience they need to become true champions.

Called in for a huddle, our lady Indians decide what changes that need to be made. This helps the team stay focused on the game.

"When I'm running I'm thinking about how long the race is going to last and I try my best to make it as fast as possible," said Hughes Vilatte. He is one of the top runners in the team.

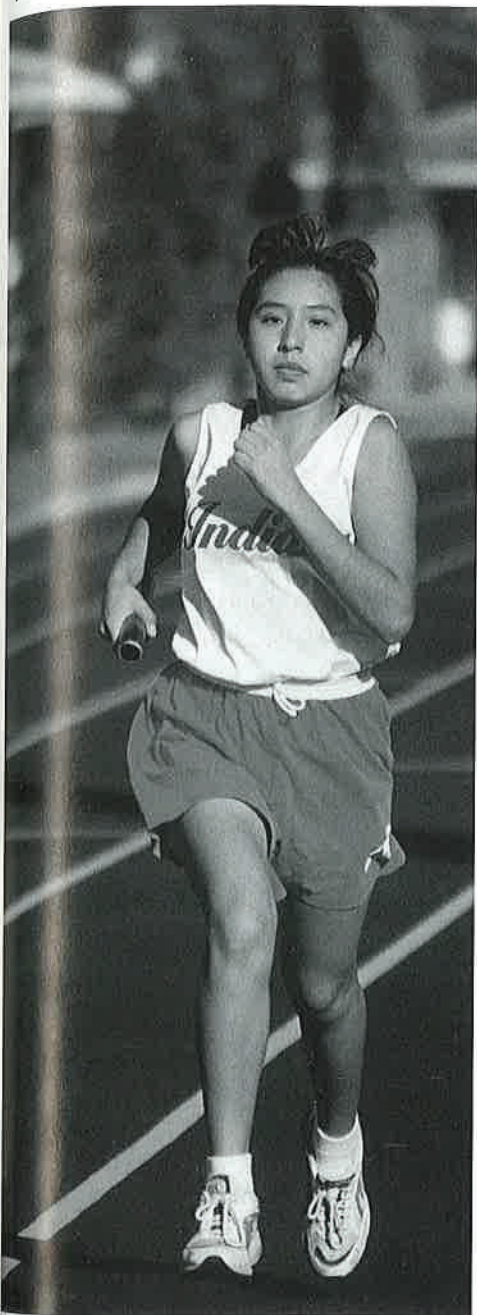

Giving his all in the long jump is Melvin Moore. He uses a combination of speed and agility to achieve his goal.

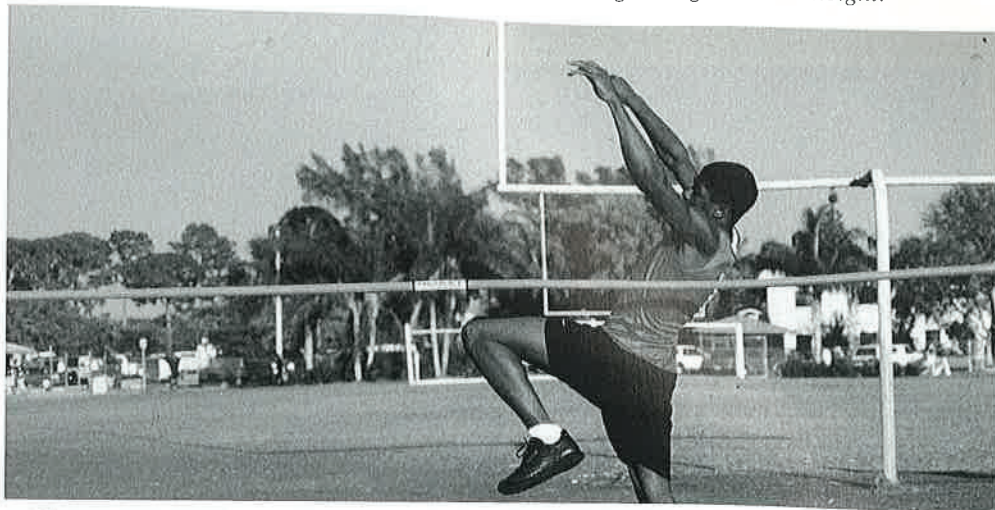

Senior Katiana Louis is throwing the shot. The 4 x2 hundred and the 4x4 are two other events she is also involved in.

the track team. Since then I've been in track. I like competing," said Araceli Ramirez. She paces herself to get the right amount of speed when needed.

