Getting Down with Dols

Mr. Dols has been a teacher here for a total of thirteen years, eleven of which have been spent here at MHS. He has taught Economics, AP government, US History, geography, and this year R.O.P Careers. He is also does peer help, being co-senior advisor, being an NHS advisor, and coordinating WASC. He is an extremely dedicated man, both to his family and to his students. When asked what he loved most about his job, he responded, "the students." He is a strong believer that through his students, he can make a positive influence on the future. he loves getting involved in his students lives, sharing in their successes and helping them through their failures. Mr. Dol's favorite quote is, "Each of us can change the world and make it a better place. we just need to be given the tools to succeed and the desire to make that change." Influenced by the similar attitudes of his past teachers, Mr. Dols always wanted to become a teacher.

When he is not busy with changing the world for the better through his students, Mr. Dols enjoys spending time with his family. He has a wife and two kids, both of which play sports and are involved in scouts. he also enjoys playing his guitar and singing country music. On Fridays, he sings for his students. he hates to be alone and always has to be with other people. He even has what he calls his "primary homies" here on campus.

Mr. Dols is a great teacher and an inspiration to all of his students.

Harrison, Harrison, Harrison!

My advice for students is: always do your best, and always keep an open mind about things, said Mrs. Natalie Harrison, sitting across the room from me with her legs crossed and palm slightly under her chin. Harrison explained, "To me the transformation of the students from the disruptive day one to the final day where they emerge successful, is one reason why I like teaching. I love to watch my students grow," she said.

Natalie Harrison, a teacher at Monrovia high school for nine years, was born in Glendora, California. As an only child, she made her way to college where she earned her Bachelors Degree in Social Sciences Communications at USC and later earned her Masters Degree in Education at Claremont Graduate University. Mrs. Harrison is known this year for teaching World History and Pre-AP World History, but in the past few years she's taught everything from AP European History, Geography, to AVID.

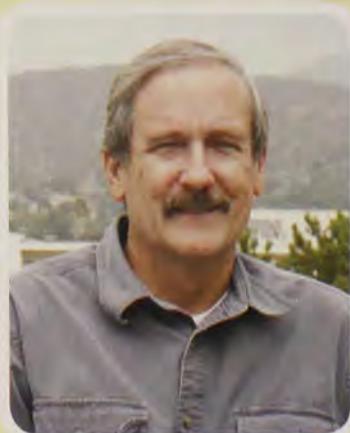

Harrison said she was really inspired by one of her former teachers, Ms. Littleton. She also said that she's always had a passion and love for history. Her least favorite thing about teaching would have to be "grading all my students' work," she laughed. In her spare time Mrs. Harrison likes to read, see live music, spend time with her family and travel. She said she has already been to Peru and Costa Rica, but she would love to go to France and Eastern Europe. "It's time to go across the Atlantic. But I'm pregnant, so I don't know if I'll be doing that anytime soon," she said. Traveling happens to give Harrison more inspiration about World History. Whether she's traveling across the world or entertaining us with her humor, Mrs. Natalie Harrison will always be an inspiring teacher to students here at Monrovia High School.

From managing a laser tag facility to teaching math, it's all in a day's work for Mr. Luis Vazquez. Vazquez has been teaching math since 1995 at several different schools: Eisenhower High School, Kranz and Edgewood Middle School, and since 2001, Monrovia High School. He enjoys teaching math to his students, because he feels that he can communicate well with others in mathematics. "The best thing about teaching is when you see that your students understand the concept of the lesson," Vazquez says. For the most part, Vazquez claims that most of his students are actually in his class to be indulged with education and he enjoys them very much. depending on his mood or amount of time, Vazquez will occasionally crack a joke in his class as comic relief from the work load. "Surprisingly, most of his jokes are hilarious, even with his dry sense of humor," said a former student of Vazquez.