Junior Chris Williams said, "When I'm about to jump, I think about getting over the stick without hitting. I also think about getting to the next height." He must use all of his upper body strength to get to each height.

GONE WITH THE WIND AND BEYOND...

The track teams were literally on a running streak. The boys' and girls' teams worked hard under the tutelage of their great coaches Ms. Bridgett Toombs and Mr. John Weber. The girls' track team brought home a district championship and the boys' track team were district runners-up. Senior Titi Fortin had this to say of Coach Toombs, "She is one of the best coaches around . . . with her we will go far!"

Besides great coaches, track members need something more. Dedication is the key. And the girls' and boys' teams were dedicated till the very end. They practiced everyday after school until five! Wow!! Hard work is needed to be champions.

It would be an understatement to say they were gone with the wind. This year's track teams were beyond that. With their dedication and hard work the track teams will continue to be champions and gone with the wind. Congratulations! to all the members for one great season.

"In track I'm involved in high jump, shot put, and the 800 m. My favorite of the three events is high jump," said junior Joselene Jocurin. She has been in track for three years.

Sophomore Eddie Gonzalez is serving the ball while junior Moses Grimaldo awaits his next move. There is no "I" in a double match.

Junior Kensom Polite makes adjustments to his racket. Your racket is your best friend so it must be kept in tip-top condition.

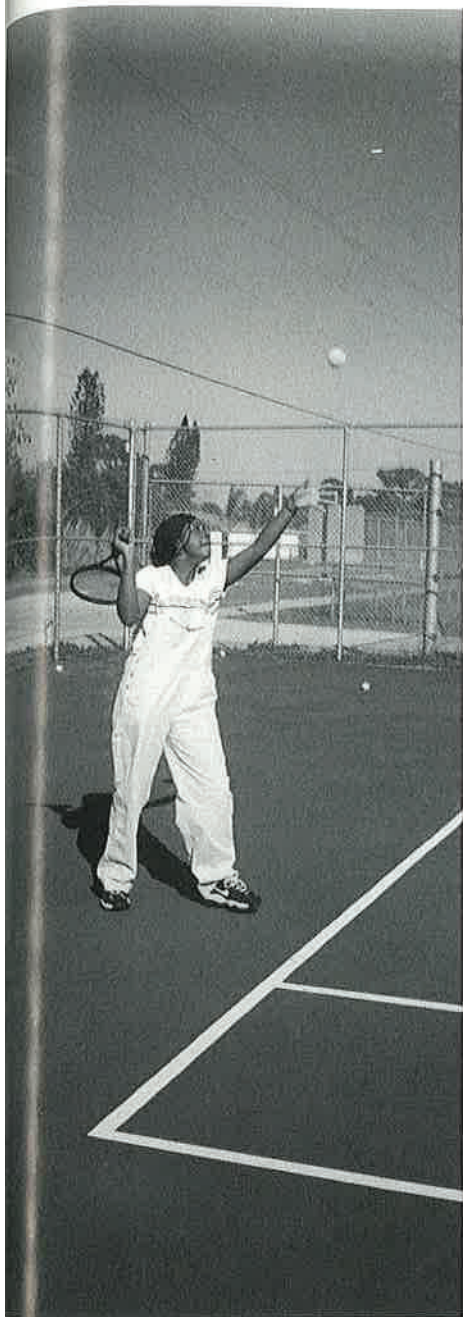

After a hard day of games, Erica Garza never stops smiling. Tennis is a cheerful sport whether you win or lose.

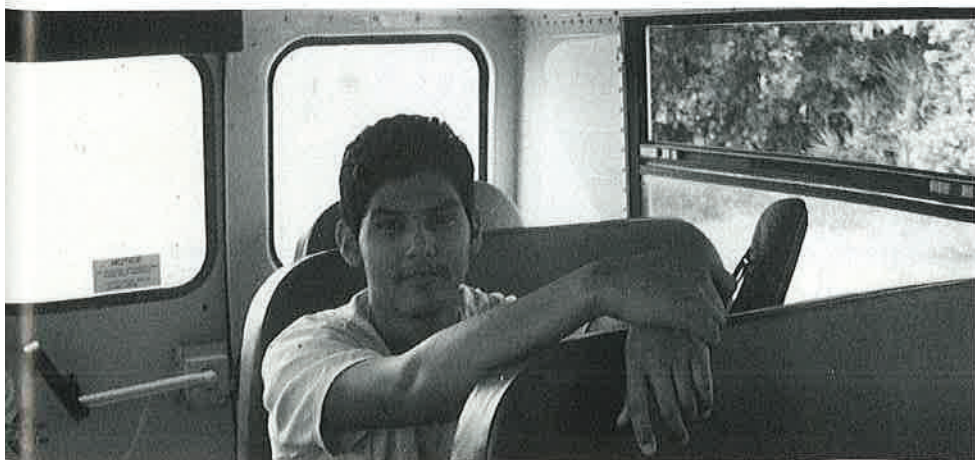

Third-year players Andrew Gonzalez and William Diaz wait patiently on the other team for the next play. They always keep an eye on the ball.

Stretching to save the point is Maude Richard. Every point counts towards a win.

I, Tracey Ann DeLaRosa, stepping into the REAL WORLD, finally realize that I.H.S. memories are treasures that are never lost. I hereby leave my 3 sisters and 5 cousins the ability to GRADUATE and to stay out of trouble. To Grandma, Thanks for putting up with my decisions of moving in and out. Thank for all the freedom, spankings you never gave me and all the love and support. To Mom, even though distance keeps us apart, you've always been there when I needed you. To Monica and Gab, take care of your freakin' kids and thank for putting up with me. To my wild and one of a kind Sis Maggie, aka "MadDog", Thank for putting up with my crap!! And may all your dreams come true. To my little sisters Misty and Marlee, don't give Mom any trouble and never give up on your dreams. Edward, I leave you all the good memories and hardships we had. Thank 4 everything you gave me from AFZ. May all your dreams come true... And when you get your Lexus, you know where to find me. 2 Victoria P, "That's so last year" and all the crazy memories. To Ayanda H, I leave you Jan. 29 and staying up til 3 am. making banners. 2 Nick R, "The Faculty" and the 3 cups of taking advantage. 2 Ben M, Heather's party (song contest) and the crazy talks. 2 Nichole M, all the copyng in Chem. class and yes, you're excused because you're the only child. 2 Kristy W, I leave you all the crazy talks and I'll pray that your child doesn't drive you crazy. 2 Edna and Philip, you've made it to your first year mark and may many more continue. I also leave you all the times we went out and when we ran you off the road. 2 Fredo, Mondo, and Rudy, all the times I was a designated driver, the time we got stopped, all the munchies, and the brown bottles. 2 Nune, I leave you all the turkeys at the bowling alley, the accident at Wing n' Ribs, all the times we went out, and of course, "Shutup, Nune". 2 Lady, you better take care of Nune and thank for all the crazy talks and may your relationship grow into something everlasting. 2 Rosabelle and Peggy, all the times we got in trouble in Mr. Forsell's class and all the slide shows. 2 Jene, may you and Ruben get your things together. 2 Allen -Body, have you been playing foosball behind my back? 2 Toni, aka "La India", may you find Mr. Right, stay cool and out of trouble. 2 Mr. Forsell, thank for all the detentions you gave me for chewing gum. To those that I couldn't stand, thank. I learned a very important lesson. Why waste your time on something that isn't worth it? 2 those I didn't mention, sorry, space is limited. But it was nice knowing ya. Stay true to yourself and may all your dreams come true. Last but not least, 2 Elaine, words cannot explain how much you mean to me. Thank you for being a BEST FRIEND. You listened, gave, did, and touched my heart. And there is never enough thank you's that I can say. Thank for everything. Mother sore. And don't forget that I'll always going to be your sore. I love you and gotta go.

Before I leave my last FOOTPRINTS at I.H.S., may God be with you all.

Congratulation, IHS on a successful school year!

Go Indians!!

I, Jarixsa Norma Yslas, wonderful daughter of Norma and Valentin Yslas, hereby thank the Lord for his good doing in giving me all the strength that I needed to complete this journey to becoming an adult. May the Lord be by my side to accomplish what is known as my future. I would also like to thank my family members for the support and understanding I needed to feel as an individual in this world. No, longer will I be looked upon as a child, but a young lady blossoming into a beautiful woman. I would like to thank especially my Great-Grandmother Ester for her love toward me and her will to take a part in my life. She will always have the biggest part of my loving heart and I have the greatest gratitude toward her and may her soul rest in peace. I would like to love they gave my since elementary. Who Quintanilla, Jennifer Mostyn, Dayna Clark,

I have the greatest gratitude toward her and thank all my friends for their support and are: Michael Reyna, Daphne Clark, Marco Edwin & Edmund Cambell, Katherine Brown, Asia Smith, Micael Lee, Meya Haynes, Eric best of luck in our strange and changing so-help them fulfill their dreams. For the family I still have behind me, following the pattern of education, I wish you the best of luck in becoming wise and successful as you finish your years. Although I've been gone for so long, again I leave, but now with thanks to those who taught me here and in Beaufort. I wish those teachers the safest trail of making students wiser. May both my homes become a safer place to live for the children of those towns. I love everyone who supported me throughout my life and made learning fun.