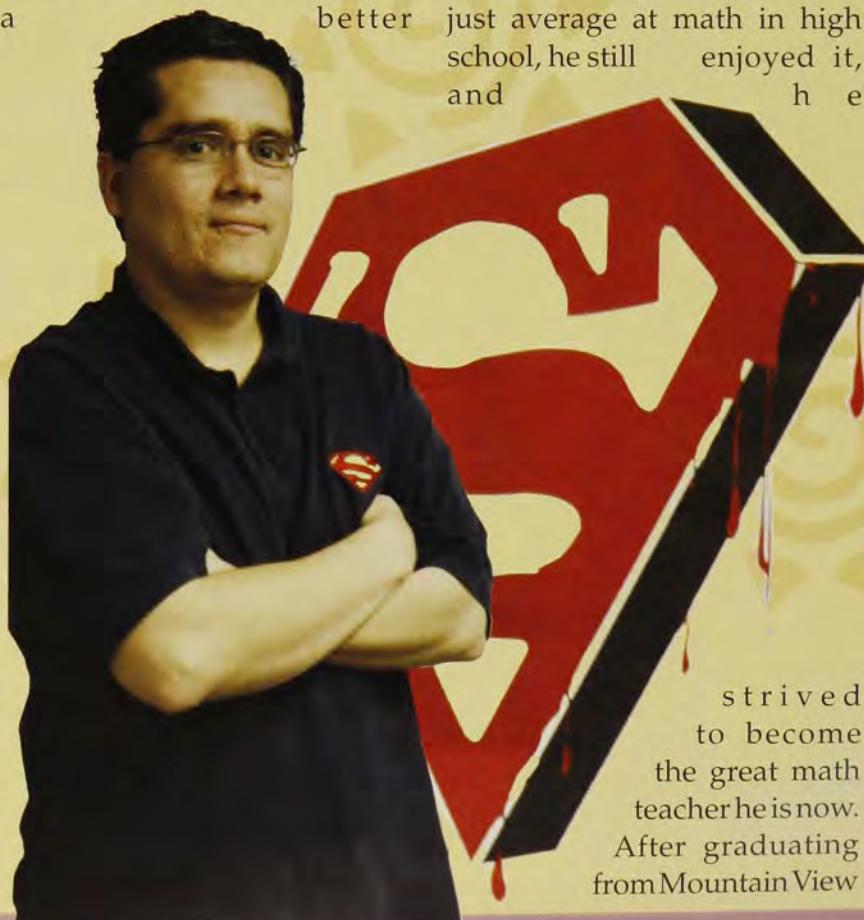

Vaquez was inspired to become a math teacher, thanks to his ninth grade math teacher. According to Vazquez, this teacher was horrible and he wanted to become a better teacher. As good a mathematician as Vazquez is now, he was never one of the top math students in his class. He was never the lowest, but never the highest either. Although Vazquez was just average at math in high school, he still enjoyed it, and he

High School, Vazquez attended California Baptist College in Riverside where he obtained his Bachelor's and teaching degrees in science and mathematics.

Aside from Vazquez's teaching career, he also works at Lazerstar, where he has been the manager for eight years. And of course, being the manager, he is definitely an outstanding laser tag player. Along with laser tag, he enjoys puzzles and games as well as being a huge fan of Super Man. If you have been in his classroom, you may have noticed Super Man posters all along his walls. Not only is his classroom covered with pictures of Super Man, but he has a room in his own home completely filled with materials that are associated with the famous super hero. Other than his obsession with Super Man, he loves his family, especially his wife and two kids.

Coach Gretebeck: From the Field, to the Class-

Mr. Richard Gretebeck, also known as "Coach G" and "Fancypants" is a true Wildcat. He coaches football and teaches math too. Although he has been here for quite a while, he hasn't always lived in our little town.

Born and raised in Wisconsin until his teens, Mr. Gretebeck loved riding his own horse on the family farm. "I loved the feeling of being free in the wind and having control of the horse; it was very exhilarating."

After turning thirteen, he and his family moved not only out of state but out of the country. He moved to Amsterdam and attended high school there. He liked it, because it was different than American schooling; they had classes set for the same academic levels which "helped the students achieve more." In his highschool career, he played baseball and football, which is soccer in Europe, because they don't have American football.

When he came to America, he went to college and received a BA in Science. Although he didn't receive the masters title in Bio Mechanics, he did all the work.