Patterson, and Trey (Dino). I wish them the ciety. May God be by their sides and may He

I, Jessica Mendoza being a crazy mind leave the following: First to God, without Him I wouldn't be here. Mom & Dad, thanks for putting up with me, all of my years, especially my senior year, love ya. Patti M. the room is yours, the fights I always won, the 3 o'clock talks and all the clothes your heart desires. Thanks for always being there for me. Love ya. Gabriel M. (Guacamole) I leave you all the brooms, one hundred spoke rims you want for your ride, all the fights and arguments. Stop hitting the doors! Remember I will always be your big sister, love ya. David M. I leave you the 5.0 GT mustang you've always wanted. Take good care of Alex and Priscilla love you guys. Richard G. & Pelon N. I leave you the ability to graduate and stop doing things you're not supposed to do and stop watching those flicks! I will always be here for you. Love ya. Mommie Chita thanks for everything you've done for me. (Yes, I still want the dress!) Love you always. Christie G. (Piglet) all my clothes and shoes, Christmas '96 all the talks and laughs we shared thanks for understanding me. Rose can't ya. Victoria H. (Pooh) I leave you all the your heart desires, K-Mart entrance, stop niture shopping?" Thanks for being there to. Love ya. Tia Selina thanks for all the in Miami. Love ya. Lewis & Chris S. stop ten to her! (Because I understand). Amy sorry!! Victor A. I leave you the fart Mr. talks & laughs, good luck in the future! mean much, but I am VERY sorry!!! Danielle right you will always be my friend. Thanks!! Danny C. (Gonzo) I leave u the K-Mart entrance, the lights on main & the sharp live w/out Jack. "I won't let go." Love Bridal magazines, all the Pooh Bears lights on main. When can we go "fur-for me when I needed someone to talk talks we had, the Malibu, the fun times giving your mom a hard time and lis-A., Eli R., & Liza L., all I can say is I'm Senecharles let out in 1ST block, all the Mando & Velma A., I know words don't D., even though things didn't turn out turns, cheering Friday nights, all the de-tentions we had, the nuggets and fries at McDonalds. Thanks for the talks & laughs. Last but not least, the love of my life, Mandito A. we had our good & bad times but no matter what, you've always known that, You're The One. I just want to thank you for EVERYTHING you've done for me and stood by me when times where bad. I will always be here for you also and will always love you. Can't wait till Dec. 18 when we will spend the rest of our lives together. Thanks for being you! To the class of '99 better known as "No Limit Seniors" we're out of here! See ya in 10!

Eric D. chicken wings & cooked corn dogs. Danny, Don't worry I couldn't forget about my bro., your T-touches are better than mine. Nick, U looked better in my clothes than I do & don't worry I'll never have any lonjas for U to grab. Jose P., a Madonna cd & the ability to match. Ryan, A summer at Lake June, I talk Spanish better than U. Mandal, Here lizard, lizard, lizard. Victor, I'm not getting fat, let's race. Chewy, It was your idea to mudsling, hey will U check my car. Pedro, are you sizing me. Lafayette, don't be so loud. Ronald, a pool game. Fabiola, sorry about that. Noemi, learn to drive. Tudy, U thought U were cool in her car, huh?

Albert, bring me some tacos. Raymond, are U going to school. Reagan, a tonka truck in the nose. Miguel, where did U get all those muscles from? Jeremy, thanks 4 all the laughs. Petie, I'm not nosey. Nemle, where is he at? Marlo, Do U work for the Naples Daily News? Learn to talk right? Marcelino, I leave U all the shrimp U can eat, all the hogs U can hunt, and all the fish in the sea. Dangerous Minds, she almost hit that cow. Yes I ate, I'm not going to start shaking. Did U find my ring yet? Thanx for all the good times. I'll remember I have to live day by day, If God is willing! May U achieve all of your dreams & goals in life. Gram, Thanks for all the talks & advice, UR the greatest. When RU going to fix me some Fried Chicken? Throw away all your left overs only U eat them, Love Ya. Dad, U spoiled me, U have to live w/ it, I'm sorry I'm sorry for being hardheaded. I got a double dose. Mom, U have done a good job, no matter what U think. I have a good head on my shoulders. Thanks 4 fighting 4 me, but I still had to finish it! To the man up above Thanks for getting me to where I am now. Without U none of this would be possible. Last but not lease to the NO LIMIT SENIORS Class of 99, Were the best of the century. Take Care C-YA IN 10.

I, Marisol Herrera being of extremely short body and curly hair leave the following: First of all I would like to thank God. With your strength and spiritual guidance you helped me follow the right path. Adelaida thanks for always being there when I always needed you. Next time you need a good cry just go to the bathroom. You want to play T/D. Jeni Tonta Bolia is the car following us, the rides home, remember "it's our little secret". Carlos

WE ARE RELATED!!! Bina a '99' Malibu, granny underwear, my jacket, and the seat does move back. Marianna do you want cheese or extra mayo on that. Anna what can I say your perfect. Oso did break that trucks window, can you make me some more coils. Claudia if it wasn't for your help I wouldn't have passed Pre-Cal again, I'll bring you your pan tomorrow. Manuel Dance Eteria. Chris P. a bouquet of flowers and balloons, why didn't you just tell me. Larry a pack of sugarless gum and all the cans in the display case, thanks for making me realize Jorge is the one. Tiffany Ziggy. Addie Vicky's party. Chris H. someday the Manson book will be in your hands. J.D. the beer on the side of the road. Michael let me see your smiley face again. Danny one day you'll own McDonalds. Joanna is that too much tea, they'll never know. Julissa I'll buy all your records and don't forget the little people when you become famous. Amanda someday you will master the art of ceramics. Maggie remember red means stop. Dixie don't you wish we could have played little league too. Adrianna all those guys in 7th grade. Augi LW4. Israel a job. Miguel sorry we couldn't go to the movies this summer.

Now to my family you have always been there for me at all times. Carlos don't give Mommy a hard time, she has enough stuff to worry about. And you better graduate from high school and become someone important because I know you have it in you. Anytime you want to fight I'll be there. Turo take care of Miranda because she is special to all of us. Never forget those times that we had when we were younger because I won't. Bernice hopefully one day we'll get to become close like real sisters. Abuela I will always cherish the stories that you've told. Jorge, who would have ever thought we would end up together. We've had our ups and downs, but we've overcome it all. Hopefully someday we will live out all the dreams we have together. See you at the carnival. To my parents you have watched me grow up into a mature, responsible big girl because that is the way you've raised me, but I'll be your little girl any day. Papy puedo ir a las vistas? Mommy maybe we weren't close when I was little but we have a special bond now that will stay in my heart forever. To the class of '99' may God be with you in the years to come. See ya in 10. I'm outta here.

Remember their not cool, we're cool, you'll learn to like it someday. Rosabelle stop being a BETA freak. Sabrina & Cuatas I leave ya the ability to be apart w/o Sabrina crying. Jeni u don't have 2 tell us every little detail cause girl we don't have all day. Claire I leave ya x-mas break 98'. Harry will u please stop talking already! Marciel if u keep bugging me, I'm going 2 tell Chewy 2 beat u up. Nick can I have my jacket back? Chewy B. stop being a flirt & thanks 4 paying @ Rib City. Manuel I'm still mad that u left YB class. Joe Matthews u talk a lot junk & what R u saying? Hershey it was nice getting to know u. Joanna I leave u R phone bill from the summer of 95' w/ R talks. Arthur will u tell Amanda & me who the mexican girl is? Michael next time don't have Chris push u on the bed 2 see if the wheels are strong enough because will end up fixing more than we have 2. Noemi u are clueless sometimes but your still cool. Erica D. u don't need 2 have attitude just because people talk & if u didn't have a big butt they would of fit. (Ha. Ha.) Ryan will u tell Rosa that u have a new vehicle. Jose don't worry you'll match one day. Chris P. let Amanda and me lead the Sr. parade. Rigo V. I leave u your own tire shop so that u can stop pimpin'. To Tina Gloria (my 2nd mom) & Amy I don't know what I've would of done w/o ya. Gloria thanks for the x-tra money & u have influenced my life in such a positive way. I don't know how to thank u. Wait, maybe I do right? Baby-sit for the rest of my life & treat u like a Queen. Amy I leave u the night I stayed @ your house & a bottle of Malibu because u know that's right! To Chewy O. we been through thick & thin but u have stuck by my side. I couldn't have asked for a better boyfriend with a heart like yours. I can't thank u enough for putting up w/ my spoiled brat self. Baby thanks for being my lifesaver when I needed to get out the house & think, because u know how I get my moods. I don't know what the Lord has planned for us, but remember no matter what I'll always LOVE U! Para mis padres Rene & Diana les quiero agradecer por todo lo que an echo por mi, los quiero mucho. Papi como tu no ay otro. Tu eres mi gran amor, gracias por todo. Daddy I leave u a Jeff Gorden car. Mom I know I'm spoiled, but u still love me. Thanks for making me realize what was wrong and what right. I would like now to thank the man above GOD for keeping my family & me safe & also for helping me through the years because without your guidance where would I be. To the NO LIMIT SENIORS we finally made it. I wish ya the best & c-ya in 10 cause I'm outta here. To those I forgot sorry there's no more room on my page.