When asked about coaching football at MHS, Coach Gretebeck said, "I am lucky to be a part of this great program. We have some excellent coaches who are truly concerned with the team and aren't egocentric." Coach Gretebeck demands respect while giving it where it is necessary, which creates a successful coach to player relationship.

"Coaching girls is totally different than coaching with the boys," he said about coaching softball. "Fancypants," as some of the softball players call him, stated that dealing with girls is like dealing with a whole new population. He learns new things with them and has to learn how to soften up with them, which confuses the football boys.

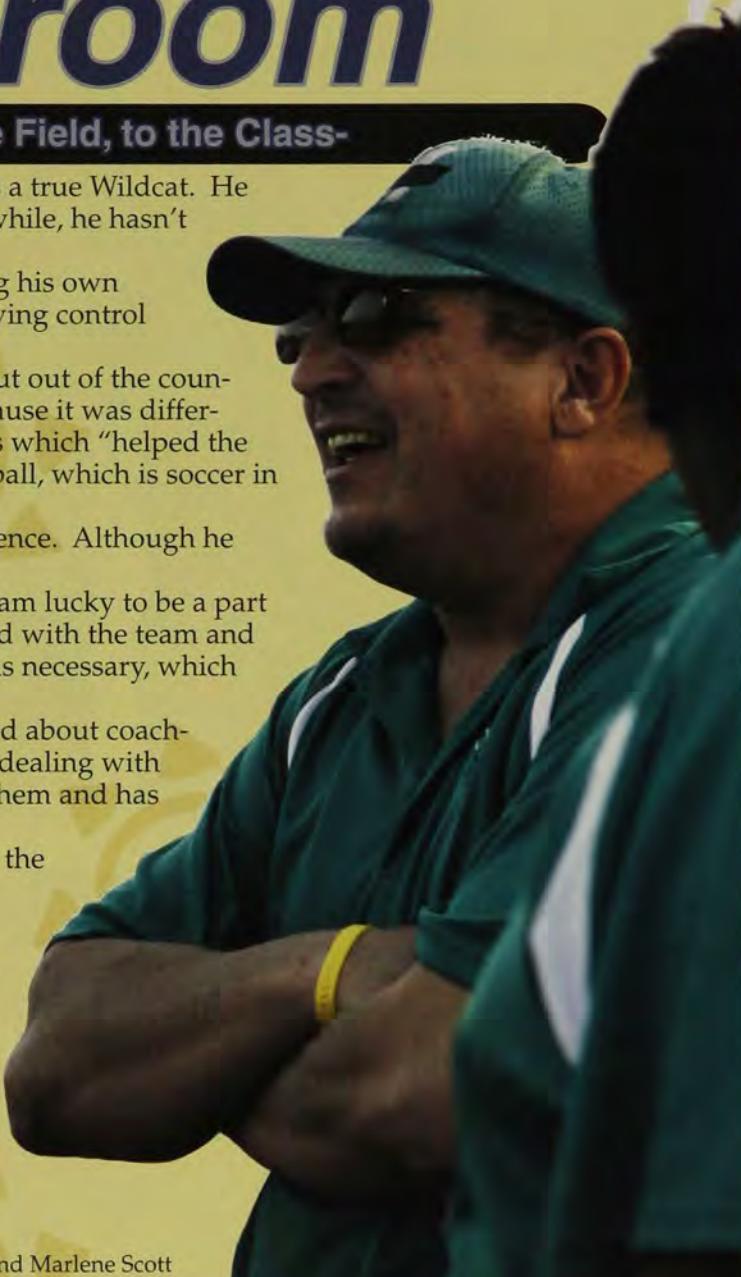

As well as on the field, Mr. Gretebeck is determined to be successful in the classroom. He takes time with students and makes sure that they try hard.

His favorite things to do on the weekends are to check up on his teams and go to the games. "I like being in the stands, it's a nice change." Also, he loves to travel "anywhere and everywhere." He thinks it is very important to be aware and to appreciate other people and their environments.