I, Aldonia Kaye Houstin do will the following. . .

First, I thank God for helping my family, and friends for being with me through thick and thin. 2 Mom, I love you and thank you for being there for me. 2 Dad, I love you too and take care of yourself. 2 Bro. Joe, thanks for standing by me as a male figure in our family and God bless you. 2 Bro. Albert, I wish I could see you more often, but you continue your music and influence the work for God to reach the world. 2 Patricia, continue to stand by as virtuous woman and I'm also glad to be your sister-in-law. 2 Patrick, stay out of trouble and go to college. 2 Puncho, my boo, I will always love. I believe in you, don't let me down. 2 Aurea, we've been best friends since third grade so don't lose touch with me and good luck in the air force. 2 Chevas, thanks for being my friend and good luck in the future. 2 Denise, I'm glad to have you as one of my best friends and being around you has been fun. Good luck with Joe and stay in touch. 2 Joe, you know you're afraid to get that -----, just admit it. 2 Rommie, I wish you the best in college. 2 Wanda, let those jealousy females say what they want, because that's only talk. 2 Arther, its so much to say about you, but good luck with the kids. 2 Sharade, I hope you get what you wish for, before somebody takes him. 2 Solonge, let others talk, you just keep your head up. By the way I won't forget all those trips back and fourth to Vo-Tech with your friends (Beh). 2 Merencia, the craziest girl I ever met. I hope everything works out fine with you and your other men. 2 Tangy, take care my little son, "Little Larry." and good luck in the future with Scoobi. 2 Cooch, Sally, Dot, Melanie and Tasha, good luck and ya'll stick together and take care of yourselves. 2 my teachers and principles, thanks for the guidance and education. 2 the females that had beef for me, I only have three words to say, "GOD BLESS YOU??"

CONGRATULATIONS!
LOVE MOM, DAD,

JEB AND JEFFREY

I, Dixie Lee Rou, being of a Gator mind and body, leave the following: to my parents, I leave all of the good times we had as a family. Thank you for everything you both have done for me. It means a lot. God bless you! To Jeb, I leave a bagel in Vermont, and our trip to New Orleans. Someday we will get to go to Mardi Gras. To Jeffery, my Punkin'Head, I leave The Saint. We finally get to be ORANGE! Thank you both for protecting me, from what, I don't know, but thanks for caring enough anyway! To my Lazy Daisy, Alexis, I leave our song, I Work Hard For My $, and thanx for the favor! To Davy, I want to say thank you for always being there. There will never be anyone else like you! I leave Stephanie and Vanessa, my best friends, WDW, poker games, Trapp Pond, Shore Shop, our Dad (CPC), Delaware, Noah, the poor water guy (UT), S.V., shagging with Aaron, RYMS, and 52-20. There are so many more though. Oh, cheering and eating at Raynor's w/o me, a cucum- to practice on time! I will really miss you. To the sitting under the trees (Bird)? Sandy, thanks for all of fun times and also leave you a Amanda H., I the dogs with see - Monkey do, our talks. (M or Taco Bell, Sweet game, and Alpha Victoria, Mondo, D & V's, and pee?" Rachel, laughs in class, a paste in 3rd all, I am sorry! To have too much fun in Virginia without Steph, Nessa, and me. To my cheerleading buddies, I will miss you leave you all of the laughs in class, a red shirt w/toothpaste in 3rd grade, but most of all, I am sorry! To David, try not to have too much fun in Virginia without Steph, Nessa, and me. To my cheerleading buddies, I will miss you all, but I leave you the good times and the bad. We made it through all of them. Thanx you for always being there for me. Ms. Bloom, you have been a great coach. Thanx for always being there! Tello, same for you, and thanks for the passes. To Ms. Tuten, maybe someday I will wear a pink dress, just for you! To my favorite teacher I ever had, Coach Weber, you will be a Gator before I get done! To our newest friends, Mike and Little Mike, maybe some day we can finish a round of bowling. Thanks for everything, we had a blast! Oh yeah, Go Gators! To my buddies Gean and Moses, I first of all want to say I am not flirting, I am just being a friend. Make sure your girlfriends know that!!! Thanks for all of the help in class, I have had a lot of fun! To Arturo, Ito, and Edward, maybe this is your "lucky year"! To Becki and Sonja, I leave "You're too close to the edge" and I think Bill is still waiting! To all of you non-Gator fans, I am sorry, and it is spelled WUERFFEL. Last of all, I would like to thank the One that made my life possible, God. You answered my parent's prayers, and you answer mine daily. Thank you for giving me the strength to survive in this world. To anyone I forgot, I am sorry, but the room was limited. I still love ya though! GOD BLESS & GO

To the 1998-1999 Yearbook Staff. . .

What can I say? We actually survived!

To my seniors. . . Good Luck and you will be missed.

To my underclassmen. . . You better not desert me next year--I'll finally know what I'm doing!

To my Editor, Rosabelle, Claudia and I will miss you more than you will ever know! Call and check on us next year around the first deadline!

To the I.H.S. family. . .

Thanks for your encouragement and support (I really needed it)! Forgive us for any yearbook errors or shortcomings.
We did the best we could!

Thanks for everything. . . screaming fits, hives, headaches, insomnia!

Miss Williams

I, Christie Garcia always wearing green socks & a Yankees hat, leave the following: First I give thanks to God for allowing me to get this far. Mom and Dad- I love you dearly and would have never made it without you and for the unconditional love. I made it!! Mommie Chita (NUNEZ)-I love you and will cherish all the memories and laughs we have shared. Mommie Mela- Thank you for all the toast and bacon in the mornings. I love U. Tia Sylvia- thank you for listening when I couldn't talk to mom you have been like a second mother. Pito- my big brother I love u even through the good and bad times. Cande- you are my little brother even though you're bigger than me. Gloria (BEE)- Come and pick up all your stuff, calm down and stop acting so grown up. Victoria H.-My best friend, it's so much better with two. The ride to Labelle to get a Pepsi and Fruitopia, and $2.55 & all the memories in the P.M. Captain Hook and the bakers dozen?? Niagara Falls!! A.G. YEEAAH!! Shh, Down Low your momma don't have to know. The morning cruises, thanks for listening when I didn't know what to do, you have been like a sister and will never forget that.

WHU? WHAT HAPPENED?? Patti M.- The summers 95 & 98, they were fun weren't they! The SATURDAY NIGHT MY WAY in Labelle. Good Luck with the guy of your dreams. The movie the Bird Cage & Players Club

& the CD Annette, and the month that you lived with me. P.M. forever you know what I'm talking about. Jessica M. - The day we got our ear's pierced,

$3.00, I do have sparkles in my ring! I'll always stand behind in whatever you may do. Victoria, Patti, & Jessica- VAMOS A LA PLAYA!! Richard, Pelon,

& Gabriel- The ability to graduate with your class, but have fun. Don't do anything that I wouldn't do. Richard (Tater)- When you see your friend tell him to page me. Gabriel & Maggie- Good luck together. Maggie G- Watch out for those stains on your desk in English 1 & those trips to the bathroom.

Juan V.(Peanut)-The Bobby Pulido dance & outside the Desert Tavern. The

Miami Car Show. The fishing trip to Chokoloskee when I caught all the fish

& the unforgettable ride home. Should have been a Cowboy I don't have any socks, I wonder why? Go 49ers! Barney V.-Motel 82, I ain't mad at cha got nothing but love for ya! Jorge V.- The day we went out to the lake & you lost a life. I'm Sorry! Victor A.- a.k.a. Droopy. WHU!WWDD4U!69. David H.-

WHAT?? Wake up and don't ask me what the movie was about! Rigo V.-

Pimpin' Ain't Easy I know & I'll hook U up. Tu huera se va casar. Gina F.-Our secrets in 1st block. Betsy & Richie-All the lifestyles U can handle. Belinda H.-All the good times we've had, crocodile Dundee & a Wrangler Man. Greg C.-

I leave U my heart & a good-bye kiss. Robert L.-I leave U my love. Eric V. - Do you want to use my sweater. Teddy C.- I leave U my hair & me. Rosa V.