All in all, Richard Gretebeck is a very dedicated Wildcat and loves the school and the sports programs. He looks back on his career and reminisces being thanked by his students for helping them succeed in not only school, but in life skills as well. "I have always wanted to be a teacher, and I still enjoy it everyday."

Juniors and Their Cars

Part of being an upperclassman in high school is becoming a driver. Many Juniors this year received their licenses and got cars. Some of the students received their cars on their sixteenth birthdays and some bought theirs with saved up money. The cars represent freedom and the ability to be seen as "grown-up" and trusted with a responsibility of driving a motor vehicle. "It's definitely important to me, because not only is it fun, but it's a sense of being free," Brianna Hansen said about driving. These Juniors have waited their whole lives for this, and it is something to look forward to as a lower classman.

Hang-Out Spots

Every morning before school and during lunch period students are hanging out in their same spots. Each group of friends has their own spot somewhere on campus. But really, the entire Monrovia High School campus is one big hang-out spot.

Some sit around the "Friendship Circle," some on the benches throughout the school, some in the hallways and the stairways, and some in the classrooms with their teachers. Other groups sit at the tables under the shelter, or in the cafeteria, all around the pep-stage, or on the benches under the "Interact Tree."

Students like to hang out in their favorite spots just to talk, laugh, eat, and have a great time relaxing and taking a break from classes. Here are some pictures of juniors and where they hang out.

Junior Fashion

Fashion allows students to freely express themselves without words. Juniors this year were really "up on their game," meaning their style was super nice! People were not afraid to express themselves this year. They wore everything from 501 jeans and skulls on their shirts to Hollister, Abercrombie and Fitch, and tight fitting pants. The flair was out and skinny jeans were in! Very few super baggy pants graced the campus, and clothes were fitting to forms this year. As for shoes, Nikes were big, Dunks were the new Jordans, and people loved to be colorful!

Monrovia high school juniors monrovia high school juniors monrovia high school juniors and Their Music

Music has influenced us in many ways, from the way we dress to our outlook on life. Some use music to escape from reality. Some say music is life, and they truly mean it. Most people now listen to the music on their iPods and phones, but some still rock out to their CD players.

These four juniors explain why they like music and why it makes them feel good.

Juniors Weird Talents

Oddly enough, many people around you have weird talents. Can you wiggle your eyes? Touch your nose with your tongue? Some juniors have "weird talents," and here are just a few. Belladonna Campos can easily dilate her eyes. Unfortunately, we couldn't get a picture of her doing it, so we just had to get a picture of her eyes.

Another junior with a special talent is Dan Winners, who is able to walk on his hands without falling. Lastly, Marissa Arnold can place her legs behind her neck without pulling a single muscle. Although these are just a few students with weird talents, there are many others who have wacky talents they haven't even discovered yet.

Junior Homecoming

This year's Homecoming theme was "A Night Of Glow". The Junior Court consisted of Maryum Jenkins, Afton Johnson, Lauren Penilla, Diana Vargas, Justin San Juan, Miles Feld, Clifton Knox, and Derek Bailey. "It was really fun to be on Homecoming Court, I really enjoyed myself, and my partner, Clifton, made me laugh a lot," said Afton Johnson about being on court for the second time. Miles Feld said, "Being on court was really fun and I loved being Maryum's partner." Junior, Rufus Williams, on the Varsity Football Team scored three touchdowns that night and helped win the game. Chris Carino caught passes, gaining thirty-six yards to help win as well.

Night of Glow

Homecoming was certainly a "Night of Glow" for all the sophomores who attended this event. This year, the court members, representing the class of 2010, were Princesses Abigail Macias, Rachel McWhirter, Christina Falls, Courtney Burney; and Princes Jerry Mercado, Adrian Macias, Isaac Baroccas, and Austin Romero. Homecoming was not any ordinary dance; glow sticks were sold to set the theme and everyone was dressed stylishly for the occasion.

Even though Homecoming was in the gym, everyone still had a great time with the variety of music, dancing here and there and glow sticks. At the night of the big event, there were lights everywhere, and it was hot, steamy and crowded-but that did not stop anyone from dancing.