-the ugly green jacket in 2nd block. Fidel A. -Where are U when I need U? Dee @ Raynor's- Got any gossip? J.D. -the secret that I told U. Jenny S. -

Alligator Juice. Ryan M. -(Rosa) It ain't my fault. Jack -If U jump I jump, Ft. Myers beach, a Tommy jacket, & a night going out. David O. -Thanks 4 being a special friend & I'll never forget U. Love ya (999). Shoeboy -All the lasagna U can eat, I'll make U some. My Little Secret - -We still need to have our Grand Slam Breakfast, if u can handle me. How about my way you'll finish quicker & a kiss on the stomach. Mary, Pancho, & Jose -Thank U for allowing me to be a part of your life & your son's. He has opened my eyes & I'll never forget it. Love U. Ricky T. -My one & only boyfriend. I love U & miss U dearly; someday I'll be with you again. 2 anyone I may have forgotten, I'm Sorry! To the Class of '99 we will always be the NO LIMIT SENIORS. See U in 10!

I, Amanda Salazar, being of opinionated, outspoken, and intelligent self, will leave the following: To Marisa, a fine boyfriend and a life supply of Hot Tamales. Thanks for being a great sister and friend. Lora, a night at IPA, and Icee from Steve, and four rolls of film. You know you'll miss me when I'm gone so stop pretending you won't. Keep the BSB pride alive! To my cousins Lupita, Andrea, Myra, Xochitl, Bianca, and Lea, I leave you the ability to graduate and to lead successful lives. To Rachel, a car chase at Wendy's, our little secrets, hours of "hard work", and a beautiful wedding. You are a great friend and you'll be a great mom. Rigo, I leave you the ability to get the nice girl and to go two sentences without saying "Pimpin' aint easy" or "Raw." Josh, I leave you the ability to leave for lunch without getting caught and all those conversations in Mrs. Possell's class. To Richie, I leave you an interesting and informative conversation during a bus ride to ECC and cold shower and the ability to mind your own business. To Michael R., I leave a fire alarm and a memorable Emergency Removal Pass in 3rd block. Brandy, can't you shut your mouth for one minute? Serious note. I leave you the ability to graduate without having to go to jail. Tell "Daddy" I said Hi! Adelaida R., to you I leave "Hair", crazy slumber parties and my cute little monkey face. Nick, a twist dance and the ability to keep your tension problems to yourself. To Amie, I leave you a trip down memory lane at the lake and the ability to fake smile. It really helps. Amber, to you I leave one ugly-looking group picture and a hair brush. So stop borrowing mine! To Madoche you are on smooth dancer. I leave you the ability to stop being such a flirt. Gadainson, you are such a show off! But you are also sweet. Ricky, thanks for the Perkins meal and I think there's still moldy bread left in your car. To Maggie, you will always be the true chunky munky. I leave you are great friendship and of course a rainbow colored candy cane!! Kristi, why are you always happy? I hope everything works out for the best in your life. You deserve it! To my favorite cuz, Sandy, I leave you Troy and Brian and the ability to know when to hush up in class. And to Marcial, sorry for making fun of you so much. Yea right!! I leave you a disgusting lunch at Raynors and the ability to go one day without saying "You look nice today Amanda." David, a big yellow M&M. Thanks for defending me when Marcial would try to beat me up. Andres, to you I leave the ability to march in step and play the F-horn. Maybe one day you'll be as good as me. Janet, I leave you all those dances in the stands. Stay sweet and crazy. Tia Juana, Olga, and Zully. Thanks for being great aunts. I appreciate all your love and support. Tia Minerva my hair would be a disaster without you. Thank you for always being there when I needed you. Uncle Bob I can always count on your honesty. Grandpa, Te quiero mucho. Mom and Dad. Thanks for being so supportive in all I do and for being great parents. Don't lay back your job is not over now that I'm 18. It's just getting started! I love you guys. Mark, you have always been there for me whenever I needed you. You are a wonderful boyfriend and I am grateful to have you in my life. And above all I thank my Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Without your guidance my life would be a mess. To all those people I forgot sorry. I was in a rush. Don't take it personal. And to the class of 1999 good luck and take care!!

Richie,

You have finally made it! We are very proud of you and love you even more. I know it has not been easy having your MOTHER work at I.H.S. through your high school years. You handled it better than I ever expected. The future is yours, may God protect you while giving you wisdom, grace and favor.

We love you son,
Mom and Terry

Leroy,

Congratulations!! You are the last of us to graduate and we know you are glad. Good luck and we love you.

Your big sisters,
Kristie and Becky

fairwell

Life is a journey that must be taken one milestone at a time, so the journey doesn't end here. There are many more milestones to experience and achievements to be accomplished.

Thanks to all those students who made Immokalee proud. Congratulations to the underclassmen who have moved up a notch; juniors, she's all yours-- have fun! For seniors, it's not an ending, but a new beginning. Remember to keep the spirit alive!
